DIFFERENT EXPRESSIONS.

I usually separate the real personality of a character (displayed on their face) and the personality of their physical body.

DIFFERENT BODIES.

ALL WITH ONE CHARACTER.

The whole character may not be 100% of the same personality (completely confident, meek, fertile, etc.).

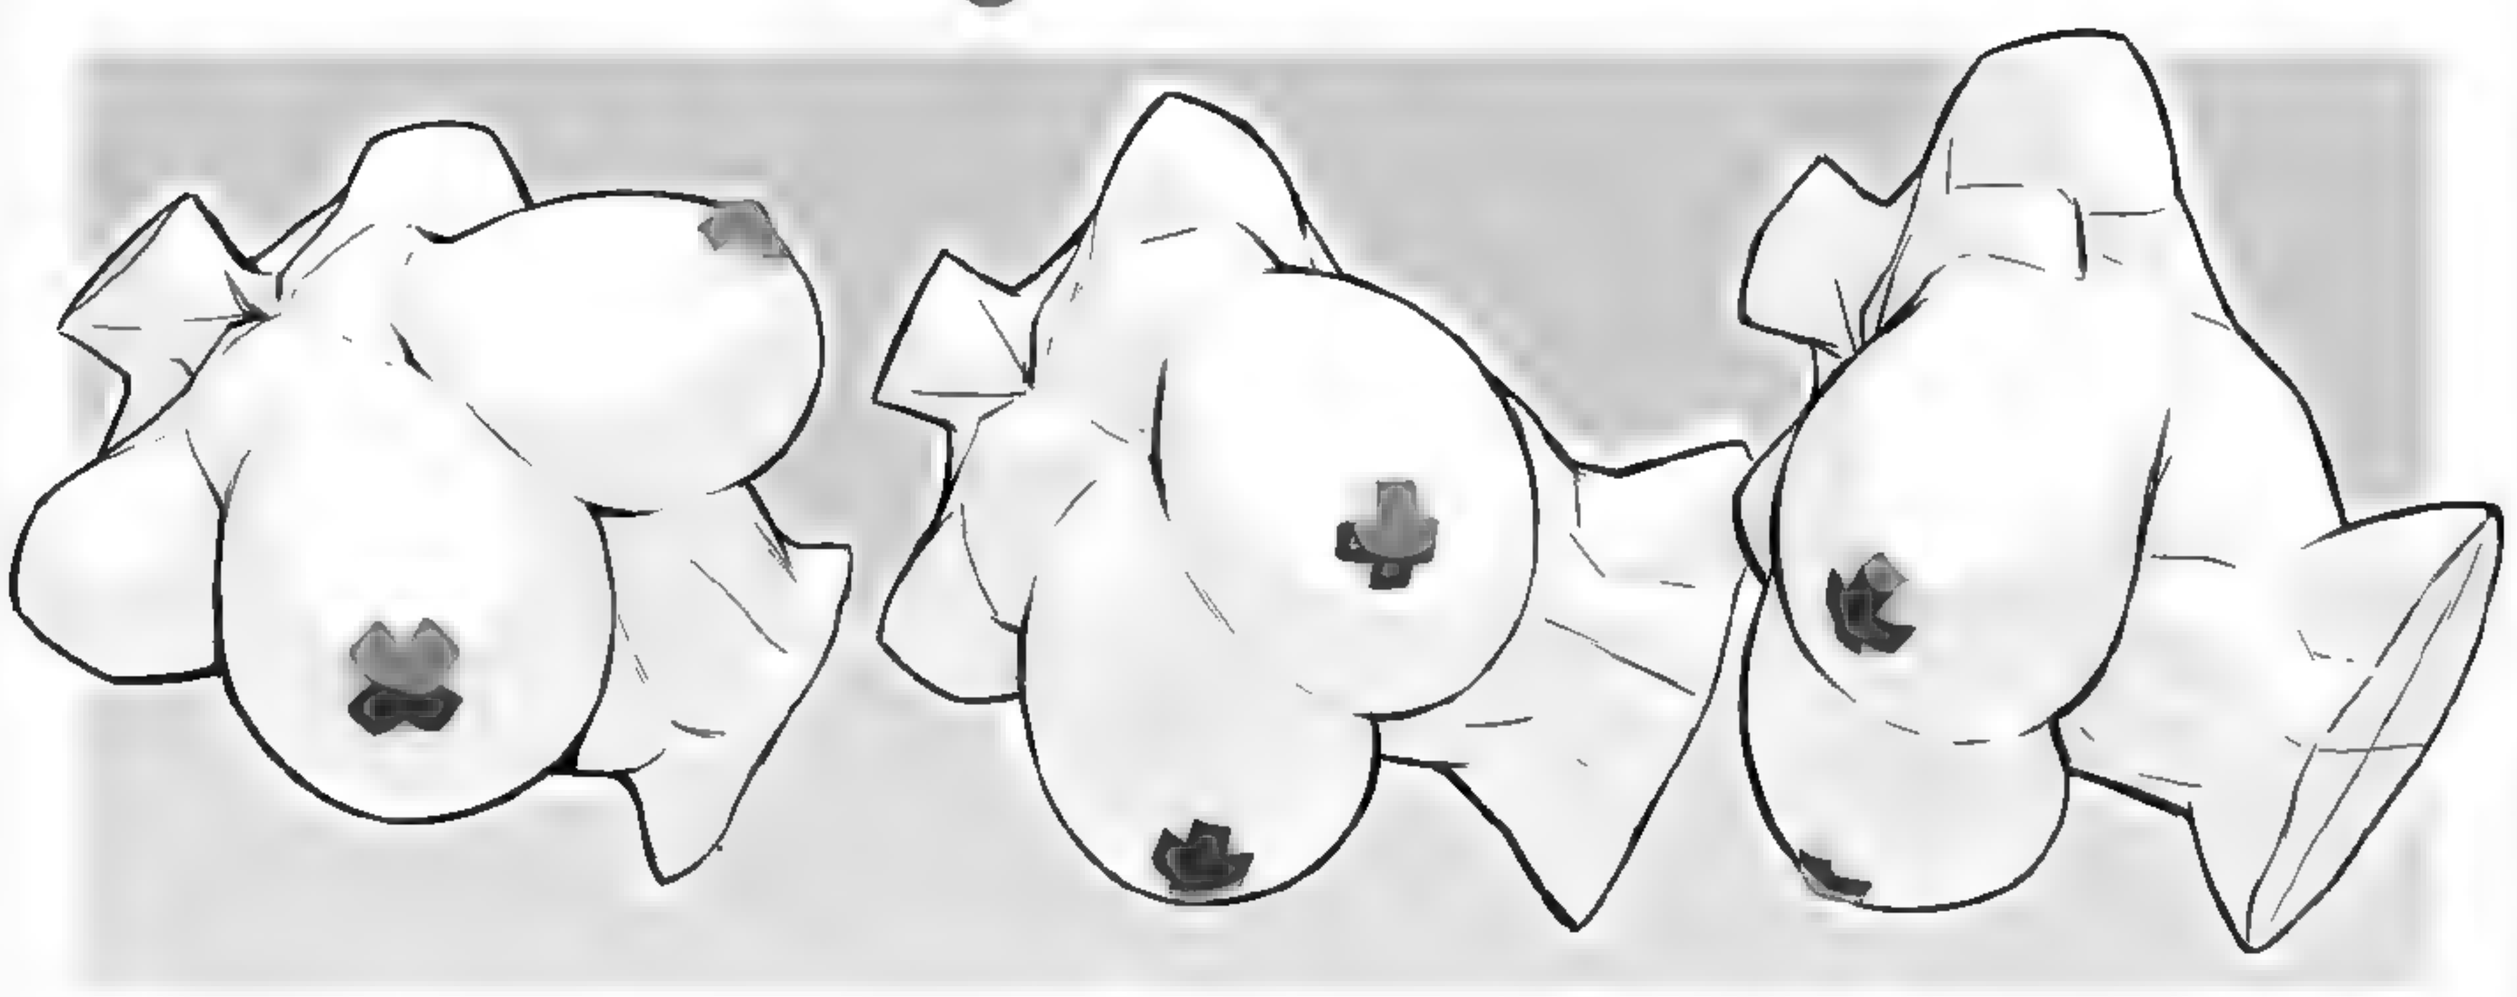
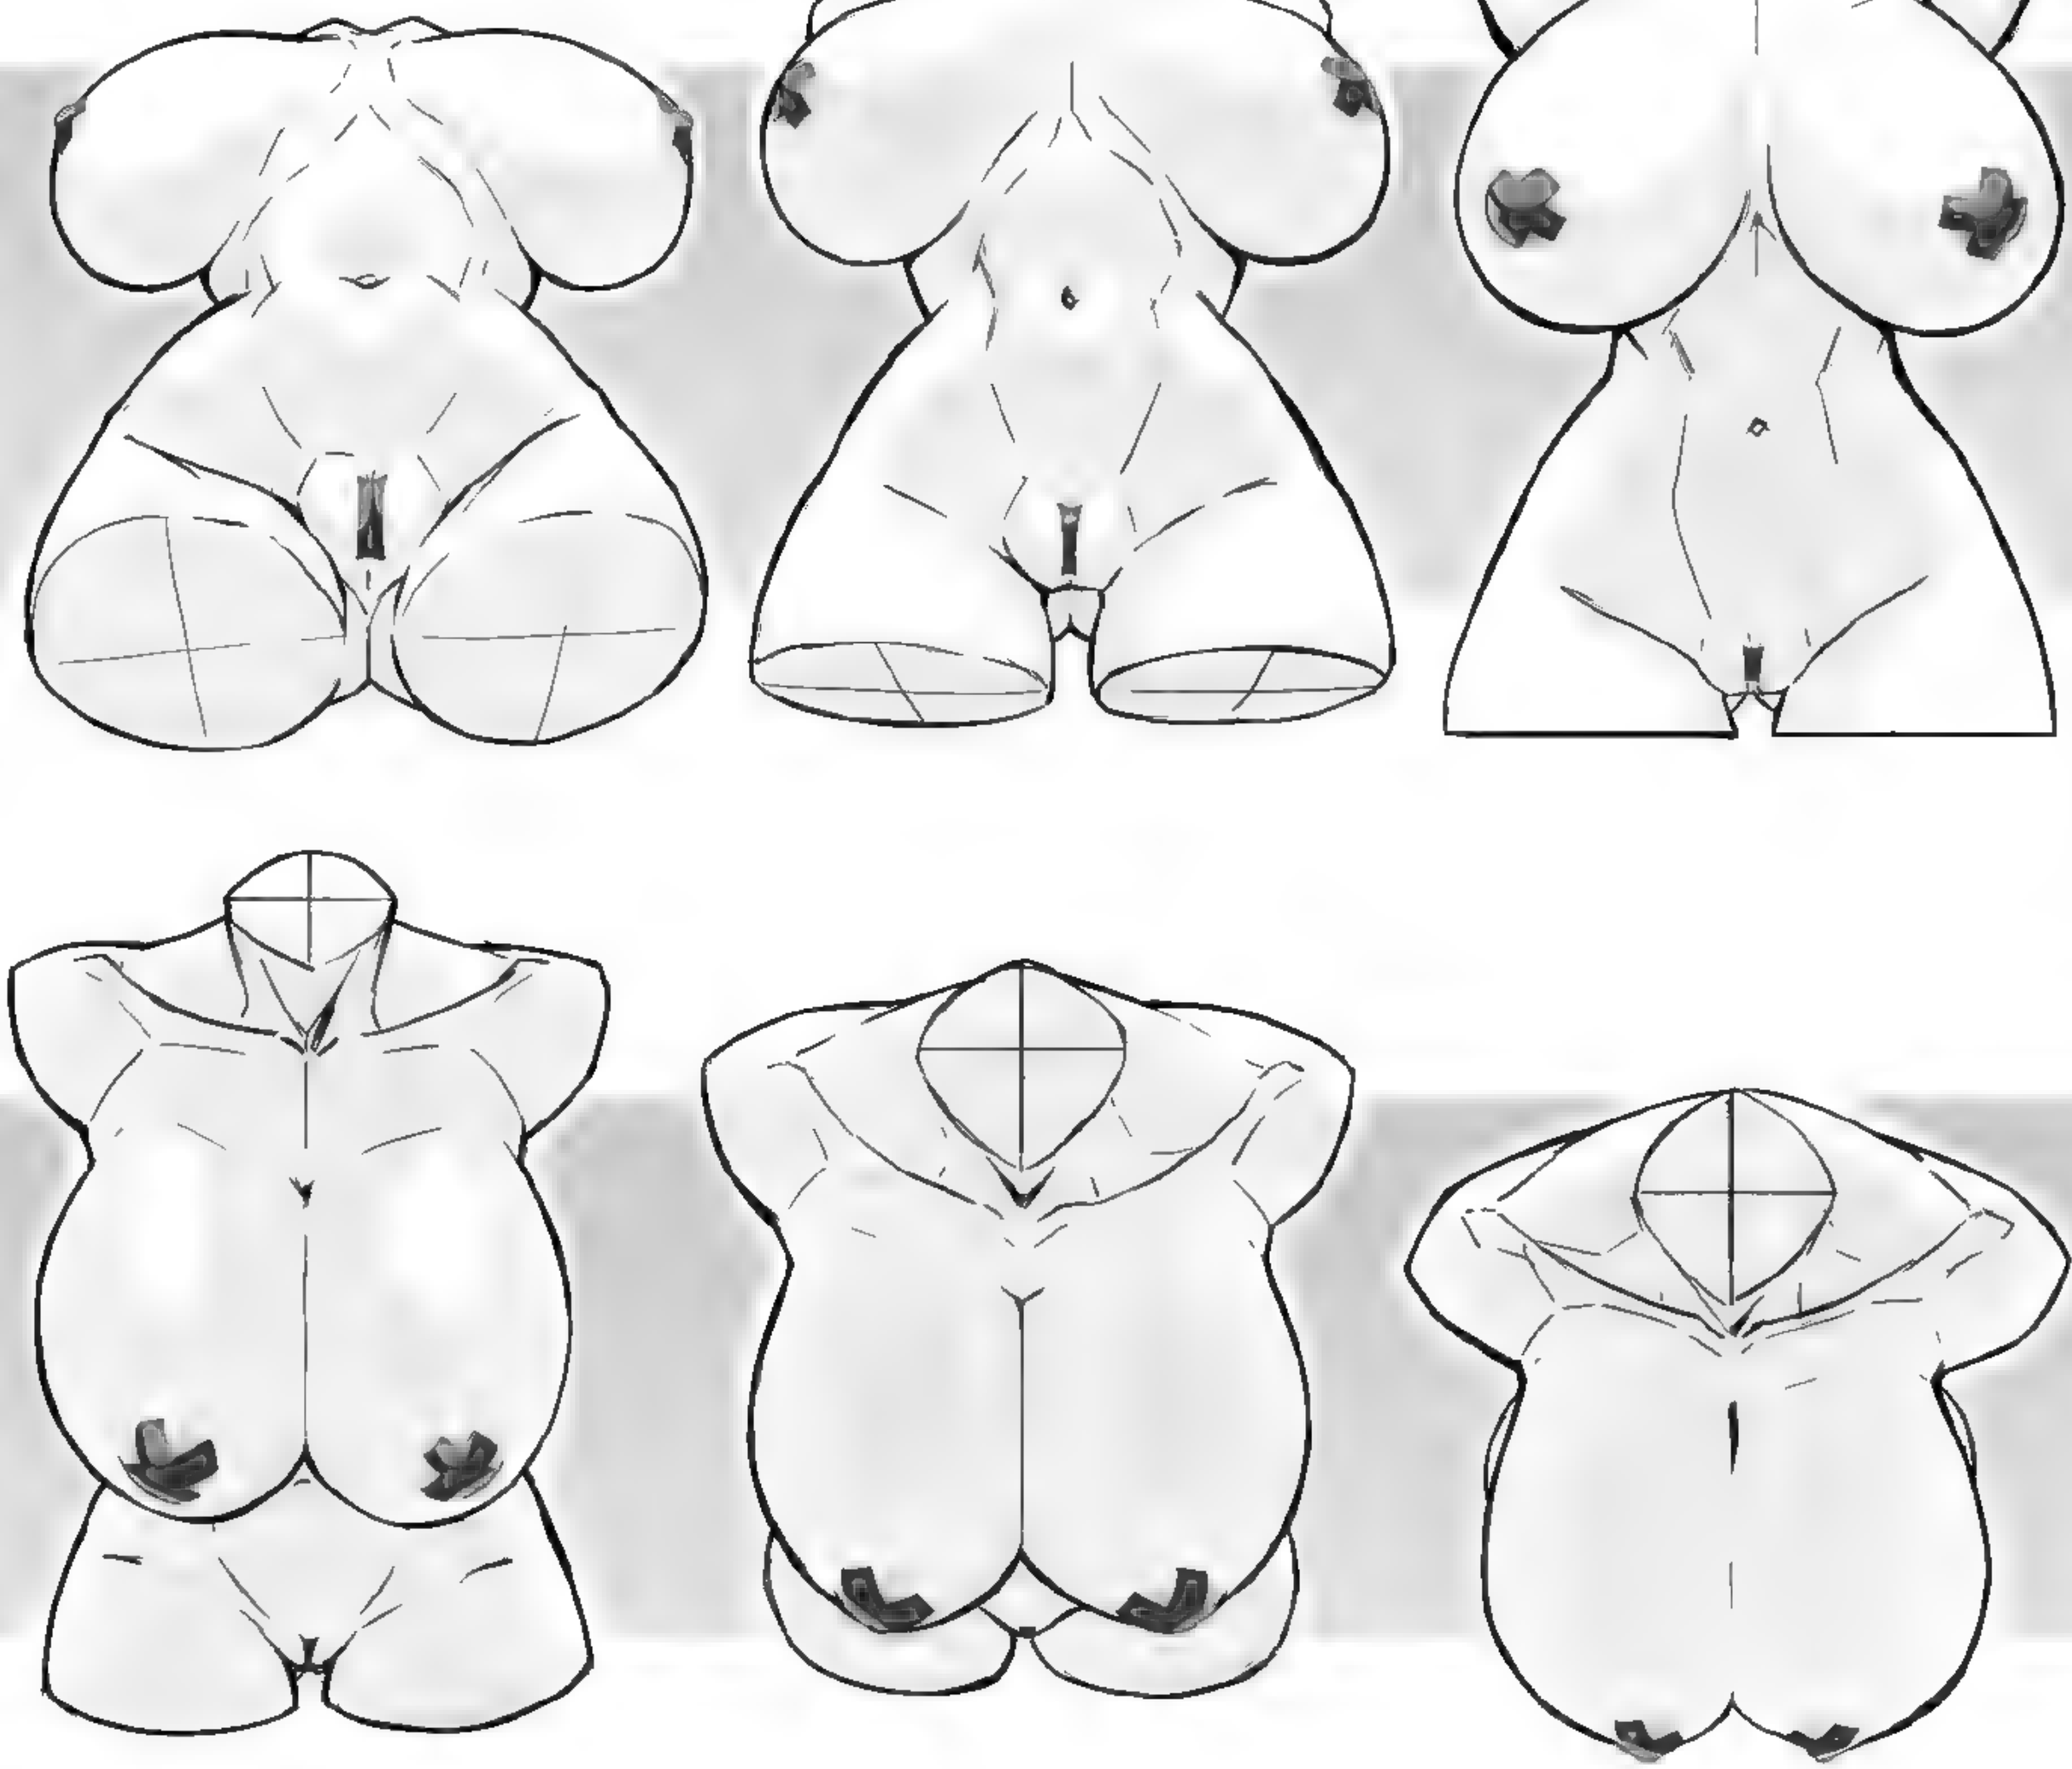
EVERYTHING WITH DIFFERENT CHARACTERS.

PATREON | IGGI_ART



PATREON | IGGI_ART



The main thing is to always remember that boobs are a pair of very soft balls that just hang in bags of skin on the torso for breasts, it does not matter how the torso is turned. They always hang down

PATREON | IGGI_ART

a muscle bulges on top of the torso

there is no such muscle from the bottom of the torso, so the transition to the chest is slightly different

Swollen halos also enhance the character's overall sense of fertility.

This part can change size when excited.

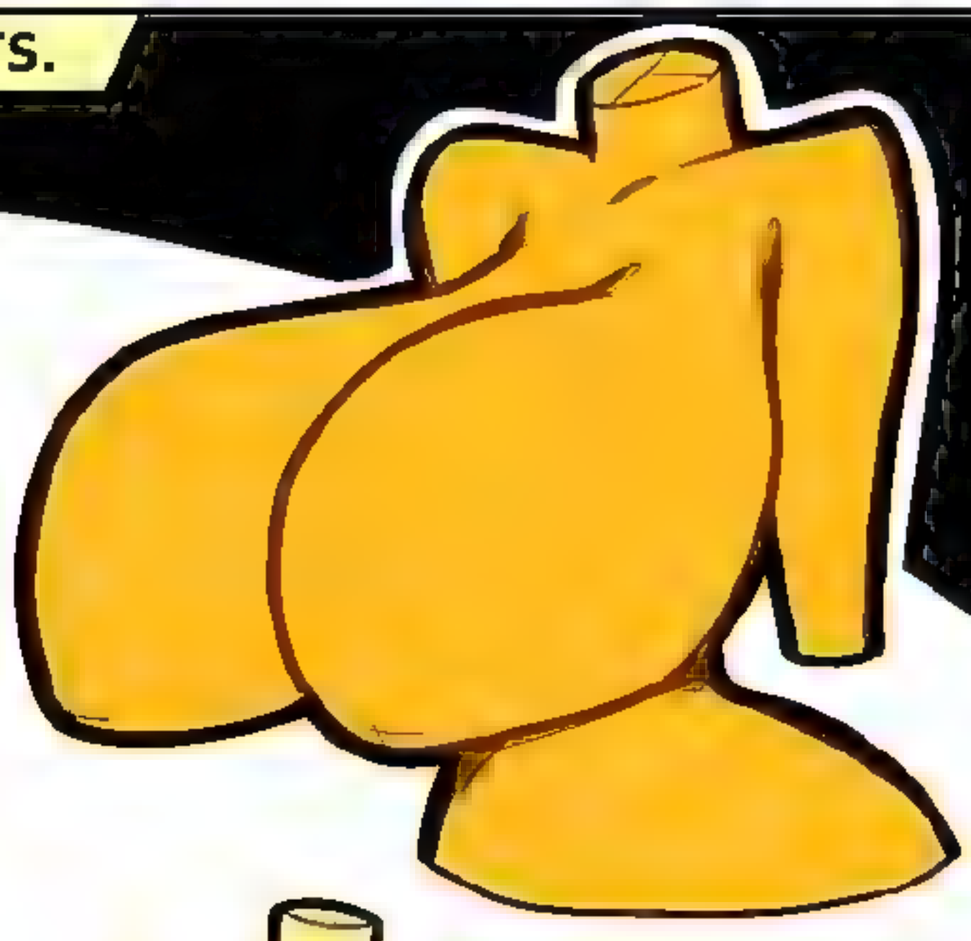
Such realistic matte nipples can add a kinder character, maternal, not vulgar, natural.

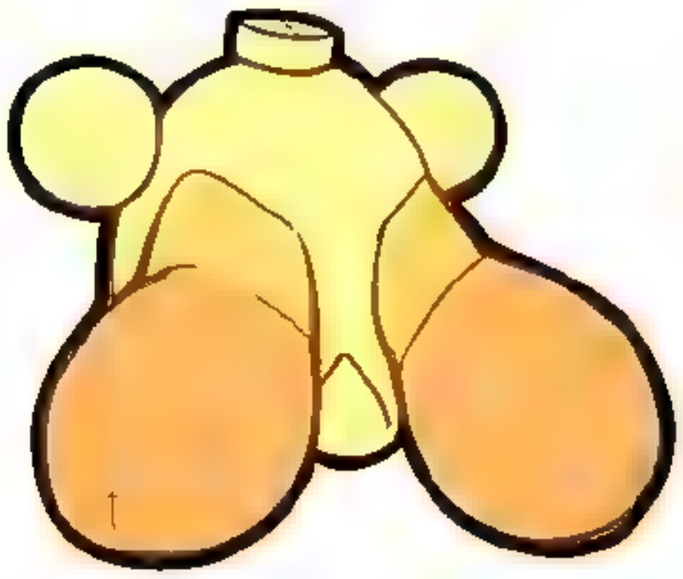
Small details, glare, pronounced nipple holes, humidity can make the erotic side of a character a fairly significant part of her personality.

SHAPE OF BREASTS.

Small but rounded can show youth.

When they are far apart, they are associated with something maternal.





The personality (size and shape) of the breasts can often match the rest of the body style.

In a muscular body, the breasts can be quite dense/spherical and directed in different directions.

In a soft body, they may be more teardrop-shaped and gently hanging (they may be pulled down low).

For a thin/slender body, they can be of medium or natural size.

"Puppy energy"/ Bouncy energy. Happy eroticism.

Kind calmness. Tired eroticism.

soft boobs have smoother shape transitions and they look like drops

a toned body has thin skin and this makes the breasts rounder trained muscles make the breasts stick out to the sides and dense characters have thin muscles and breasts hanging down in a calm state, the breasts are directed in different directions. But the more the torso is turned sideways, the more the breasts are directed in one direction

I also often make the shape of the pussy as a face and nipples in accordance with the inner emotions of the character.

For example, in a modest or kind character, it will be very small and neat, while in a more vulgar or confident one, it will be more swollen and with a larger hole.

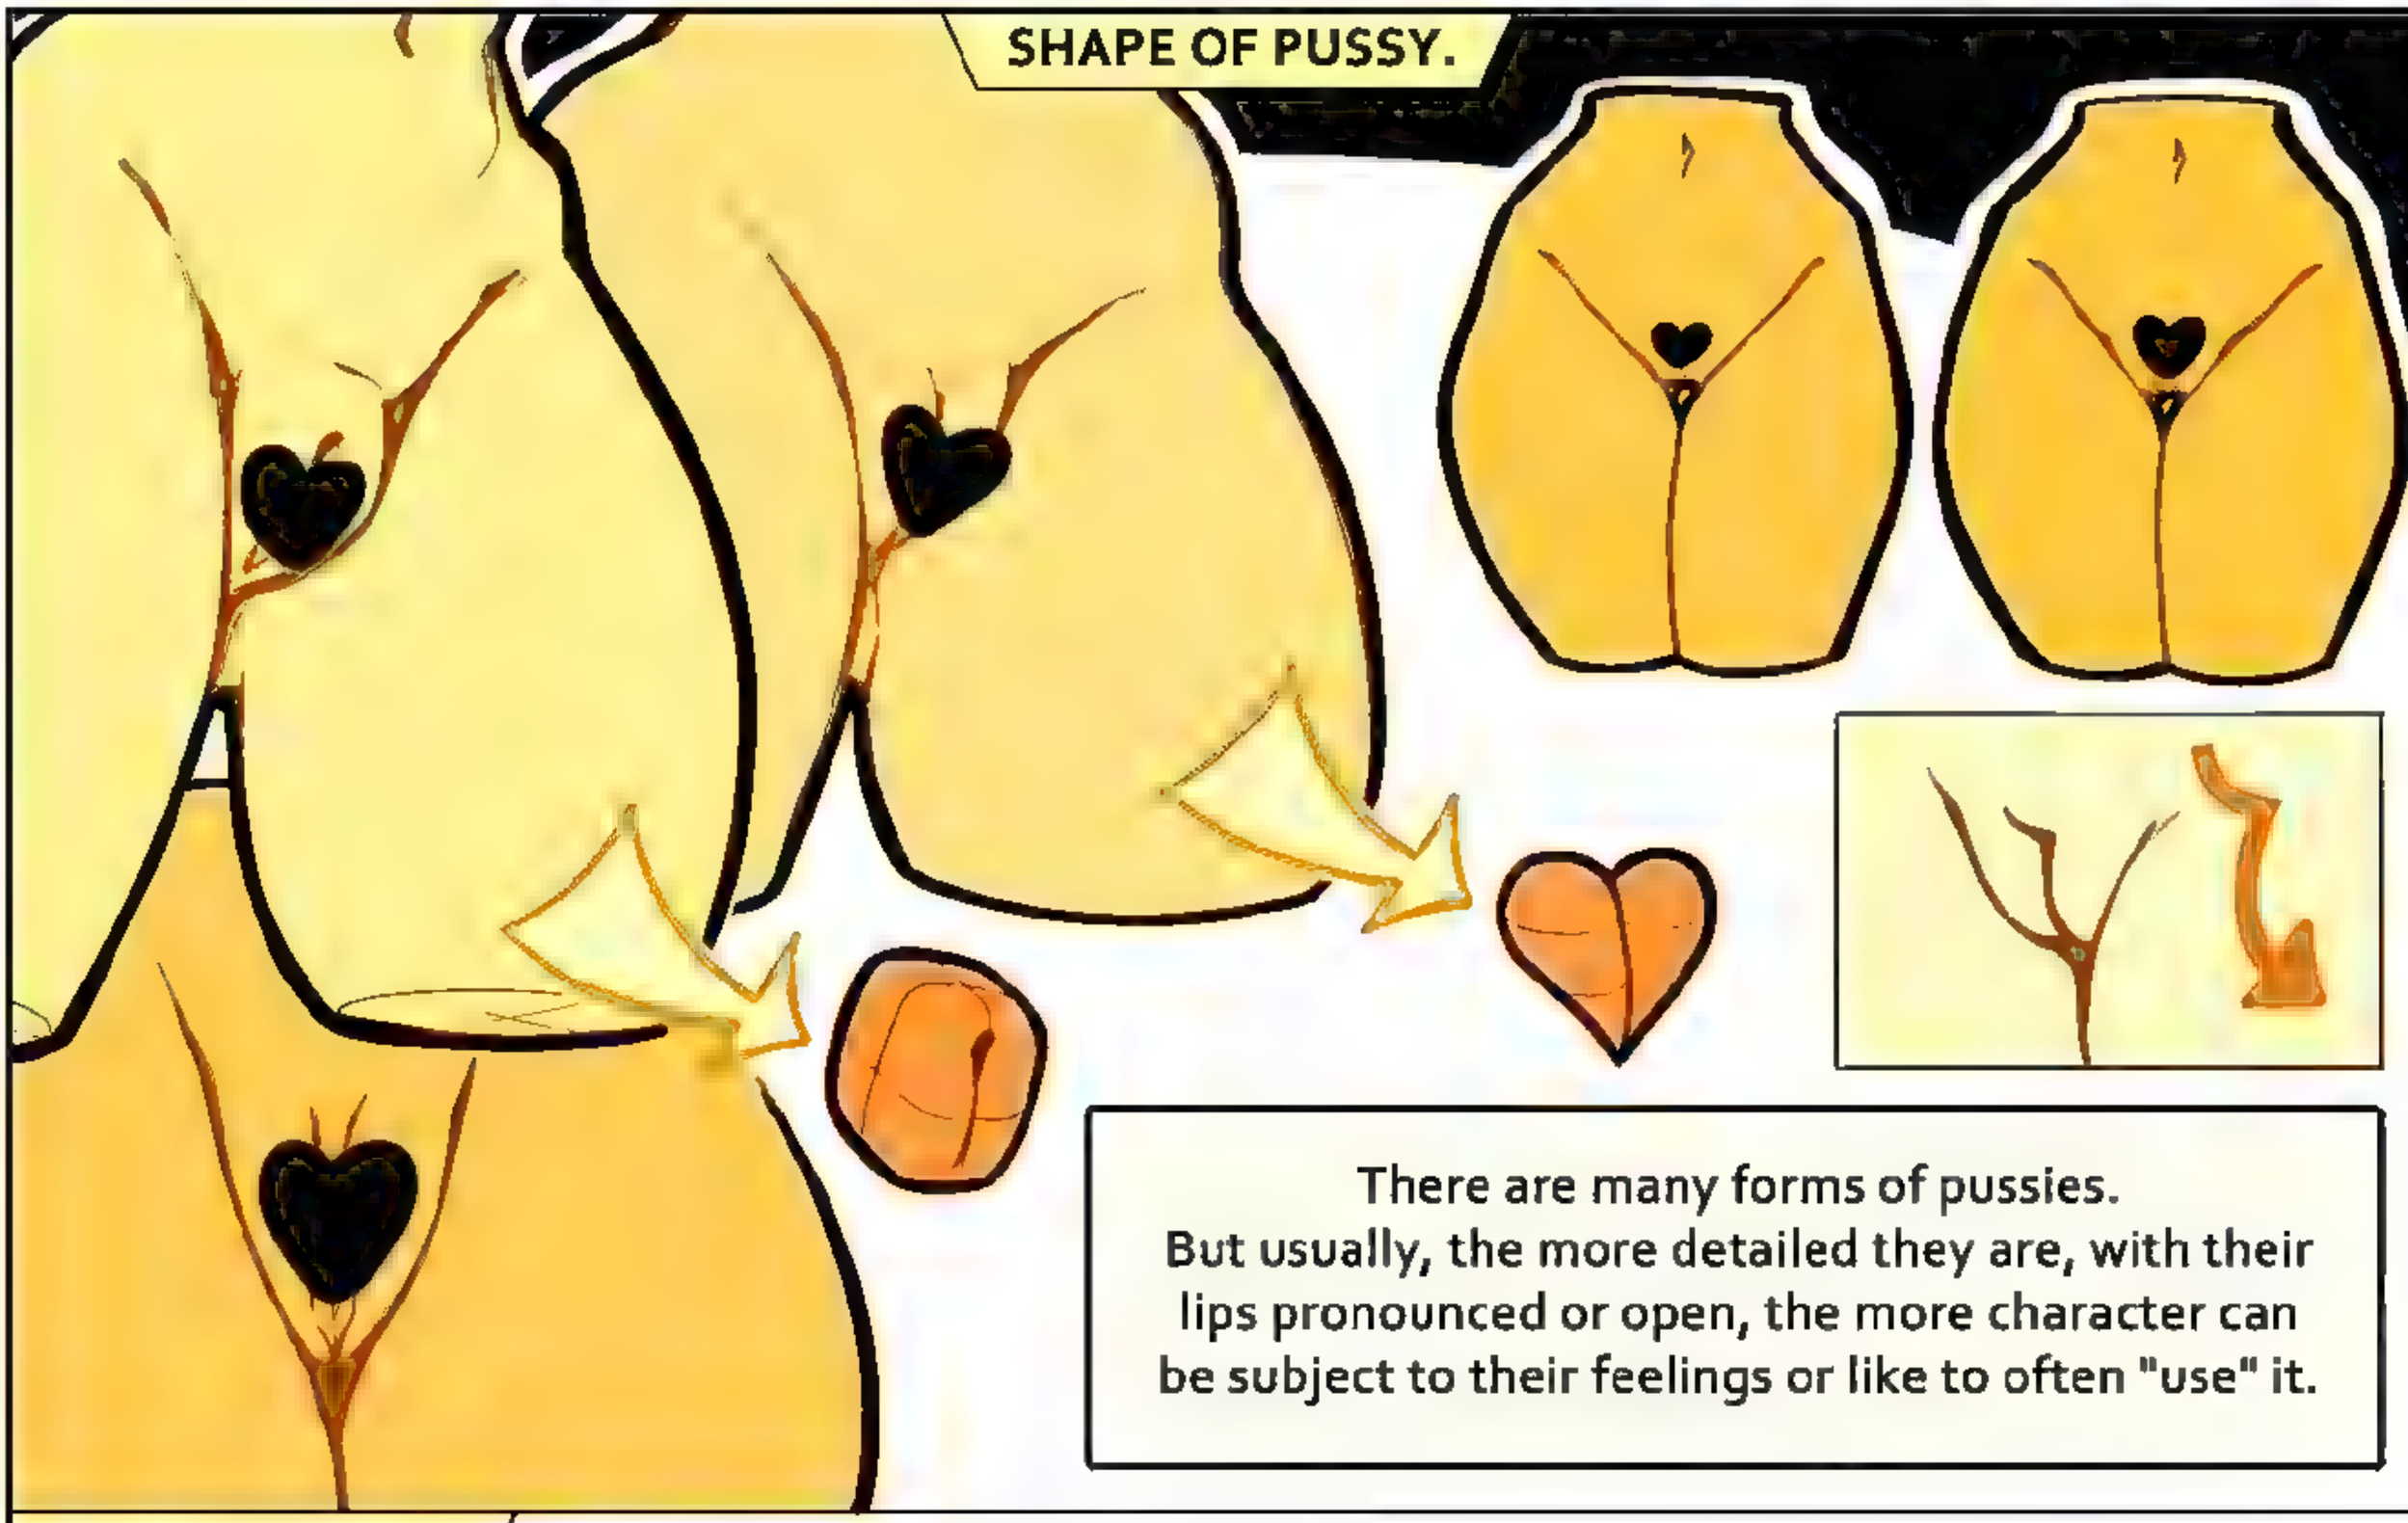
But it can be done the other way around.

For example, a pure character may have a very developed contrast, while a combat character may have a rather modest/feminine slit.

The more obtuse the angle of these folds, the more suitable it is for an inactive or thick character.
At the same time, the width of the pelvis is quite wide.

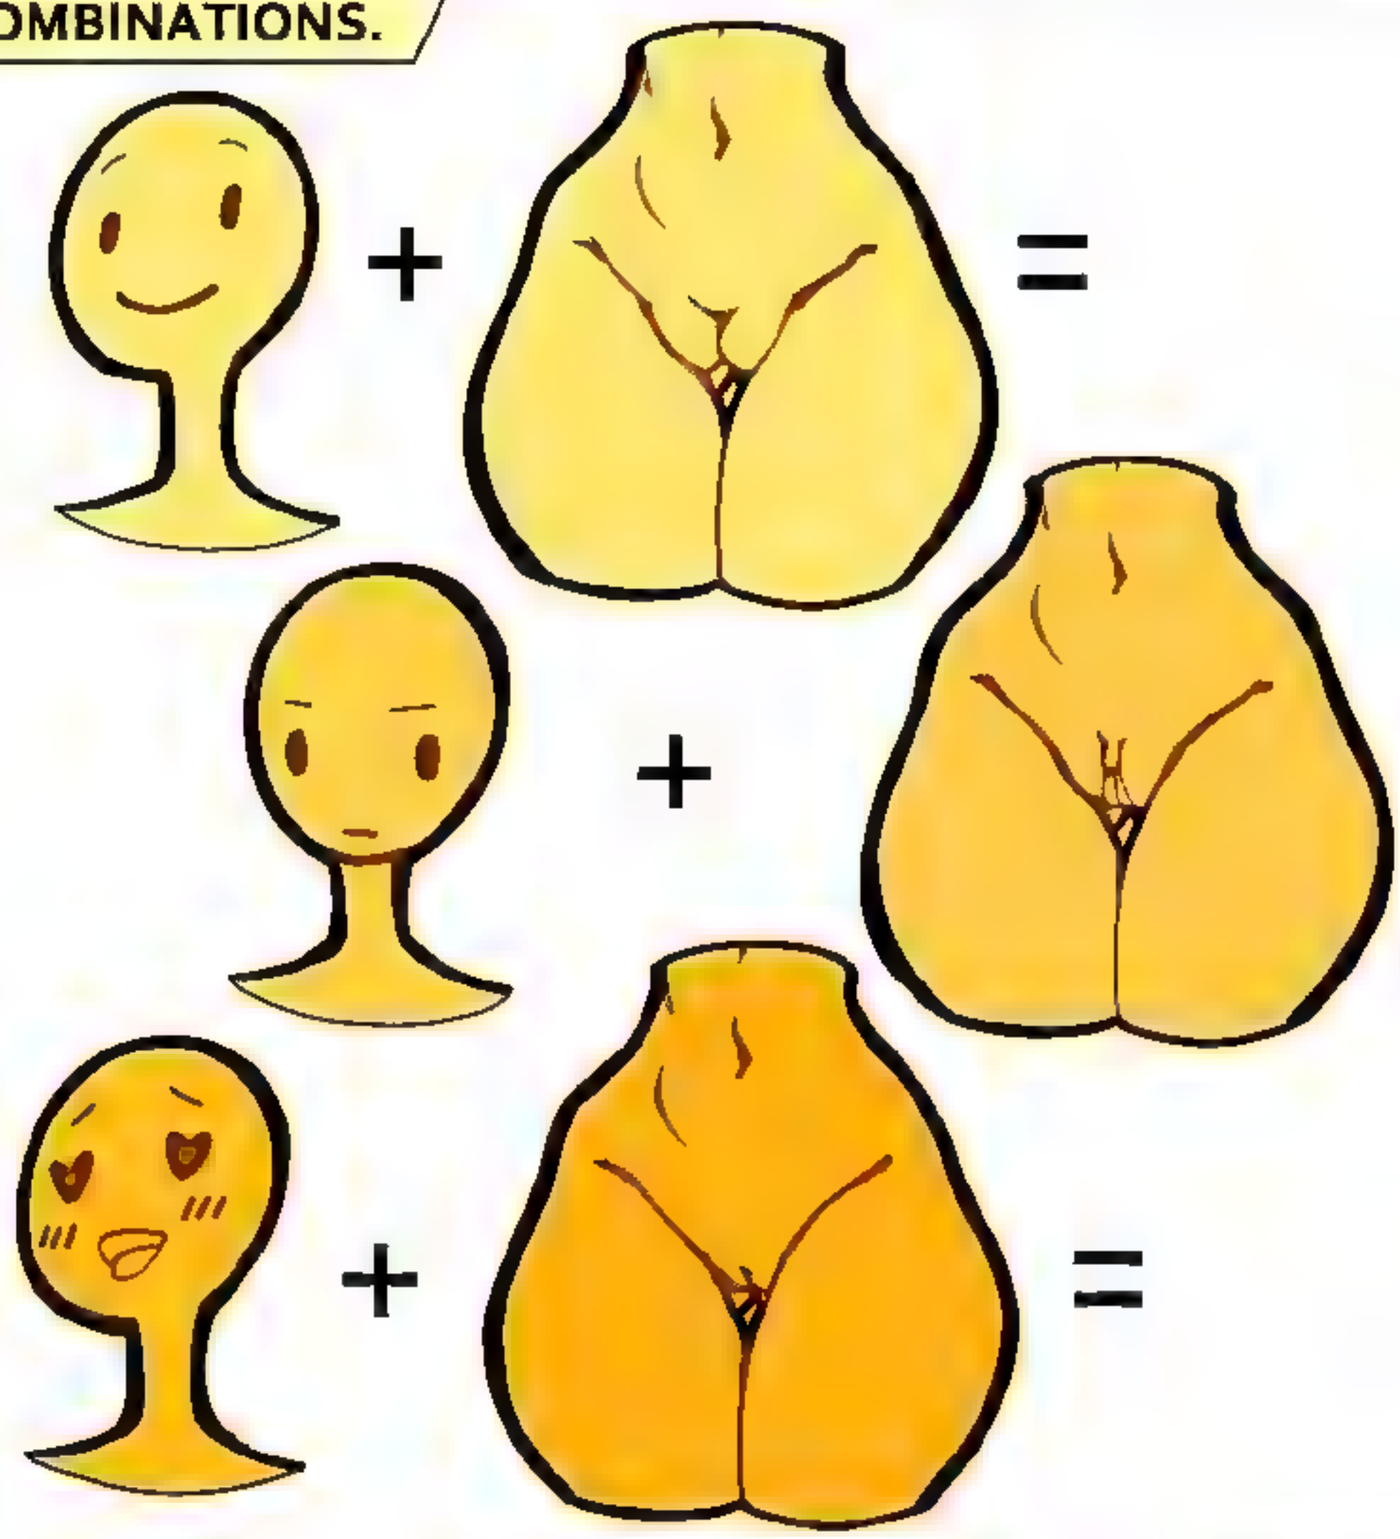
The sharper the angle of these folds, the more suitable it is for athletic or agile characters.
At the same time, the width of the pelvis is narrow, but the hips can still be large.

SHAPE OF PUSSY.



There are many forms of pussies.
But usually, the more detailed they are, with their lips pronounced or open, the more character can be subject to their feelings or like to often "use" it.

COMBINATIONS.



She is quite positive and has a lot of sexual energy (big swollen cheeks), but this is without vulgar coloring (lips are hidden).

She's serious here, but her pussy is more horny.
She may approaches the Tsundera.

The face and body are very fertile/vulgar, but the pussy is disproportionately (contrastingly) small.
There may be a fragile femininity behind this excessive eroticism.

For a visually large bust, you can also just squeeze the ribs,
shoulders, and neck.

In some cases, if you add large breasts to already voluminous figure, the design may turn out to be too heavy for your idea.

(3rd example)

A body with volumes of different widths looks more dynamic/interesting.

4 - The shoulders and chest are narrower than the pelvis and hips.

5 - Shoulders, chest, and hips are about the same width and look static.

6 - The shoulders and chest are quite wide relative to the pelvis and hips.

MASS DISTRIBUTION.

If the mass at the top or bottom of the figure seems to you overloaded, then you can compensate by adding mass
(volume) on the opposite side.

7 - Something that is wider or similar to the width of the hips can be added on top.
(big hairstyle, outfit, wings, etc.)

8 - The wide top can be easily compensate by a downward-flaring cape, outfit, or hair.

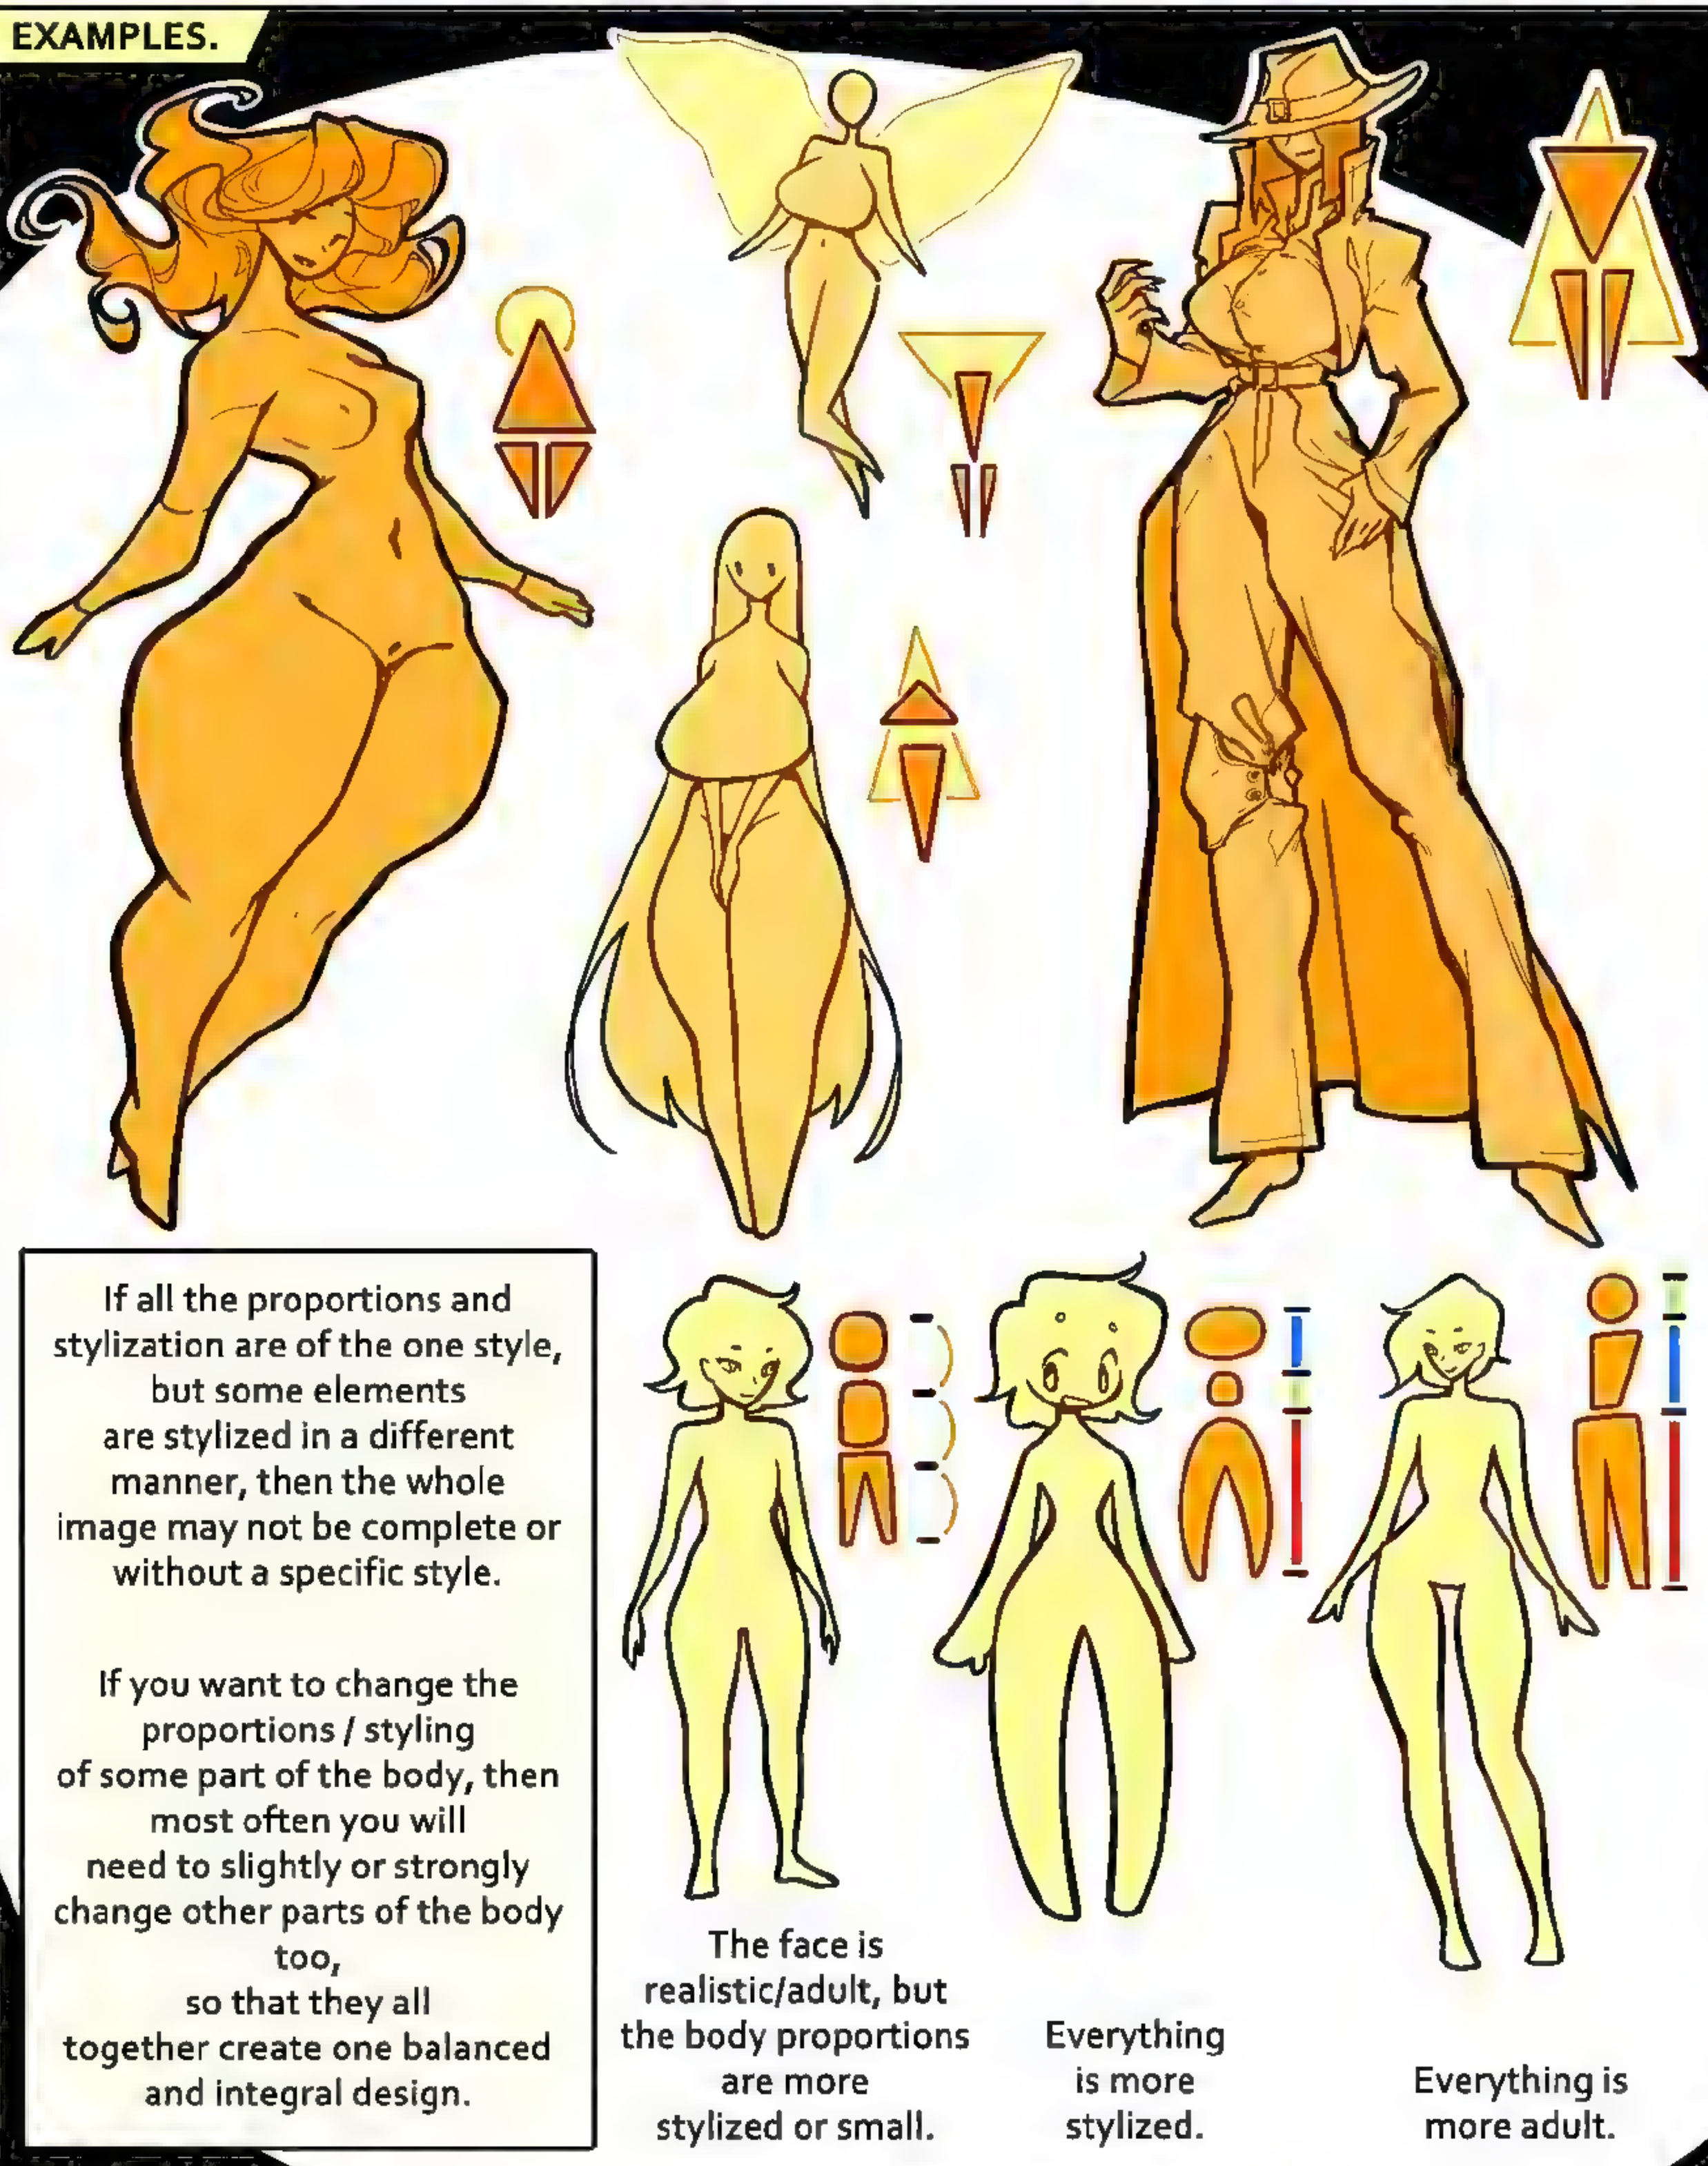
EXAMPLES.



If all the proportions and stylization are of the one style, but some elements are stylized in a different manner, then the whole image may not be complete or without a specific style.

If you want to change the proportions / styling of some part of the body, then most often you will need to slightly or strongly change other parts of the body too, so that they all together create one balanced and integral design.

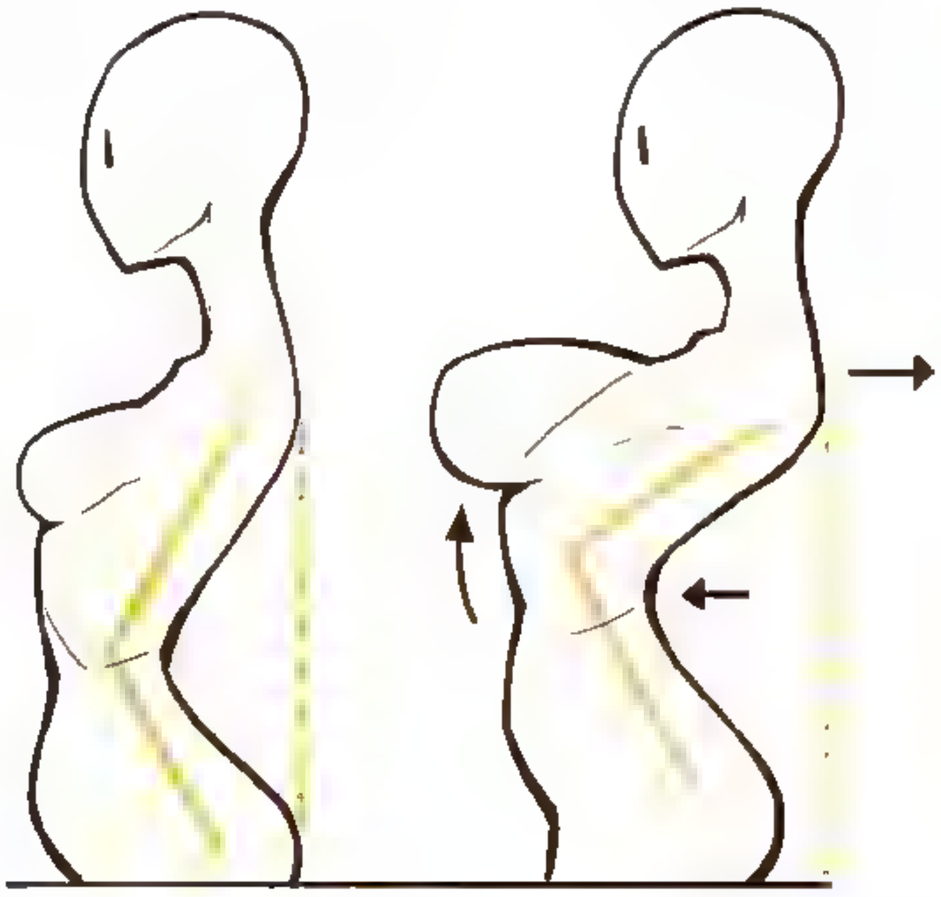
The face is realistic/adult, but the body proportions are more stylized or small.

Everything is more stylized.

Everything is more adult.

The female pelvis is rotated at a larger angle than the male and this feature affects posture.

Women are characterized by a deflection in the lower back, and men have a slight stoop



Interesting fact :
The bigger the boobs, the stronger the deflection in the lower back and the chest is more backward.

Otherwise, because of boobs, the girl will fall forward

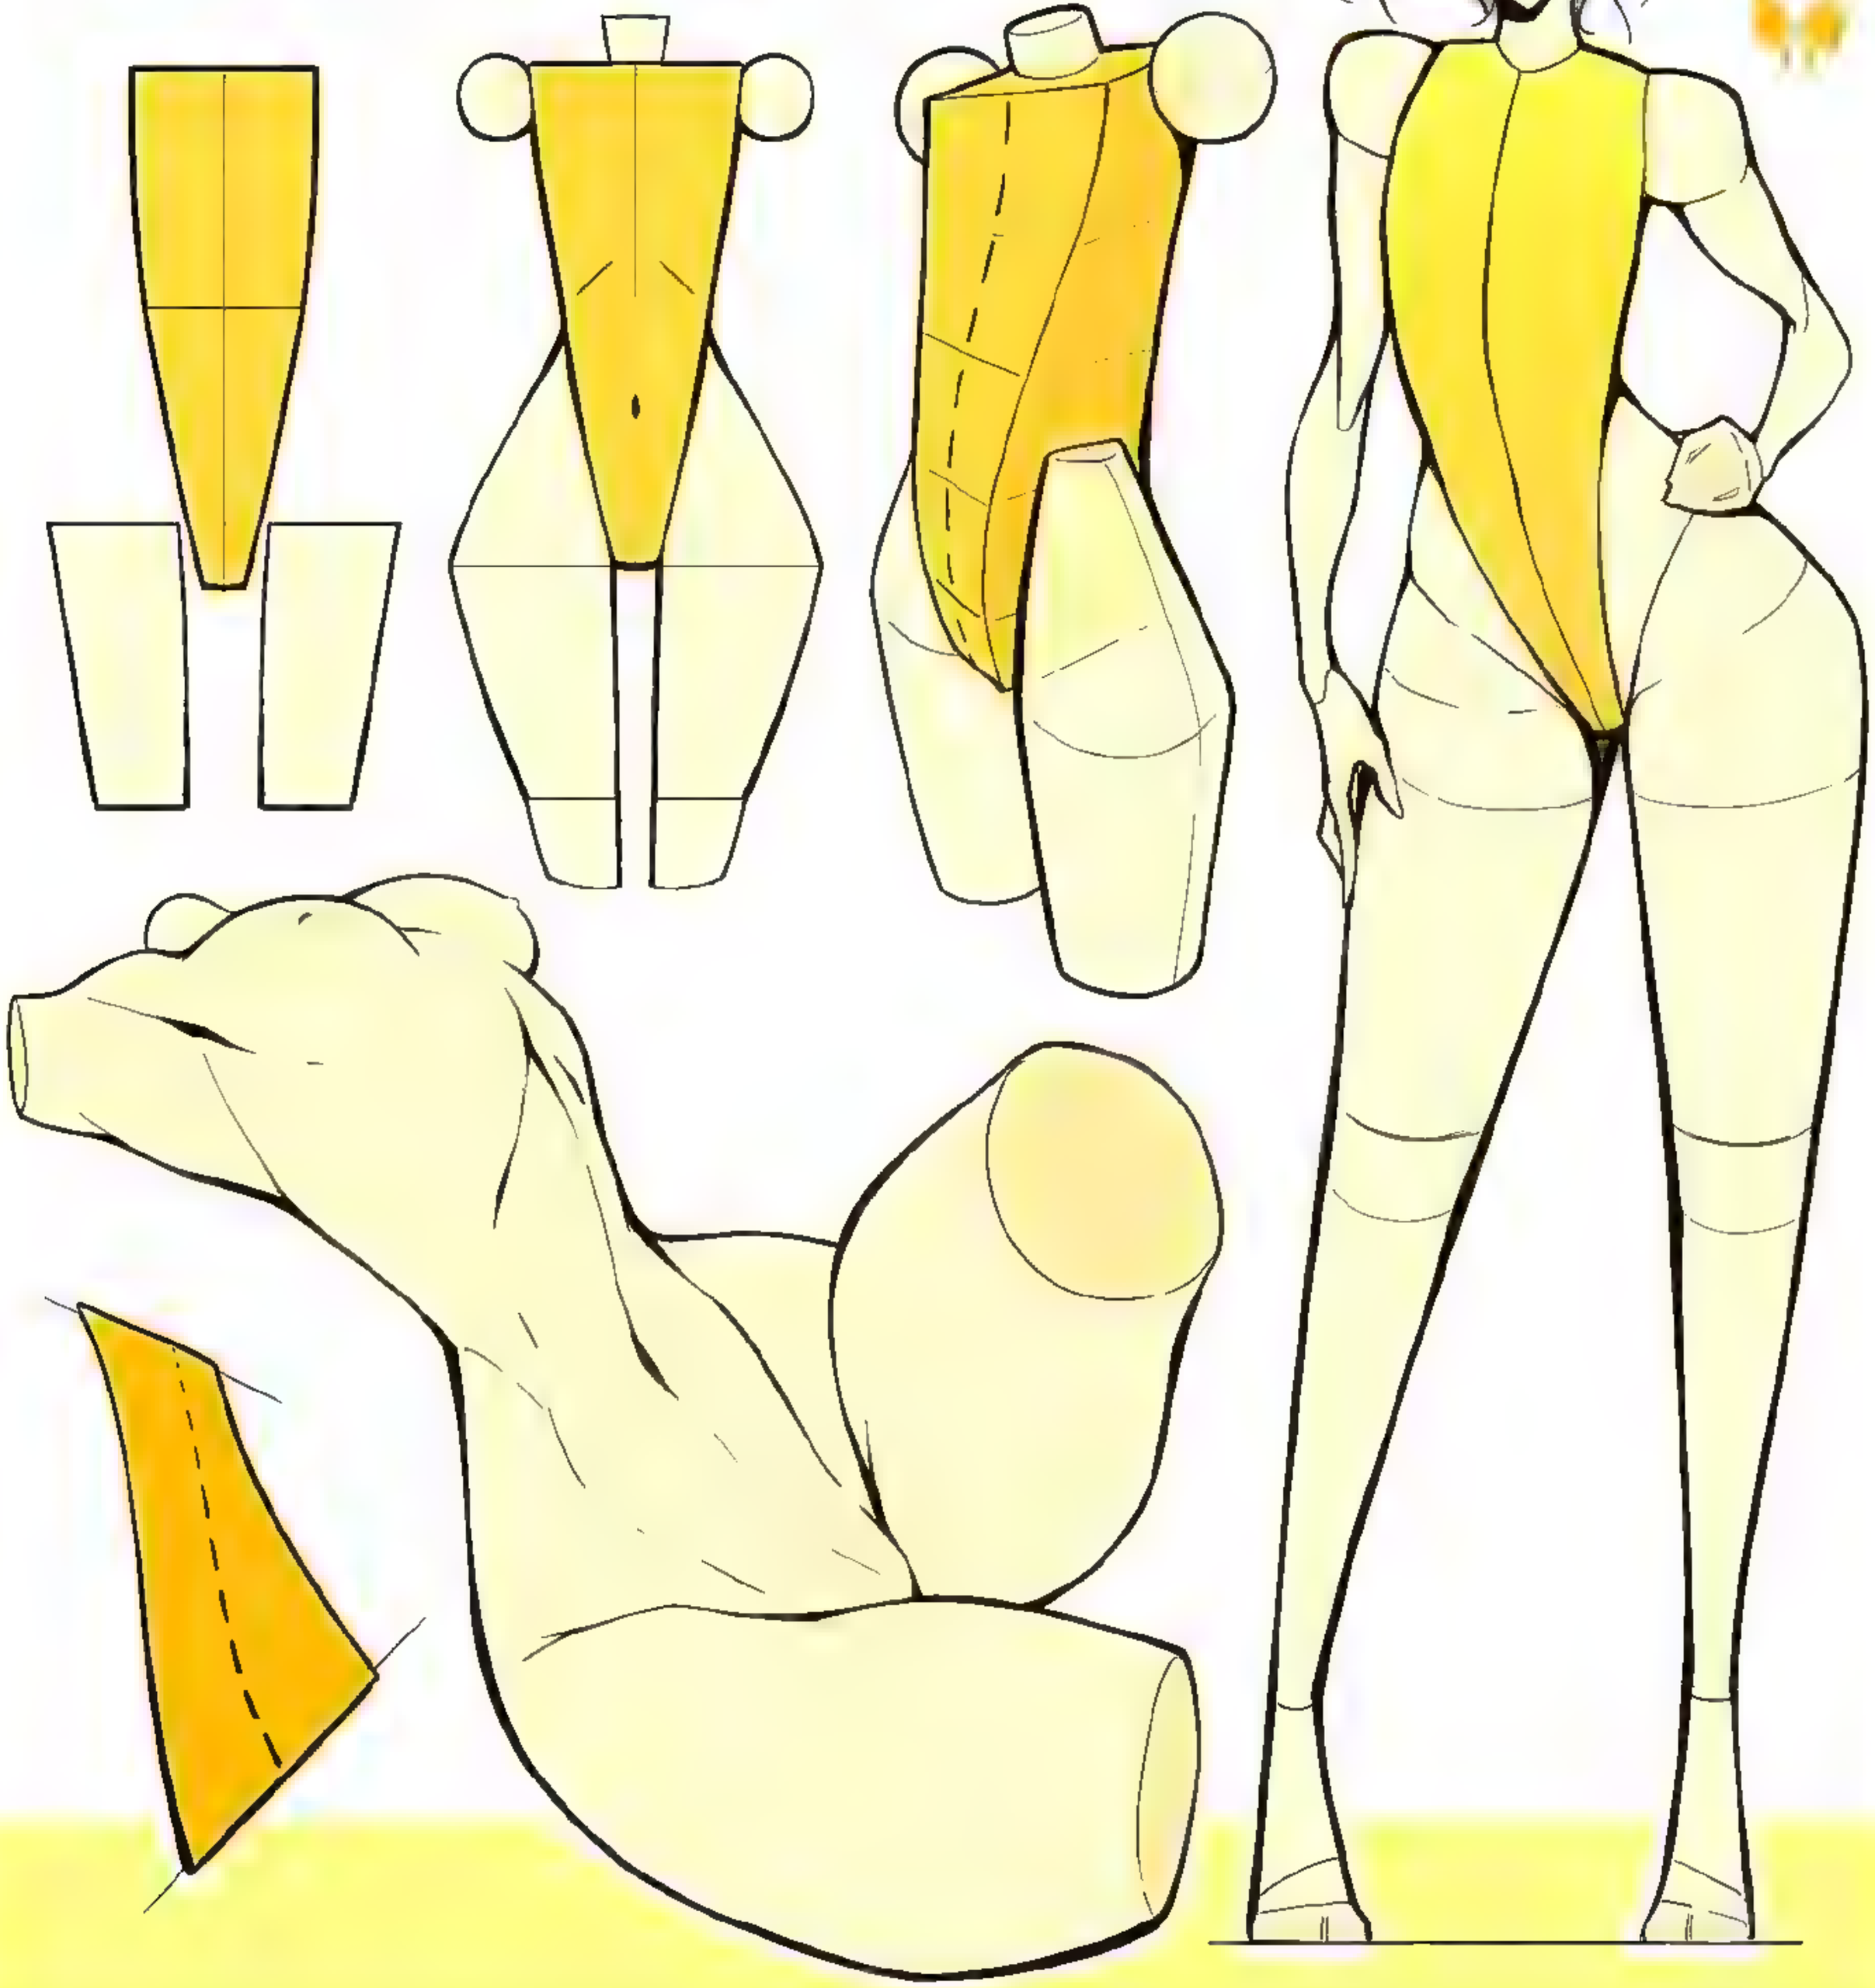
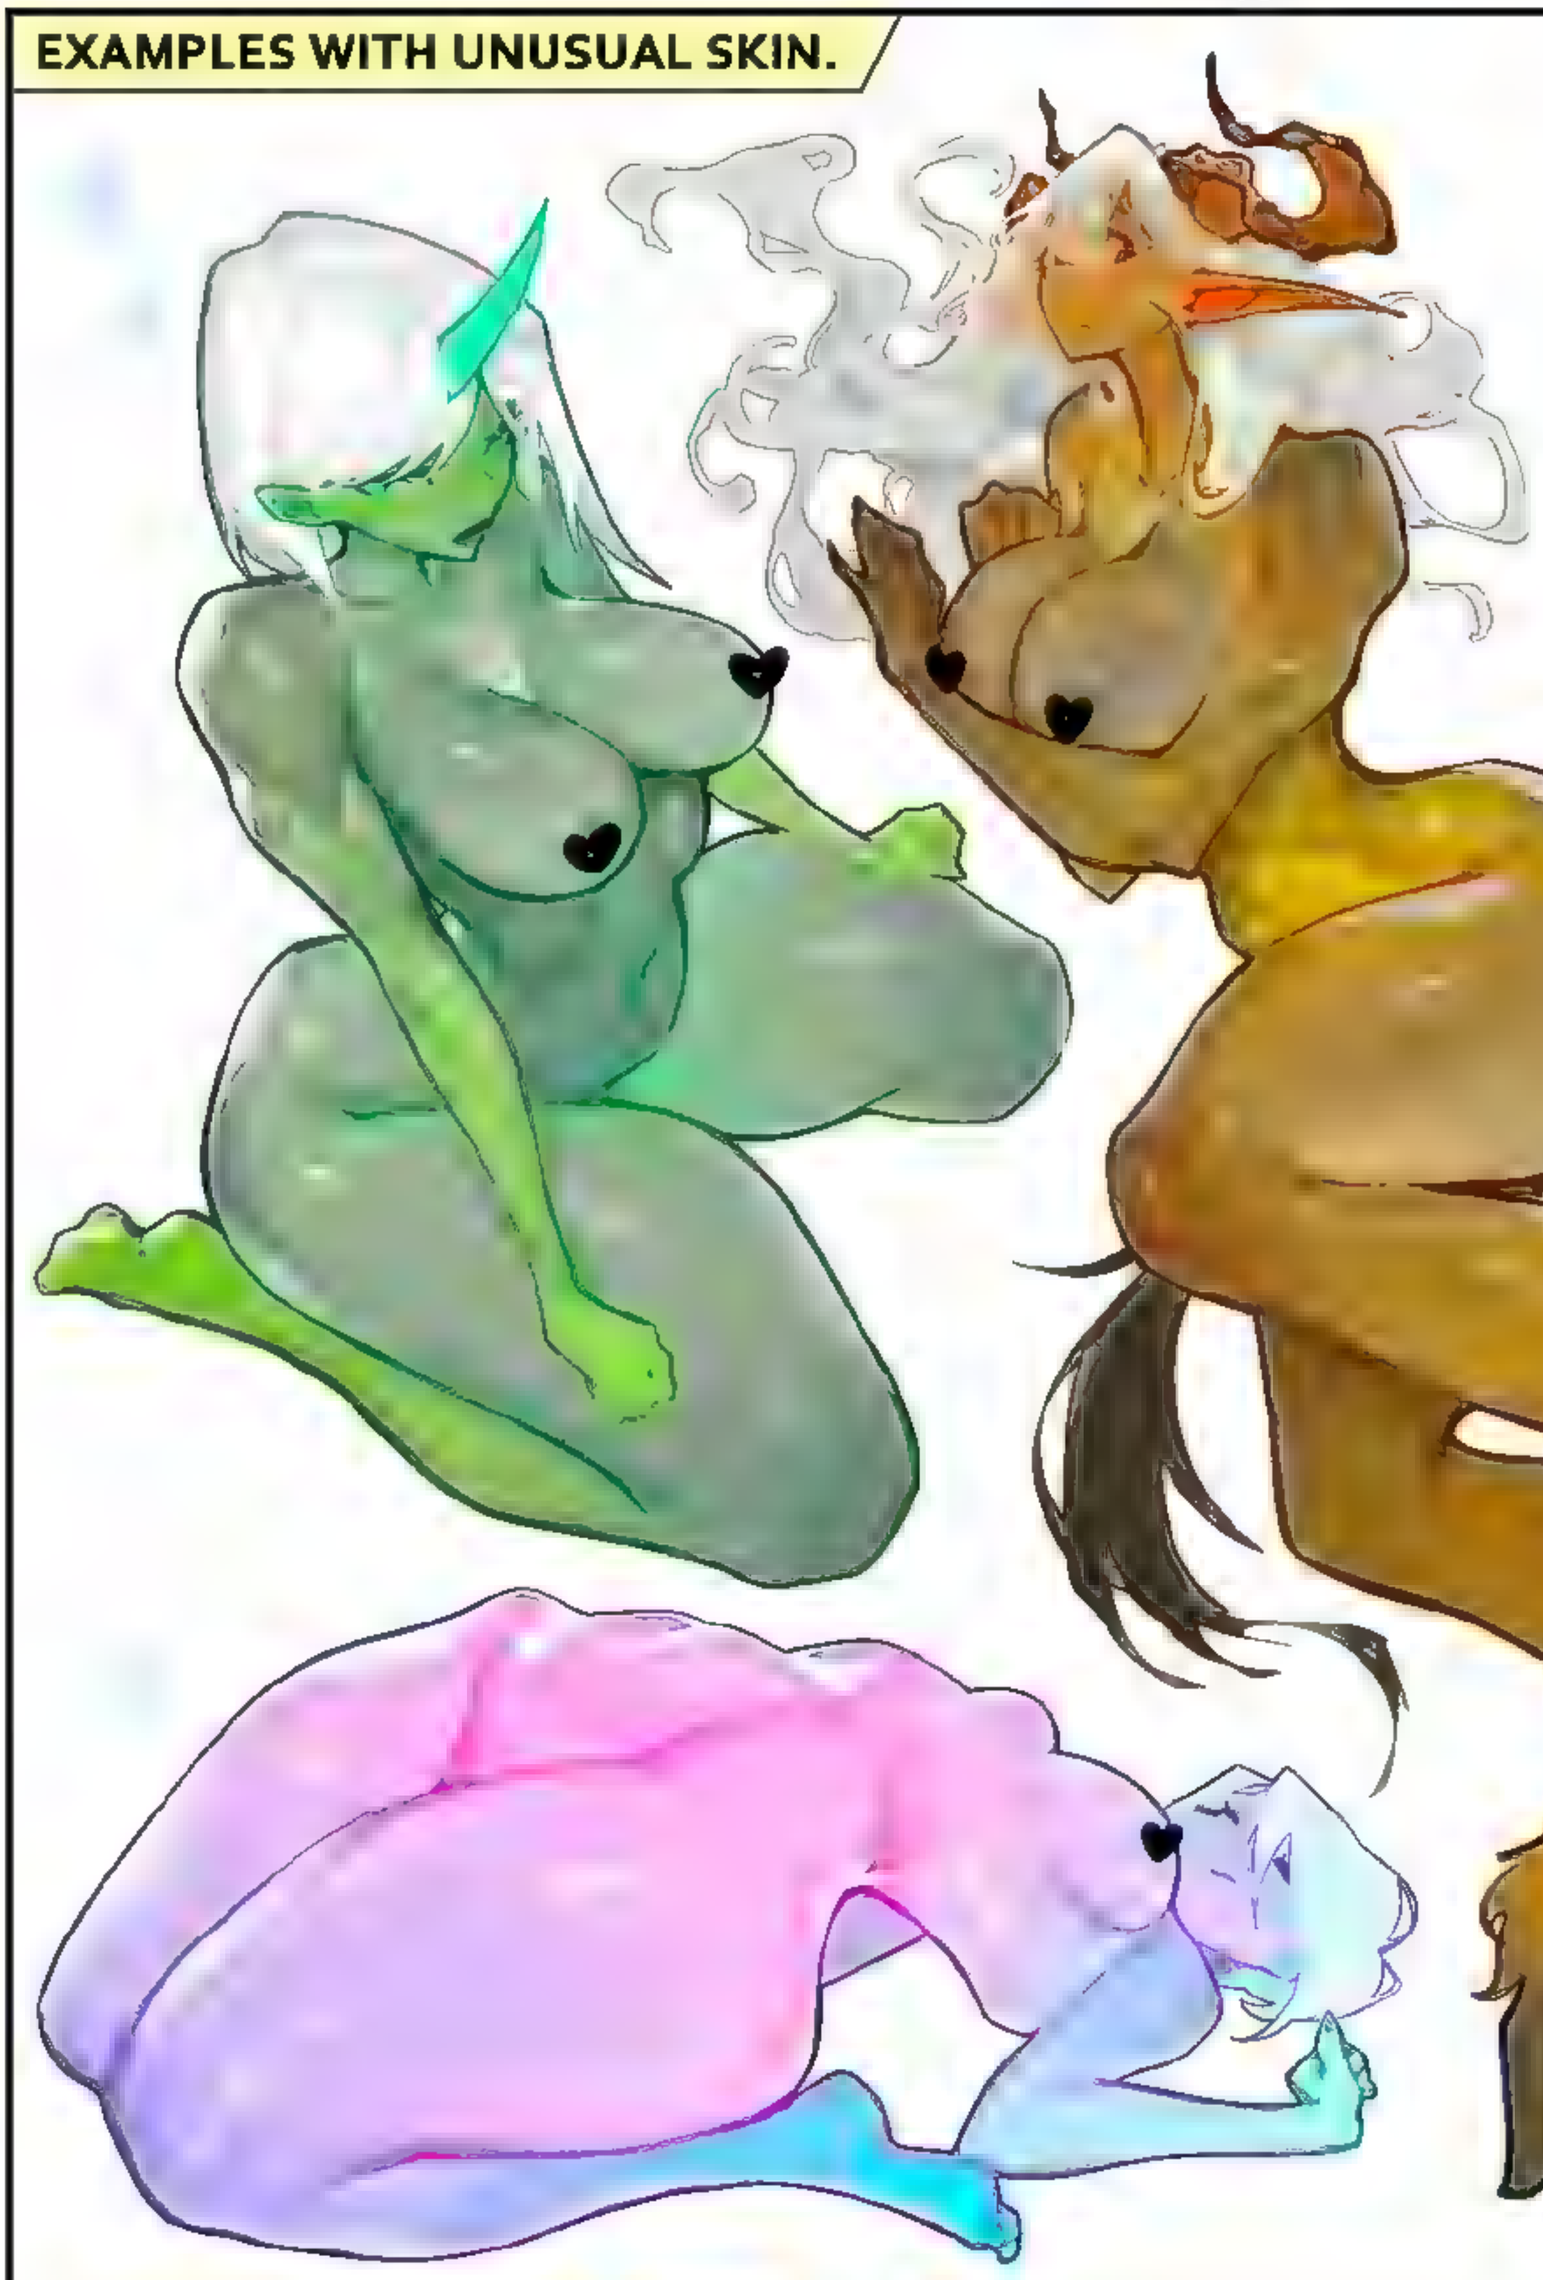
In men, the chest (ribs) is opened wide, and in women it is closed.
And because of this, they have a different belly shape.
57

The torso can be styled in different ways.

For example, as an elastic box with cylindrical legs and shoulders-circles.



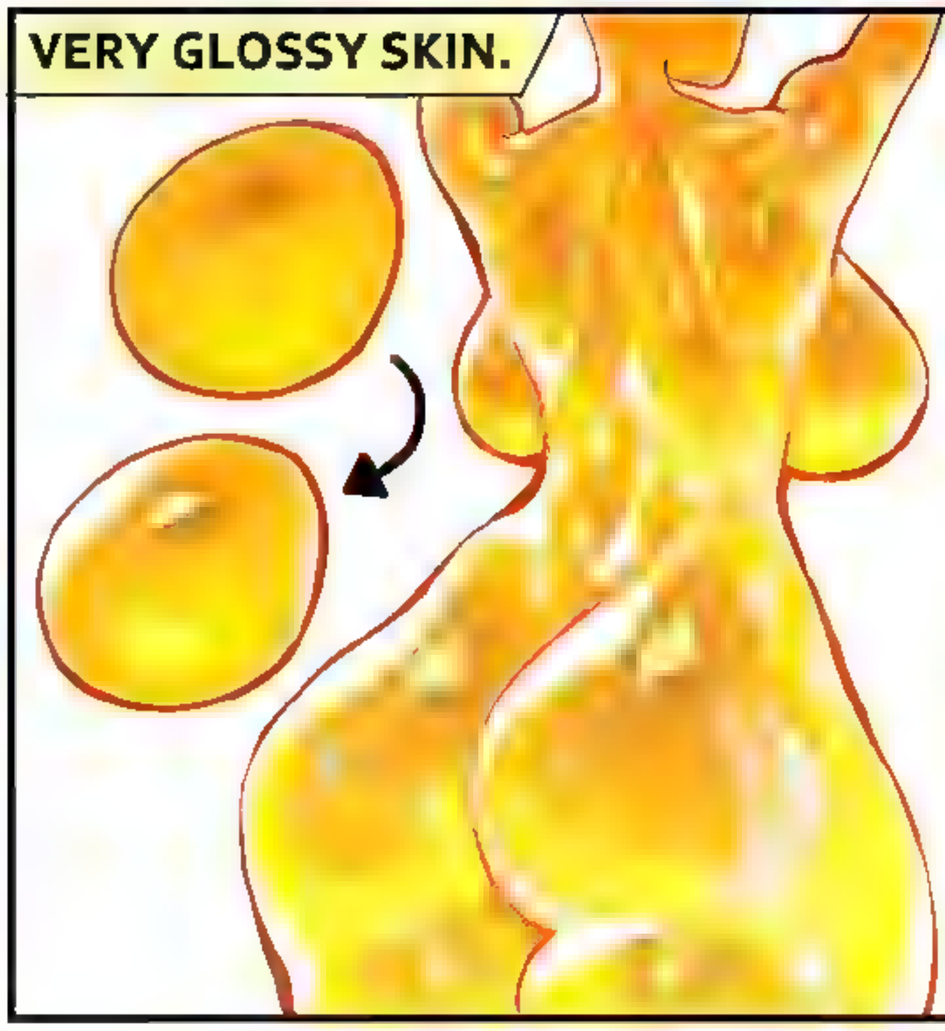
EXAMPLES WITH UNUSUAL SKIN.



You can also add unusual gradients to the edges of different parts of the body.
I like to make the characters' limbs almost glow.

The great advantage of fantasy characters is that you can experiment insanely with their designs.

VERY GLOSSY SKIN.



In such skin, you can make the edges of the bulges noticeably brighter than their centers.

So the skin looks like it's slimy and glows a little from the inside.

Sometimes I take a large gradient as the base color for the entire character.

DIFFERENCE IS IN THE COLORING OF LIGHT, TANNED AND DARK SKIN.

When painting fair skin, it is worth paying more attention to working with shadows and on the differences in shades on different parts of the body.

Here, the differences in colors are often based on nuances.

But if you make too many shadows, then the skin color may start to look "heavy".

The base color - pale orange.

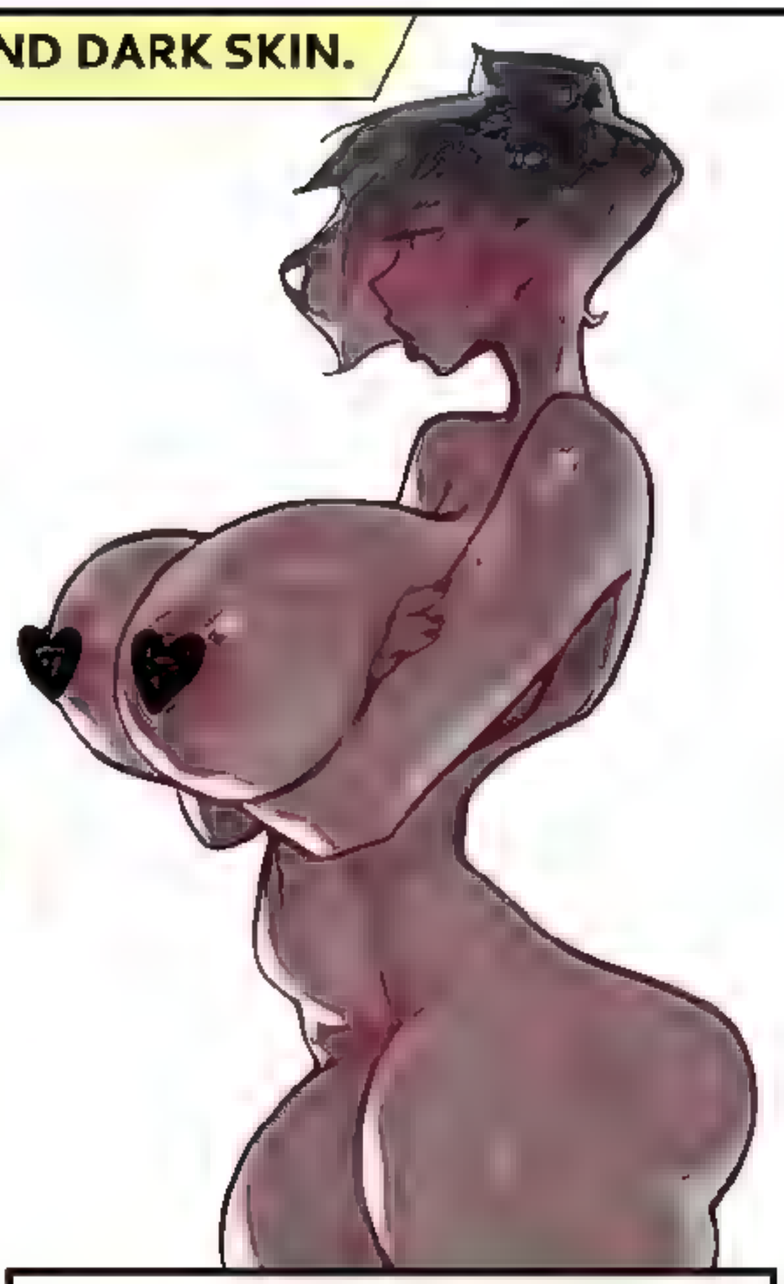
Shadows - pale red.

Tanned skin has an increased contrast between light and dark colors.
So the gradient of the shadows may have a longer length than that of light skin.
And the dark color under the highlights can be darker to make the skin look more shiny.

So this is a light skin with increased contrast and more orange.

The base color - a little pale saturated orange.

Shadows - dark orange/red.

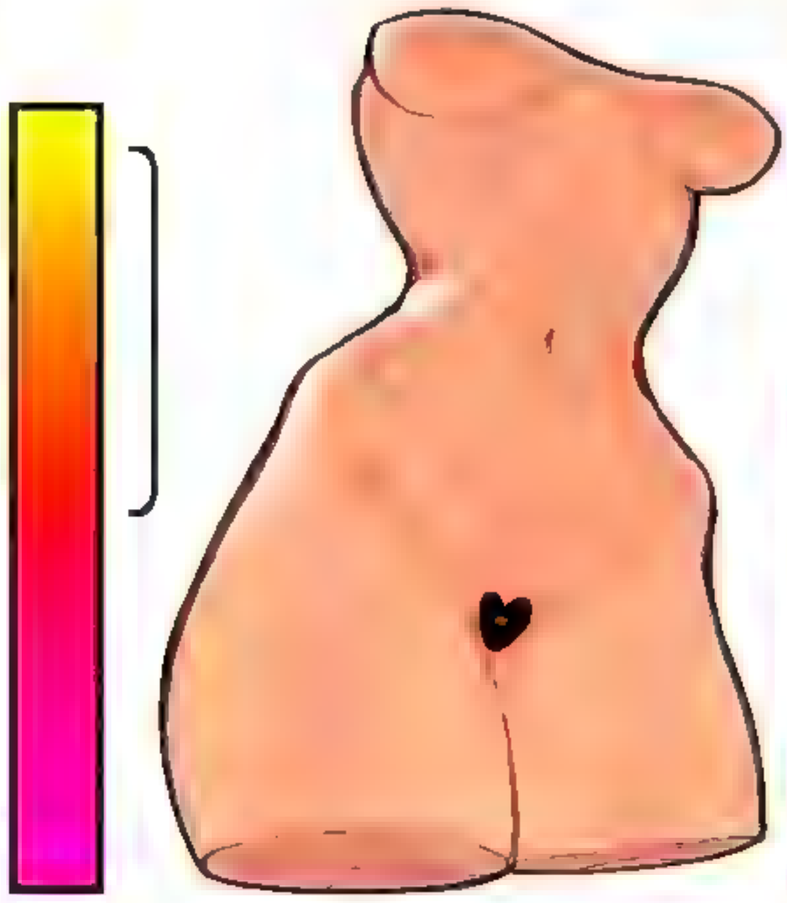


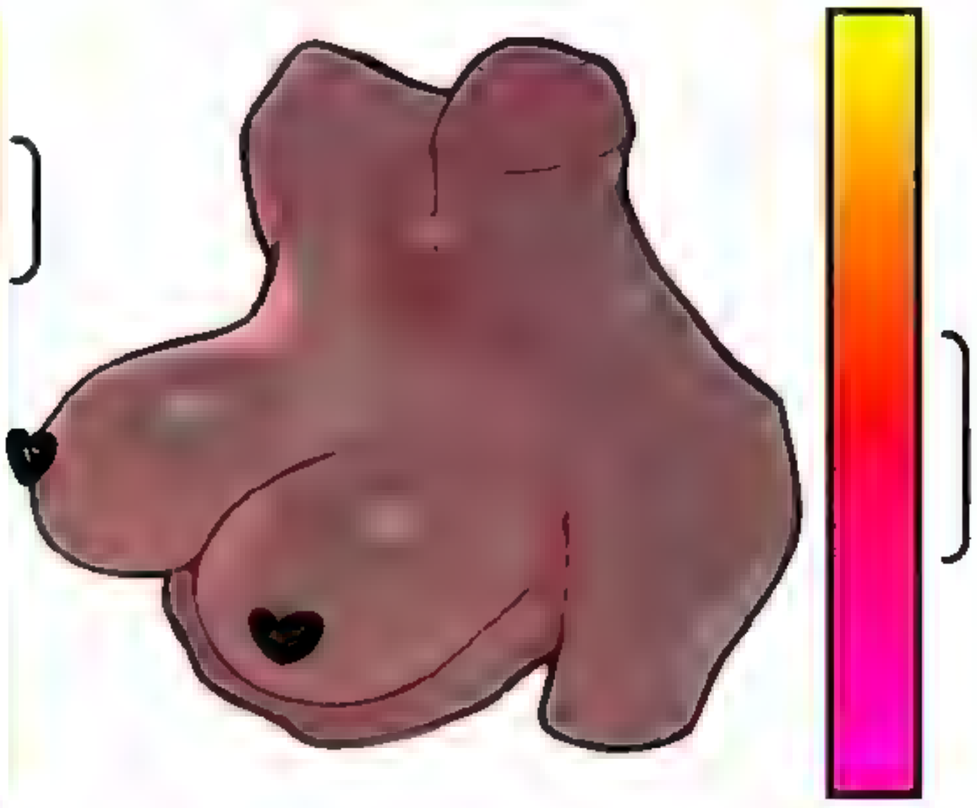
On dark skin, shadows and all sorts of shading will not stand out much, so here you can pay more attention to working on a shiny texture, colored highlights and reflexes.

There are a lot of dark or grayish highlights.
There are a lot of reflexes and reflections from the colored environment.

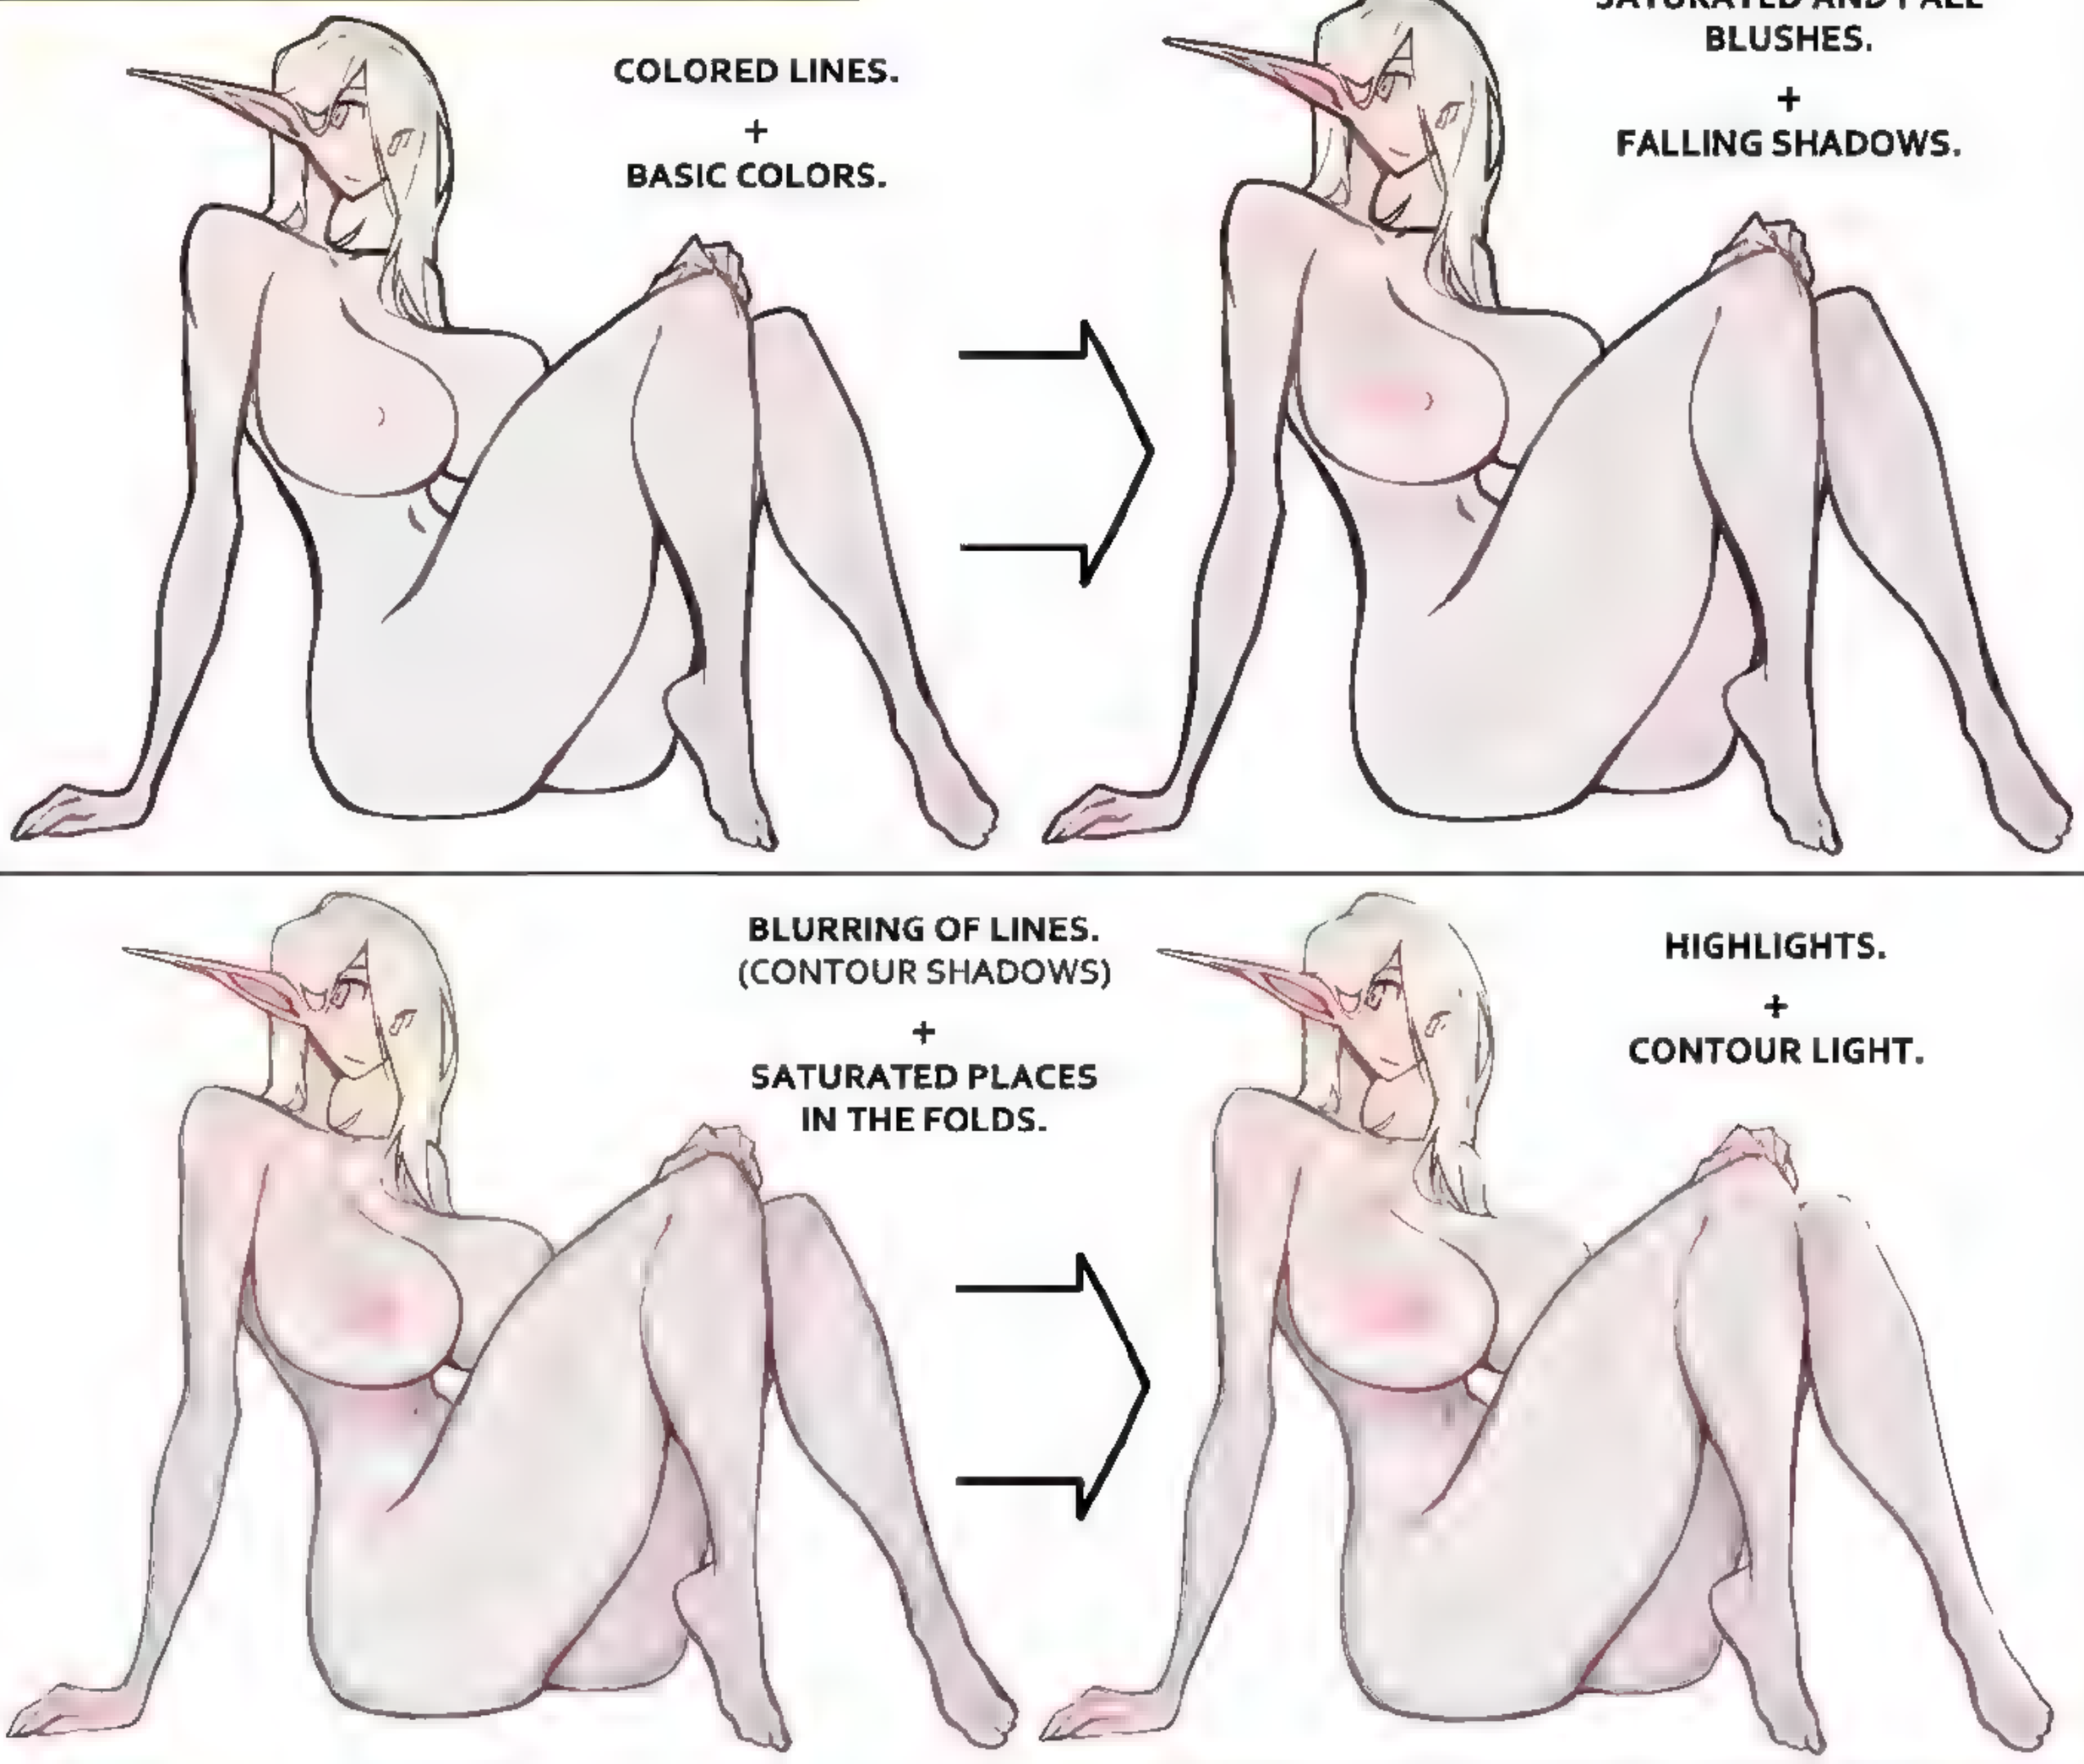
The base color - Dark rich red. (dark orange will look too brown-green)

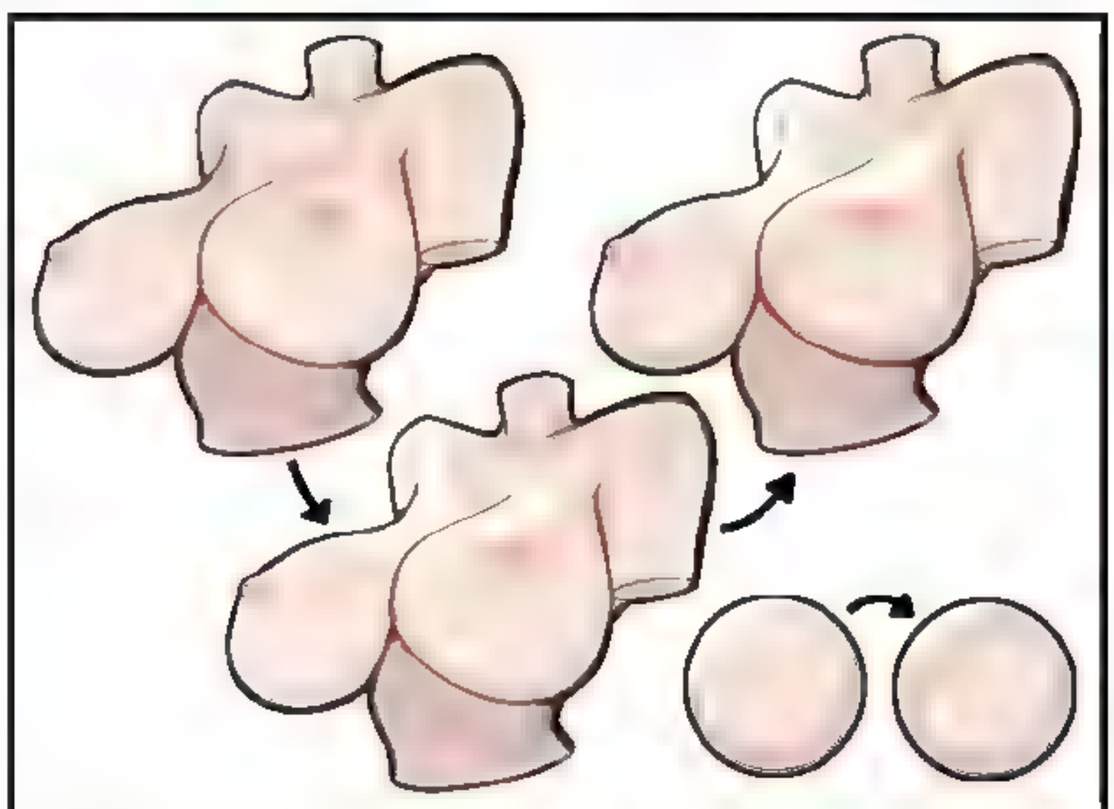
Shadows - very dark crimson (warmer than the base).



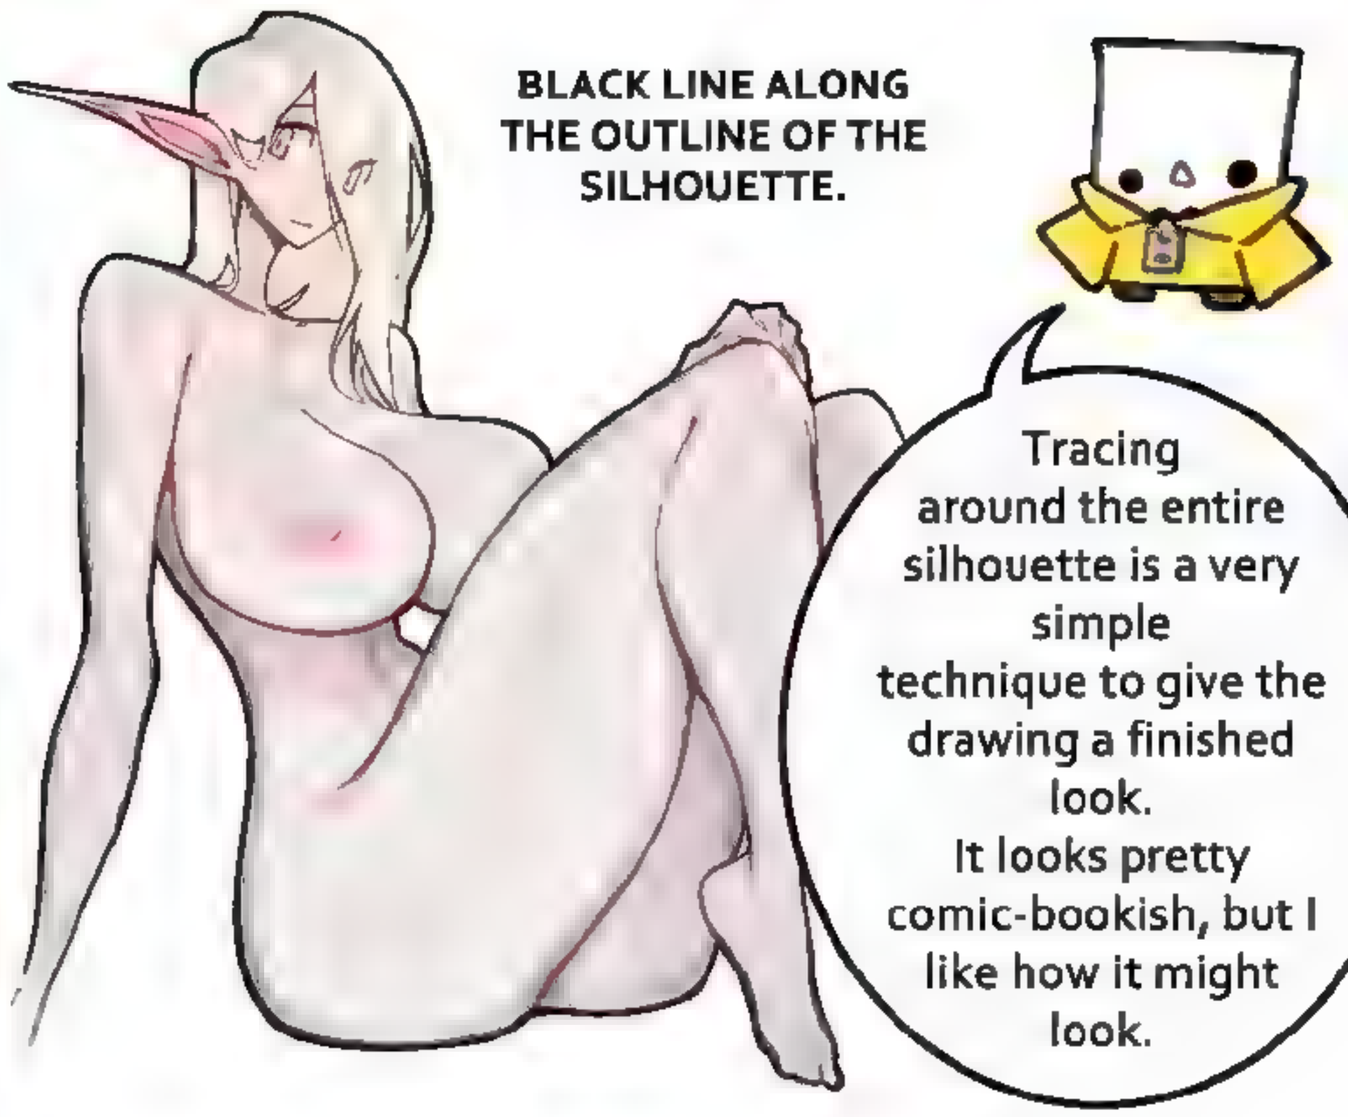


COMBINATION OF THE PREVIOUS STEPS.

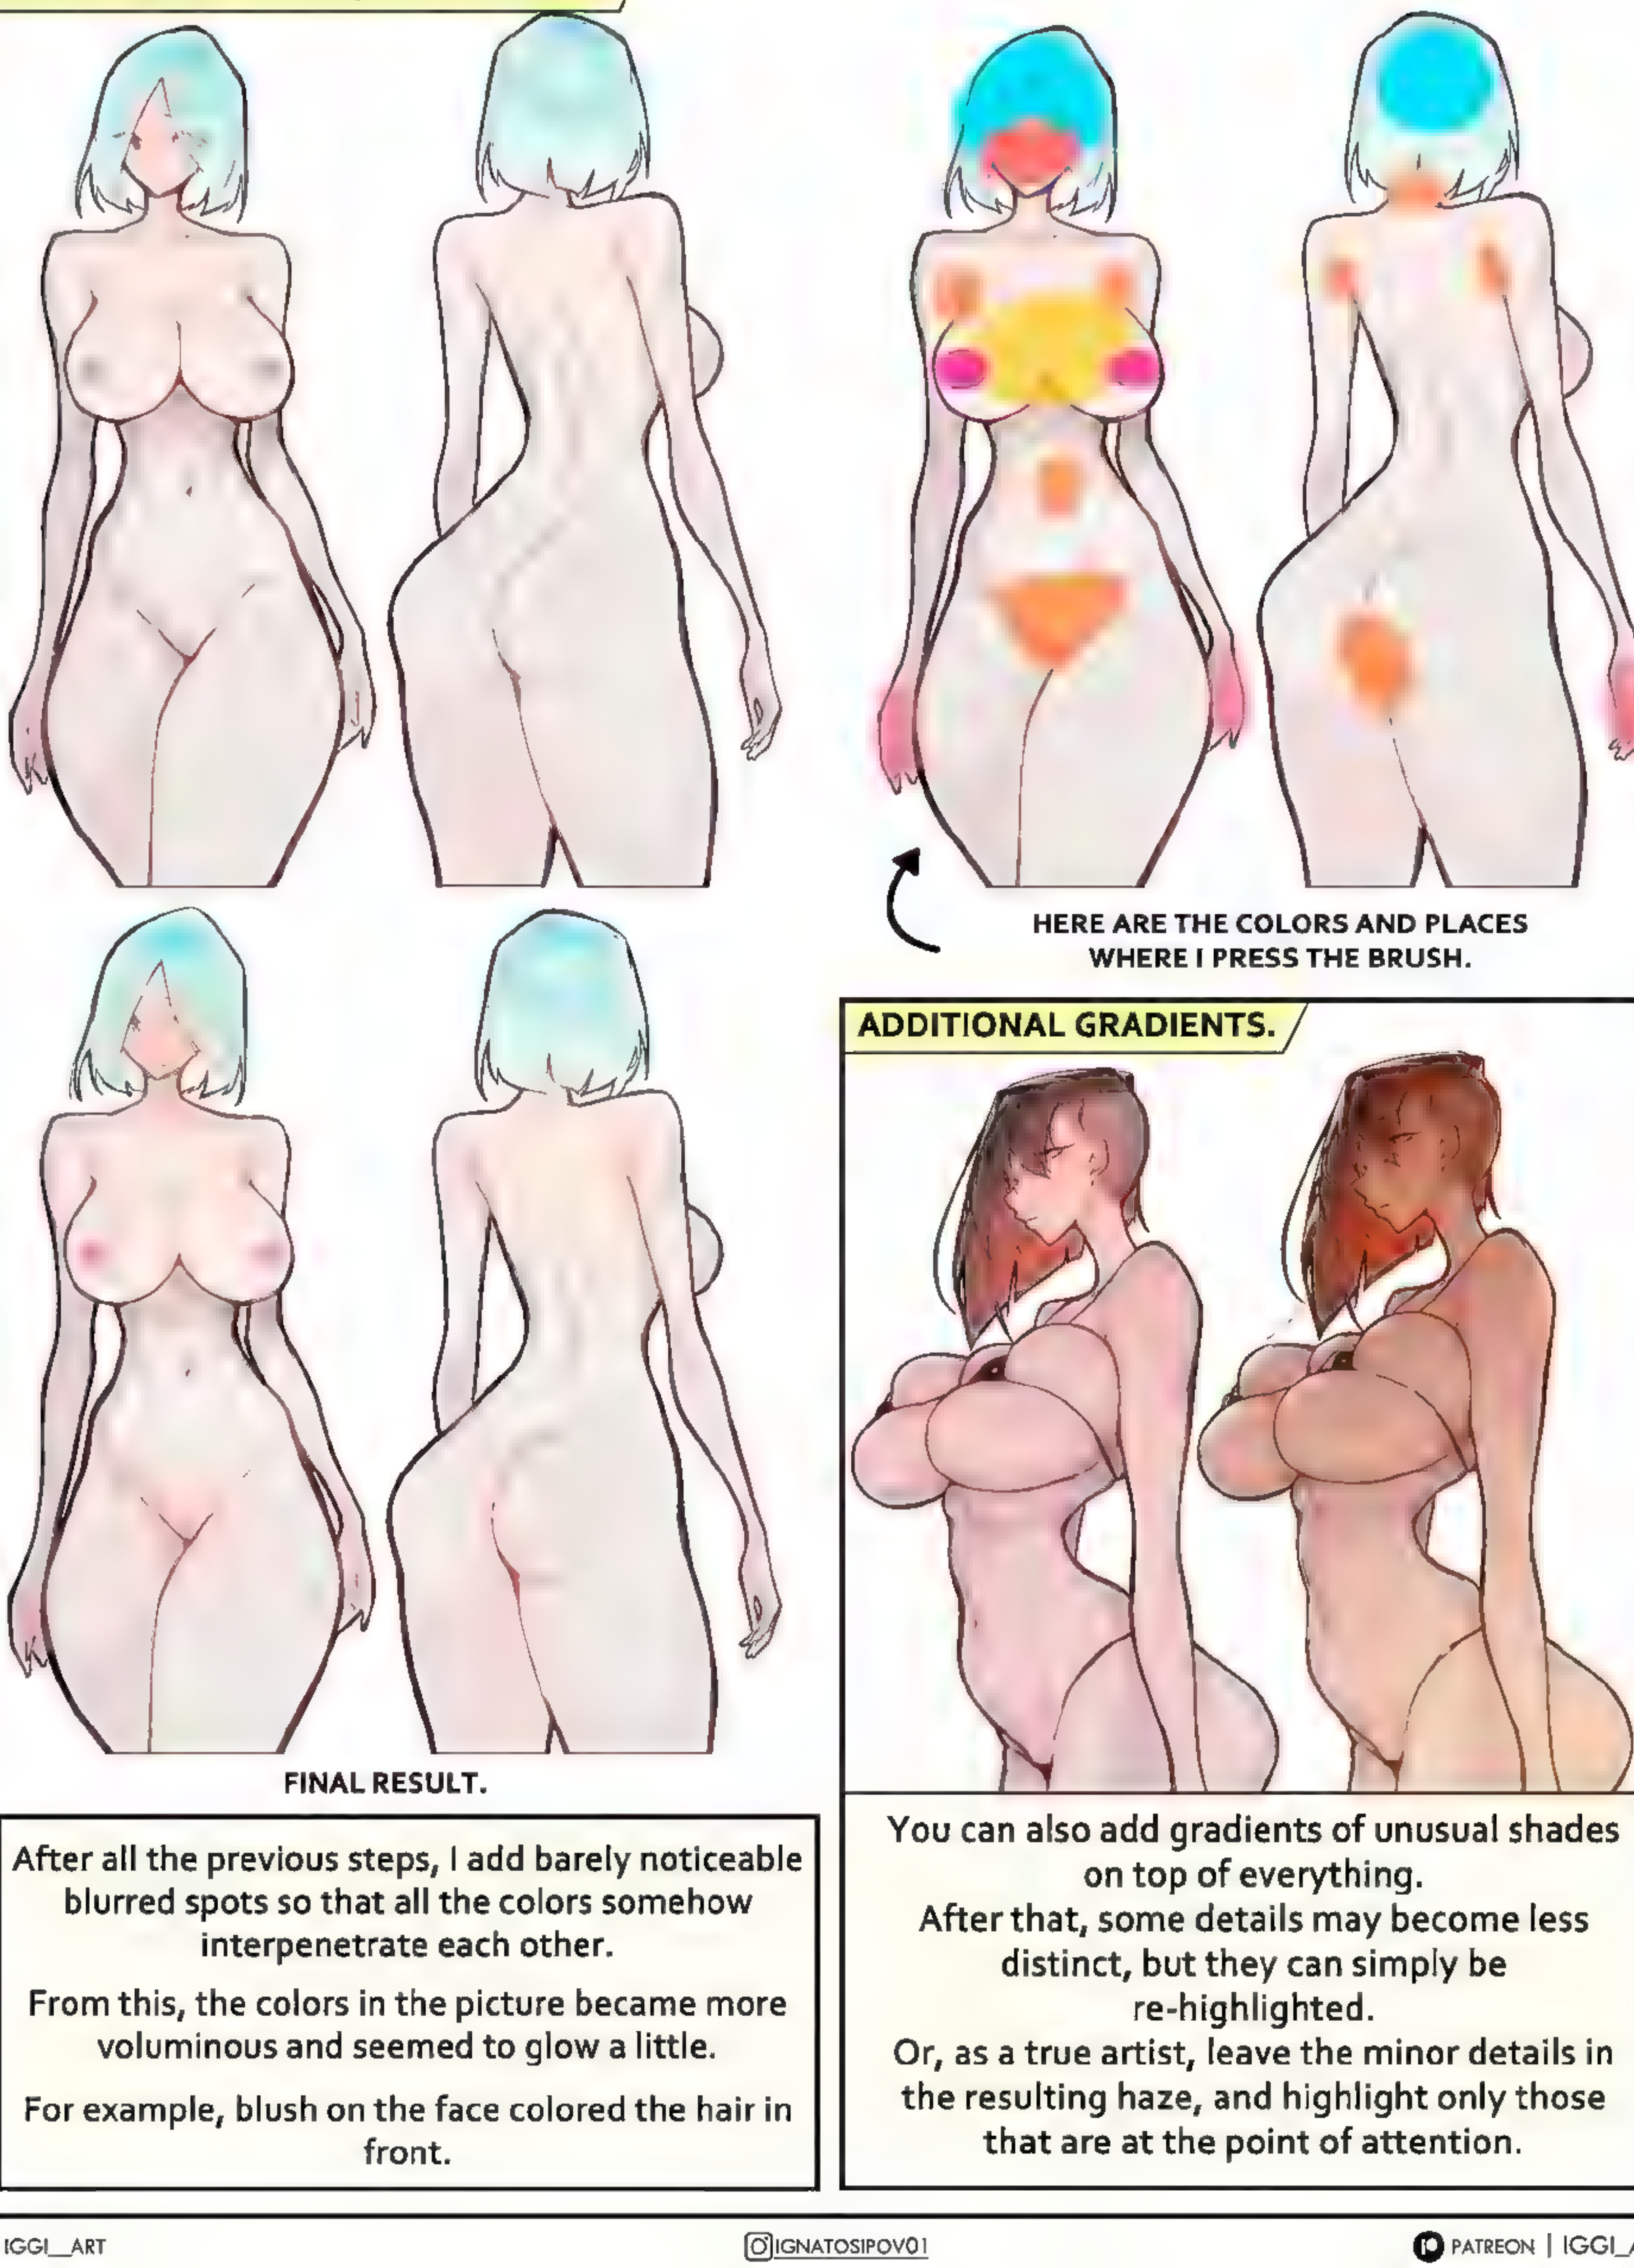




If the contour light overlaps the contour shadows, then you can simply enhance the shadow near this light.



ADDITIONAL BLUSHES/COLOR SPOTS.



HERE ARE THE COLORS AND PLACES
WHERE I PRESS THE BRUSH.

FINAL RESULT.

After all the previous steps, I add barely noticeable blurred spots so that all the colors somehow interpenetrate each other.

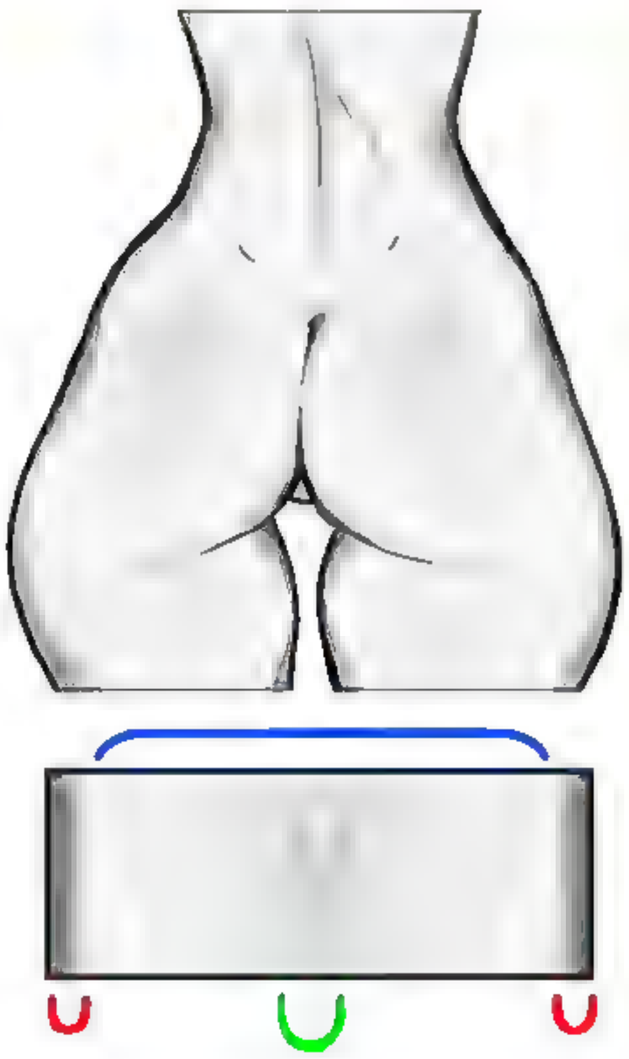
From this, the colors in the picture became more voluminous and seemed to glow a little.

For example, blush on the face colored the hair in front.

ADDITIONAL GRADIENTS.

You can also add gradients of unusual shades on top of everything.
After that, some details may become less distinct, but they can simply be re-highlighted.
Or, as a true artist, leave the minor details in the resulting haze, and highlight only those that are at the point of attention.

THE LENGTH OF THE SHADING GRADIENTS.



I have only recently begun to pay attention to the differences in the length of gradients for different types of shading.

For example, dark shadows along the contour of the figure have a short length, and for light darkenings/blushes at the top of the bulges, the gradients last long and smoothly.

If these gradients have the same length, then the skin may look over-darkened. But for some ideas, it may be appropriate.
(this method may be suitable for light/delicate skin)

MAYBE IT'S SUITABLE FOR A SHINY TAN.

Gradients can also be "incomplete".

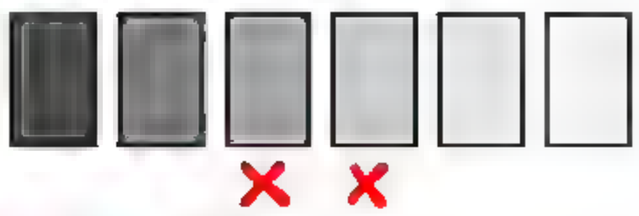
For example, contour shadows may not have mid-shades.
Thus, the shadow is somewhat similar to a line, but with a slight smooth transition to the base color.

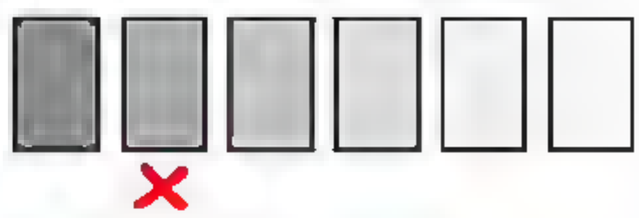
Or you can remove 1 intermediate shade from blushes under highlights and then a circle will appear around the glare, which will give the skin glossiness.

GAPS IN GRADIENTS.

CONTOUR SHADOWS.

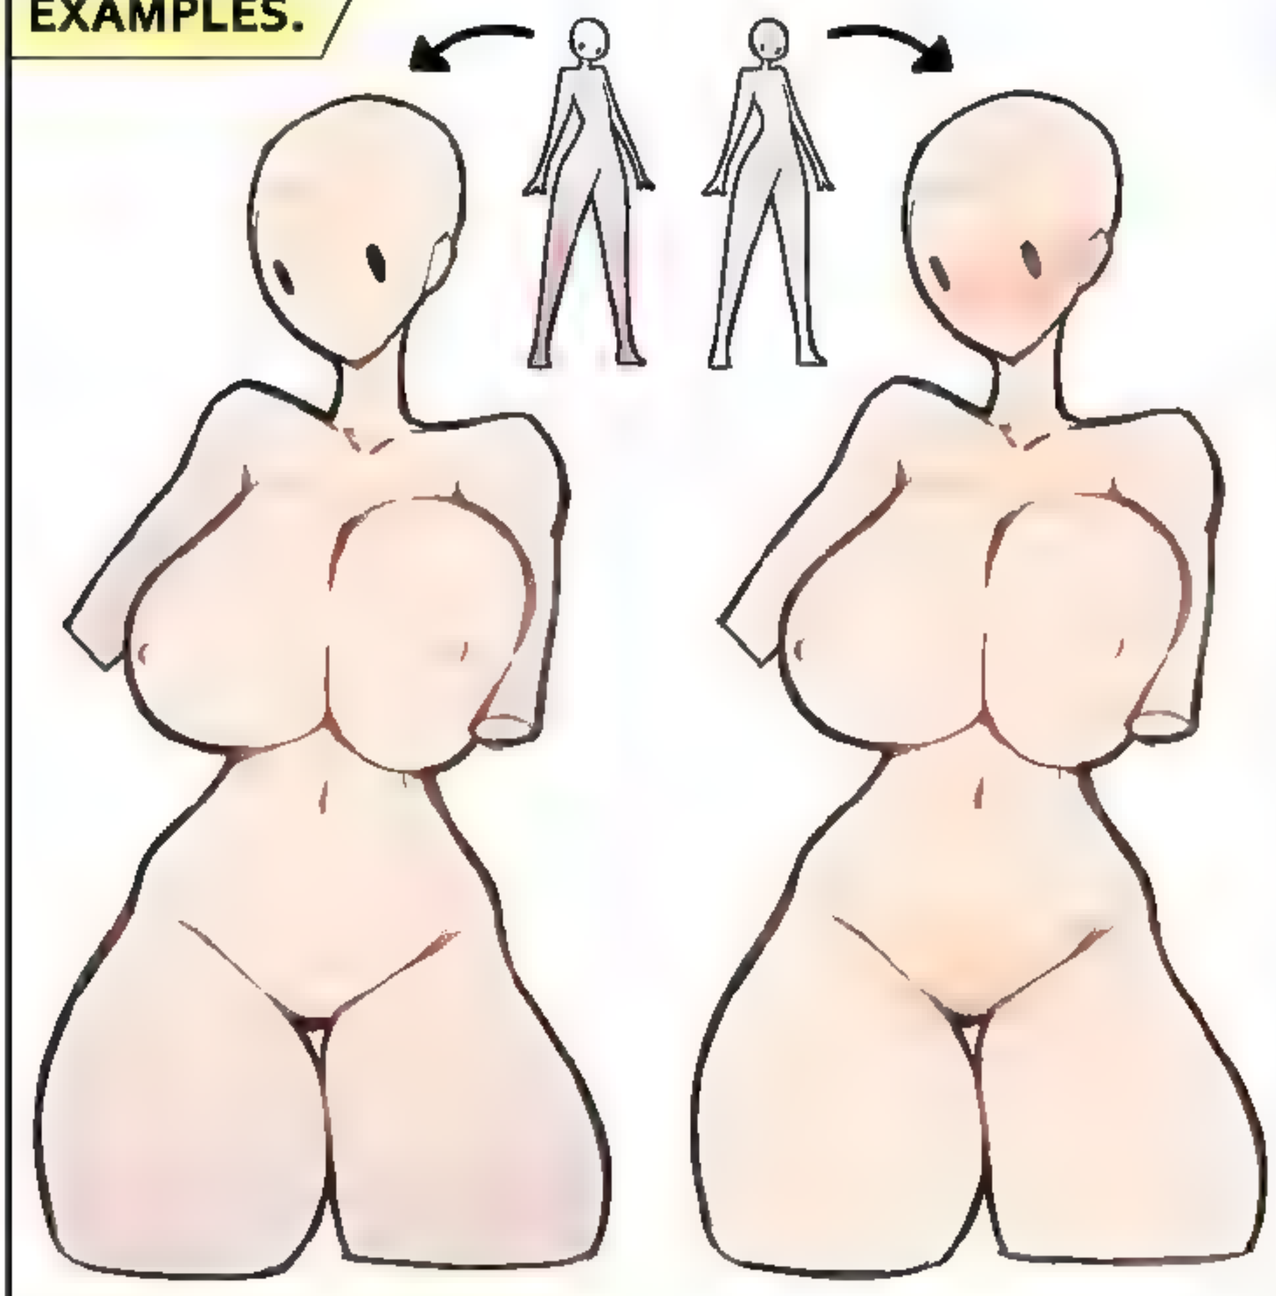


SHADING UNDER HIGHLIGHTS.



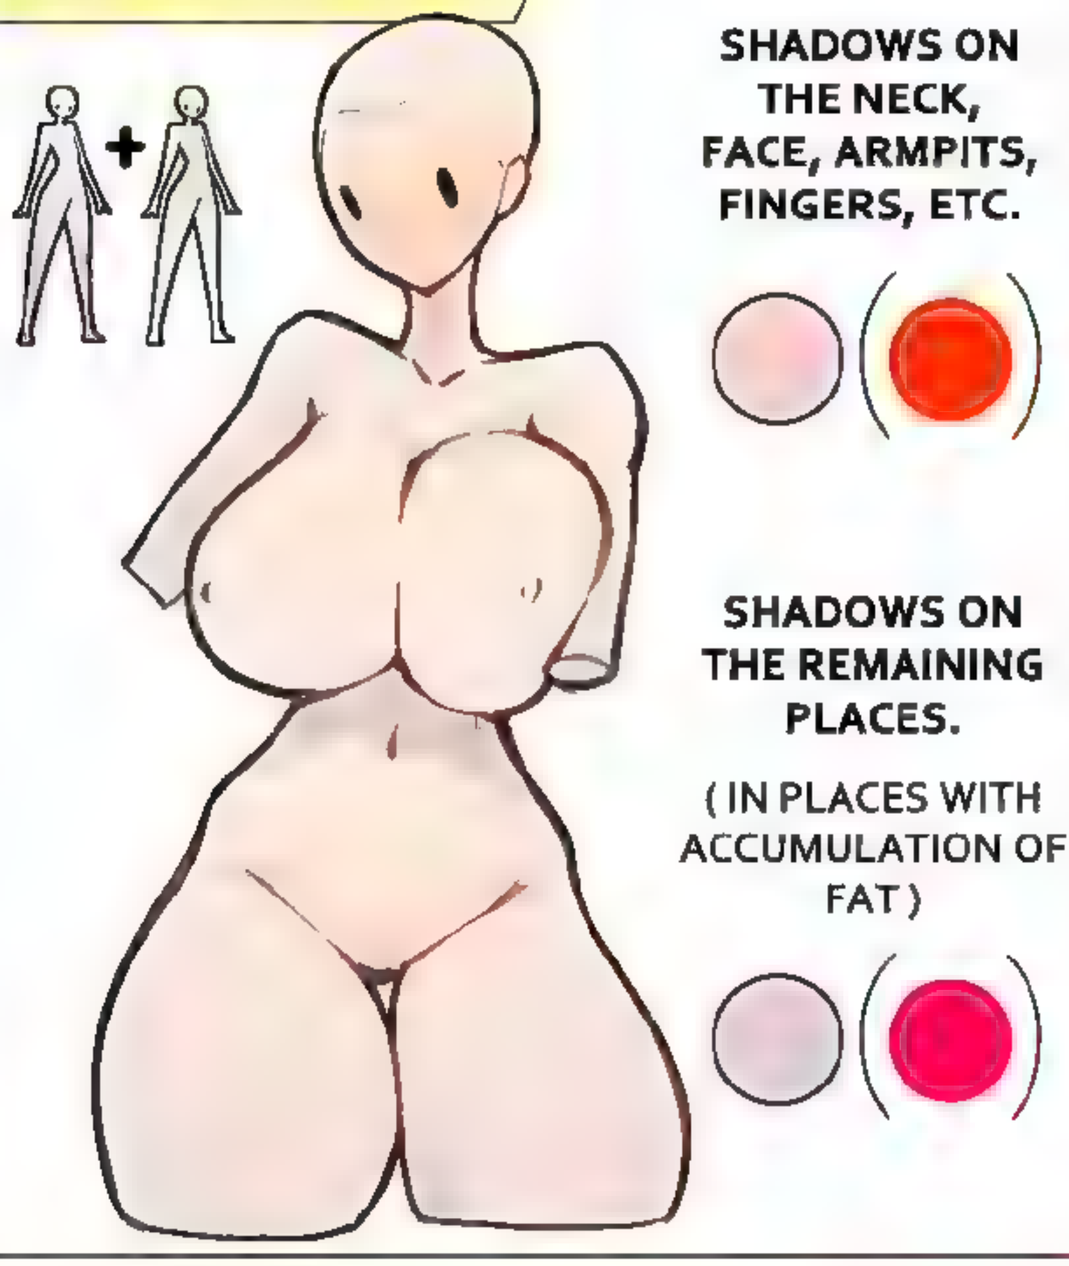
EXAMPLES.

EXAMPLES.



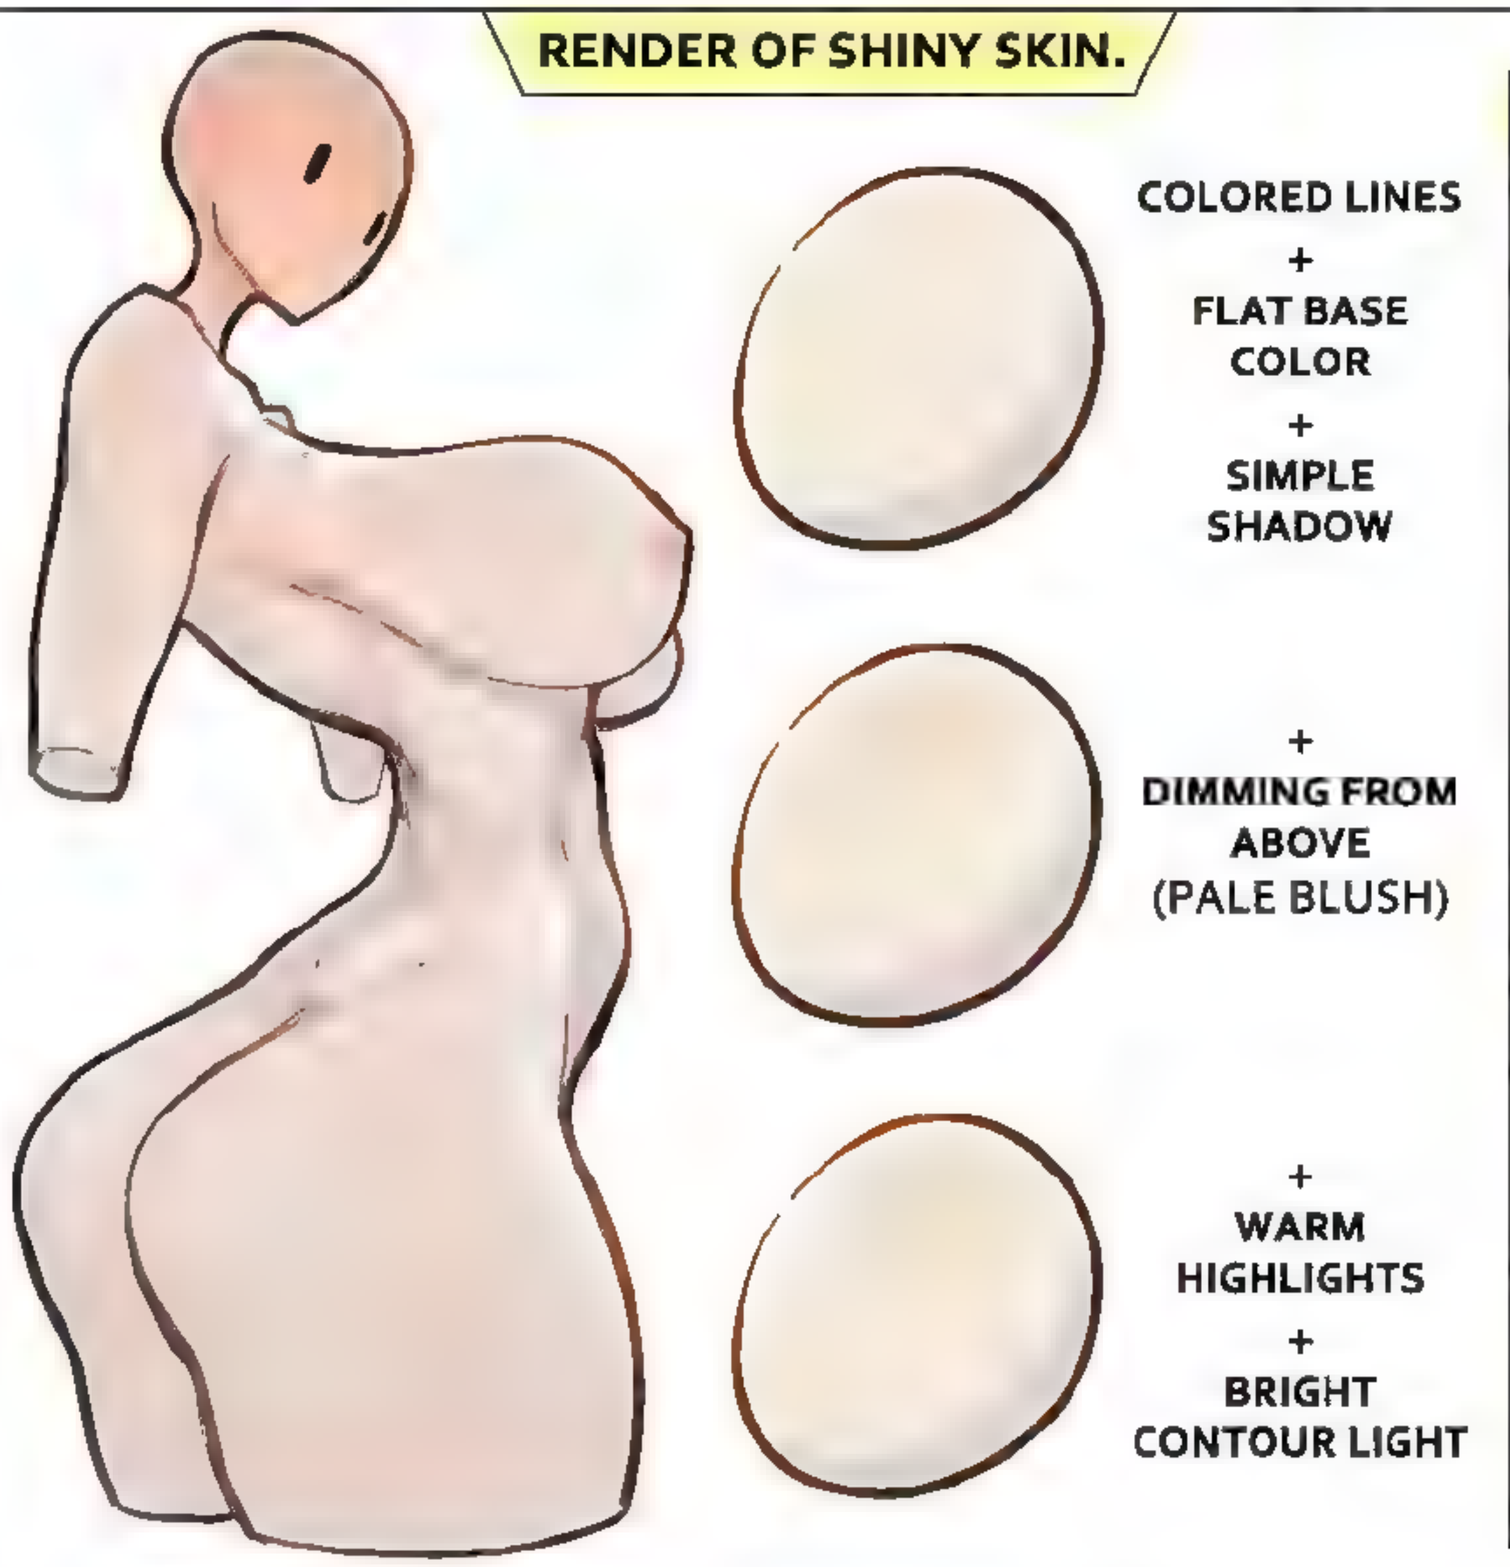
For me, gradients on drawing delicate skin are an important tool.
Probably even more important than the soft borders between shadow and light.

FALLING SHADOWS.

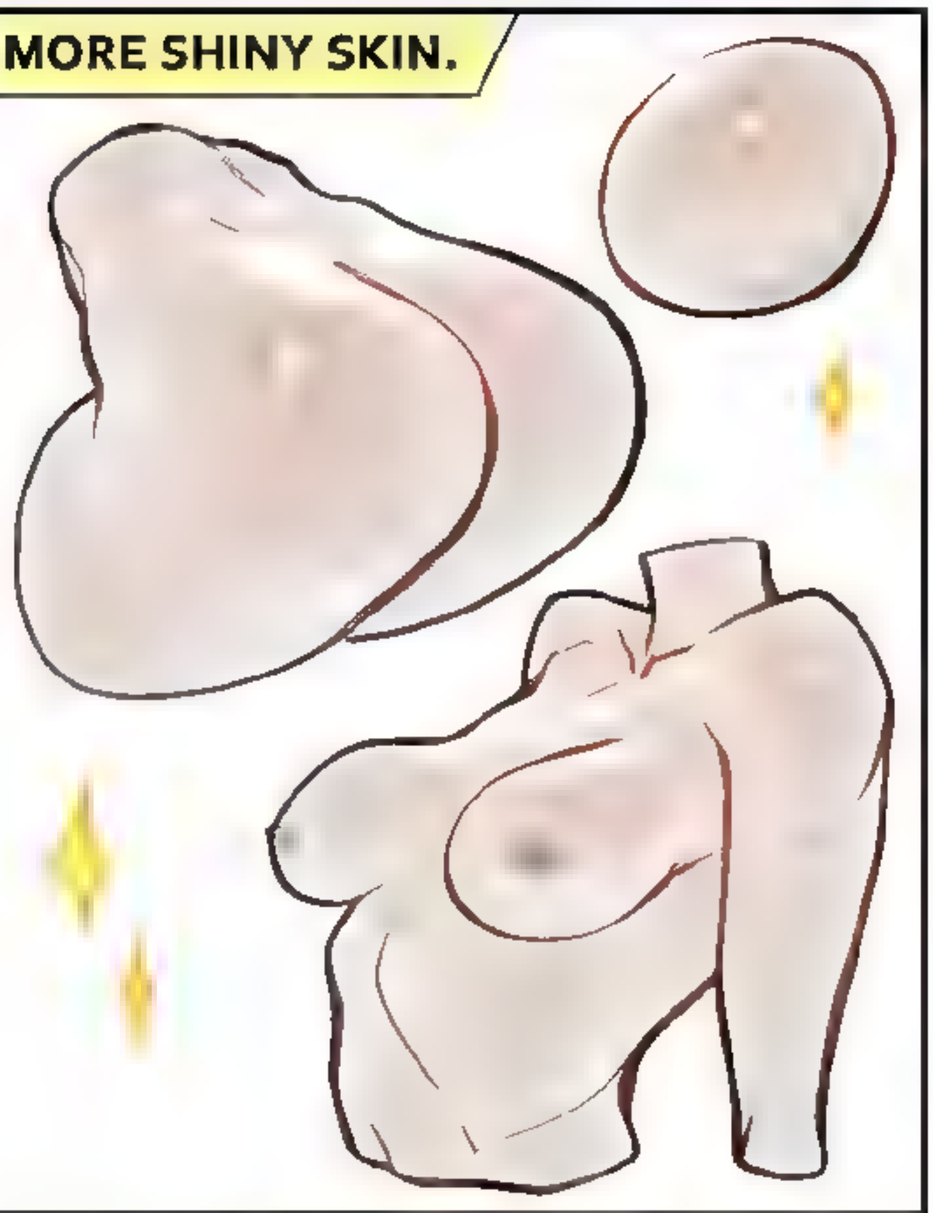


I try to make falling shadows of different colors depending on which part of the body they are on.
The main thing is to leave these differences as a nuance.

RENDER OF SHINY SKIN.

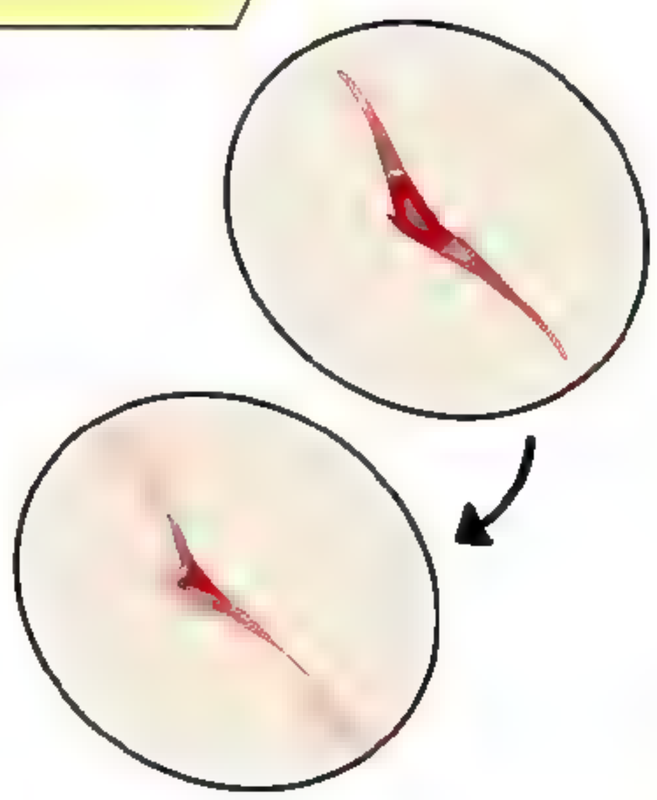


MORE SHINY SKIN.



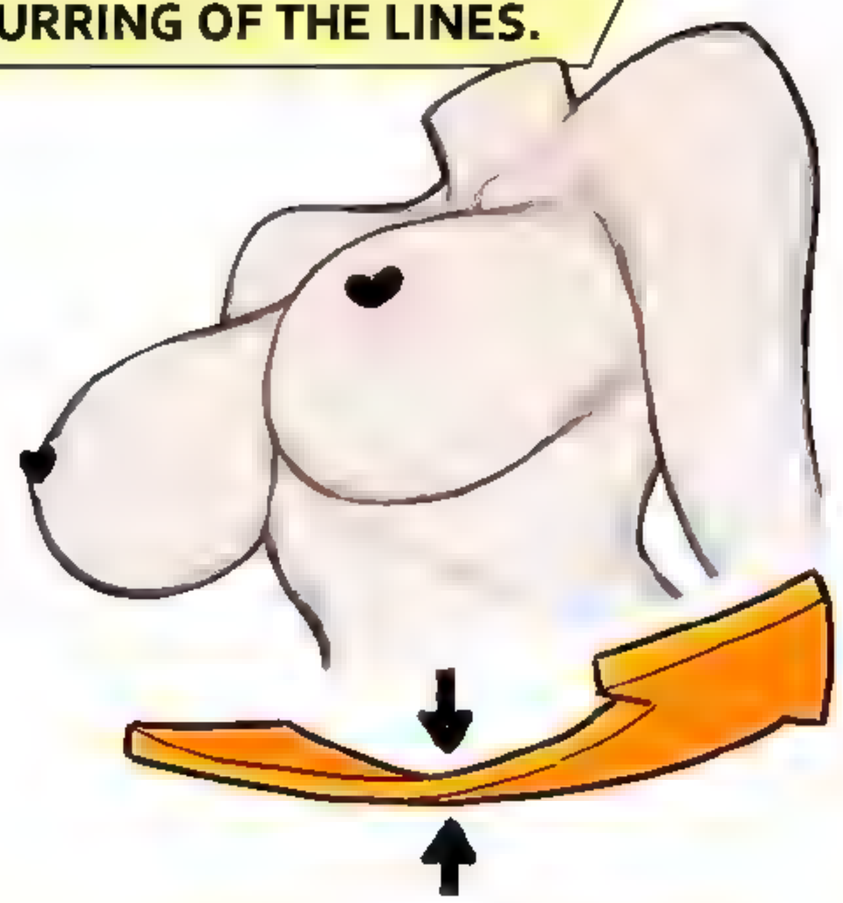
Such skin may have a darker color on the bulges on top.
And the glare may become lighter.

BLURRING (MASKING) THE LINEART.



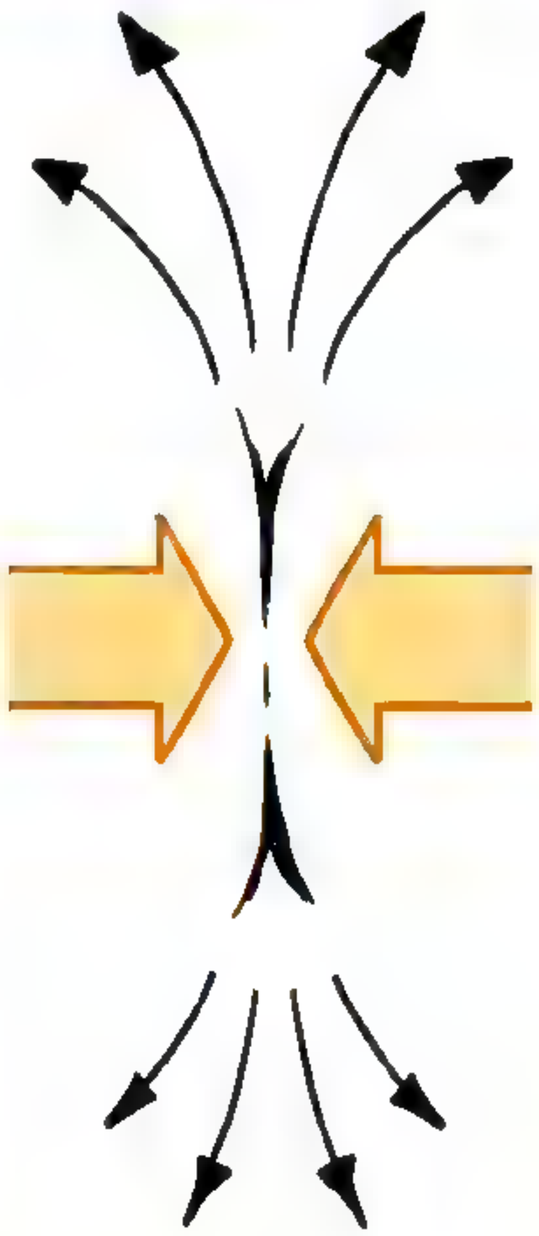
The lines around the edges can be blurred.
This way they will look like thin shadows between objects, and not like a lineart.

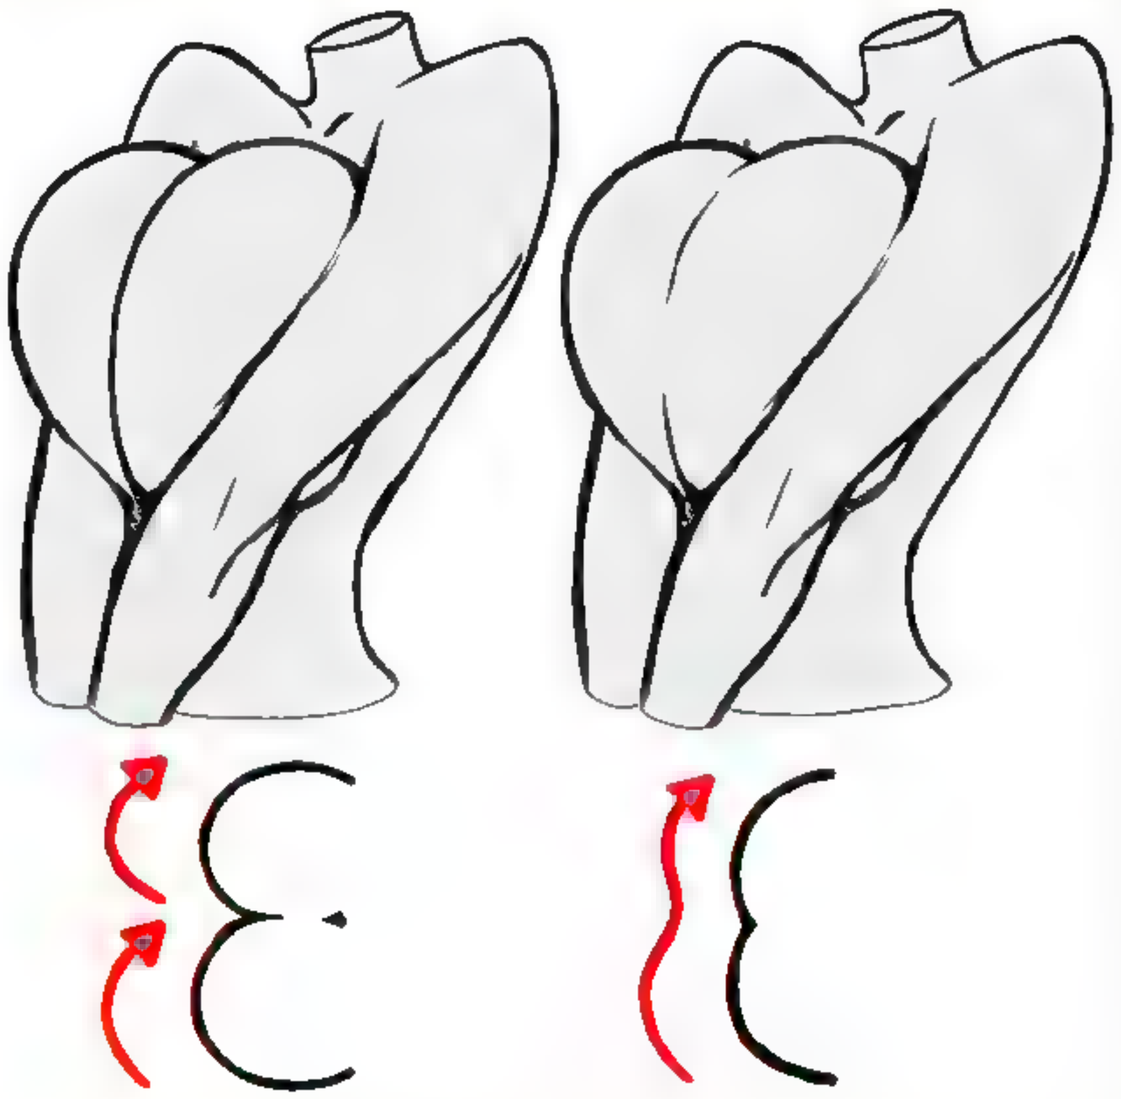
THICKNESS AND DEGREE OF BLURRING OF THE LINES.



I can also make the thinnest parts of the lines quite dark.
It's like it's a concentrated shadow.
And this shadow on the less compressed edges becomes lighter and with softer edges.

COMPRESSED LINES (THIN SHADOWS).





Sometimes, with strong compression, the dark shadow line between objects may disappear in places.
It's as if the objects are merging together.

But it's better to add gaps in the lines when you look at compressed objects frontally.

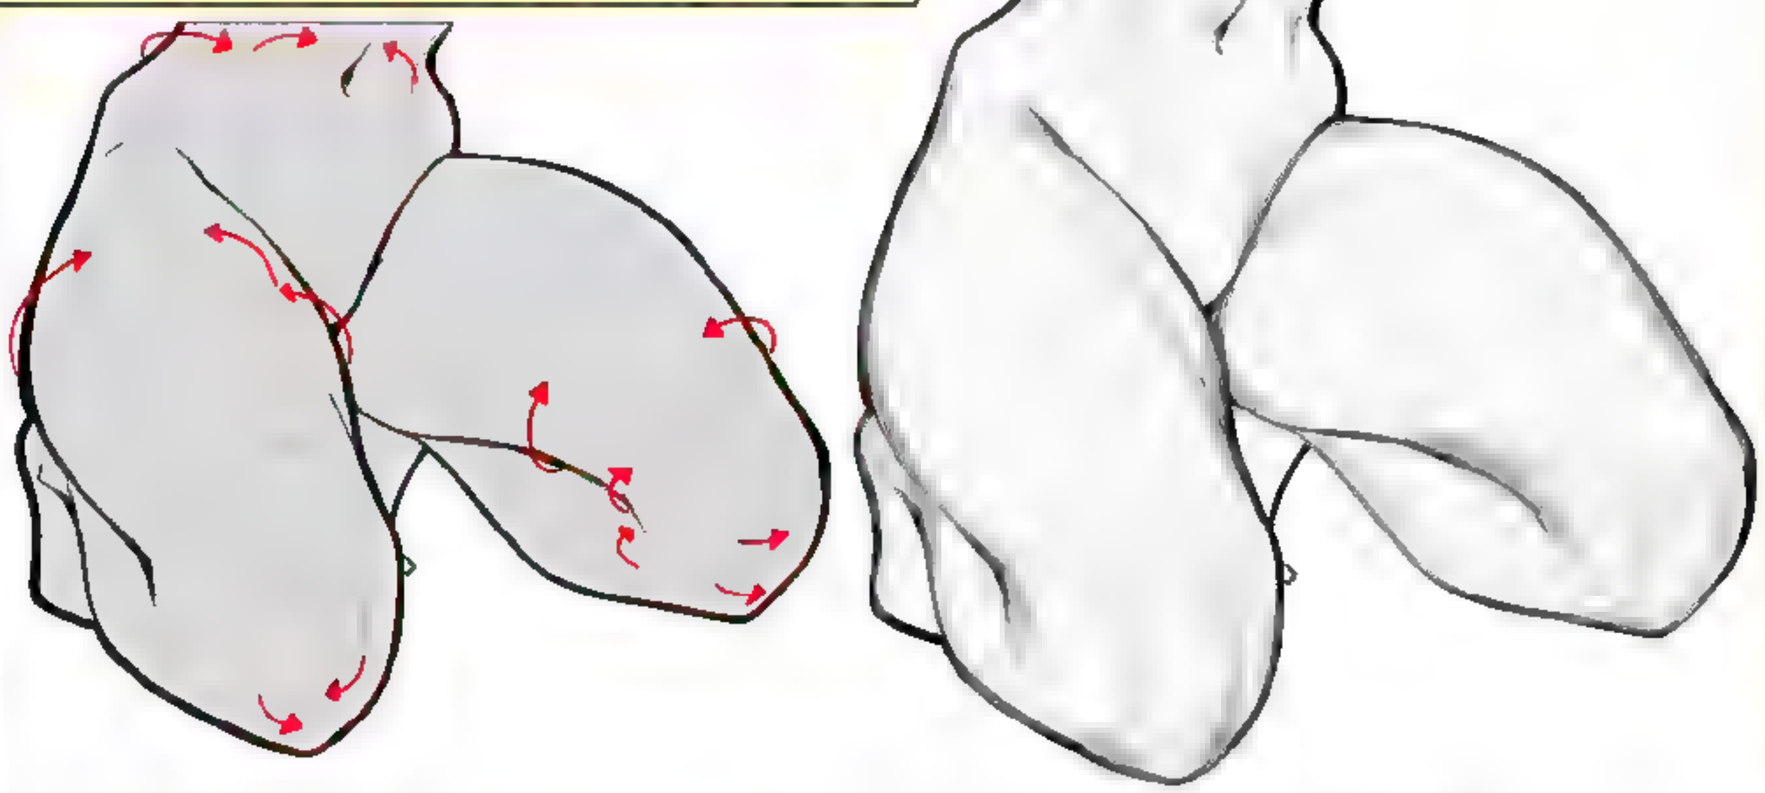
When you look at them at some kind of turn, such gaps can create the feeling that there are not 2 separate compressed objects, but 1, with a shallow fold.

THE SHAPE OF THE SHADOWS AT THE FOLDS.

Usually compressed folds have a teardrop-shaped shadow at the end.

One of the sides of this drop has a soft edge.
Thus, the shadows become soft, but leave a structurality.

THE DIRECTION OF THE SOFT EDGES.

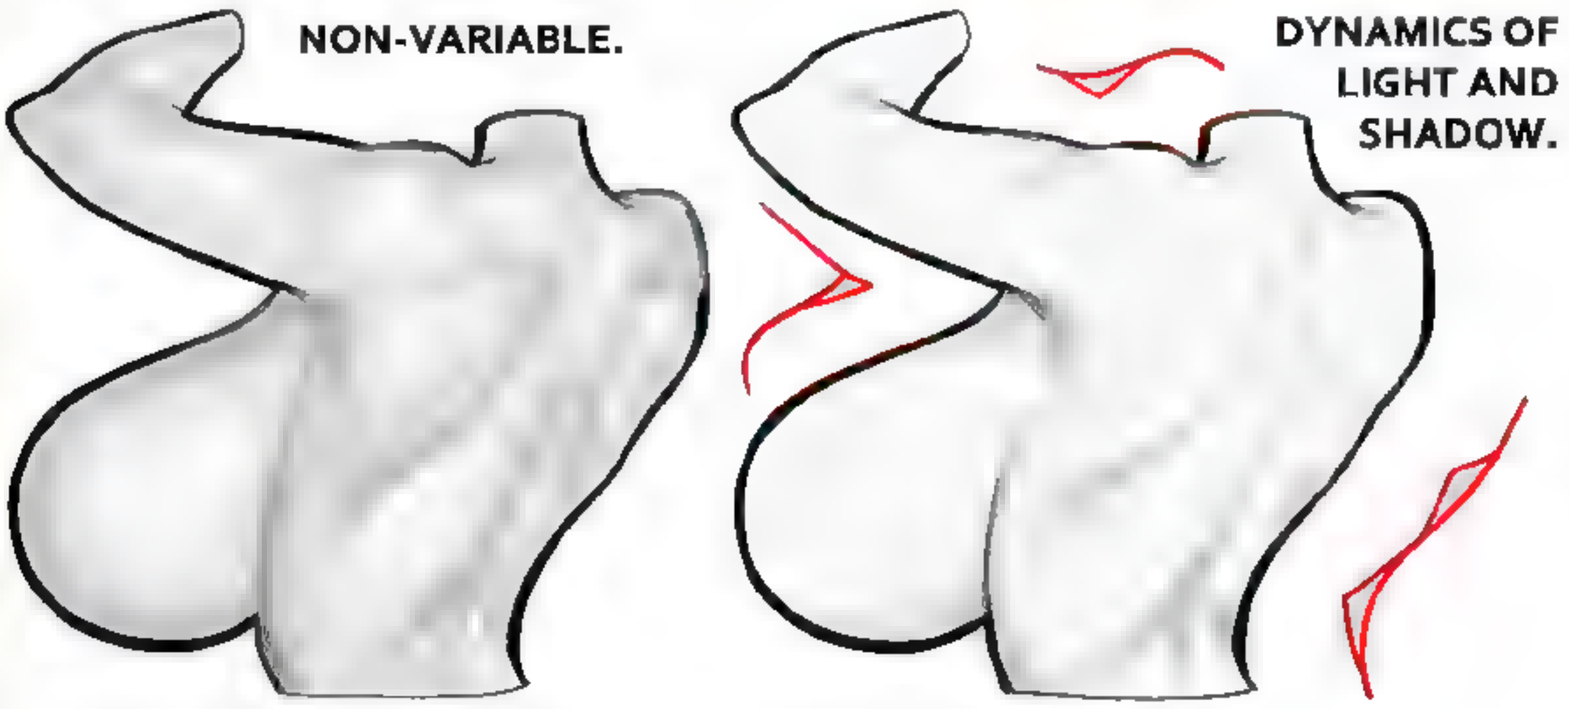


It looks better when the gradients follow the direction of the rounded shapes.

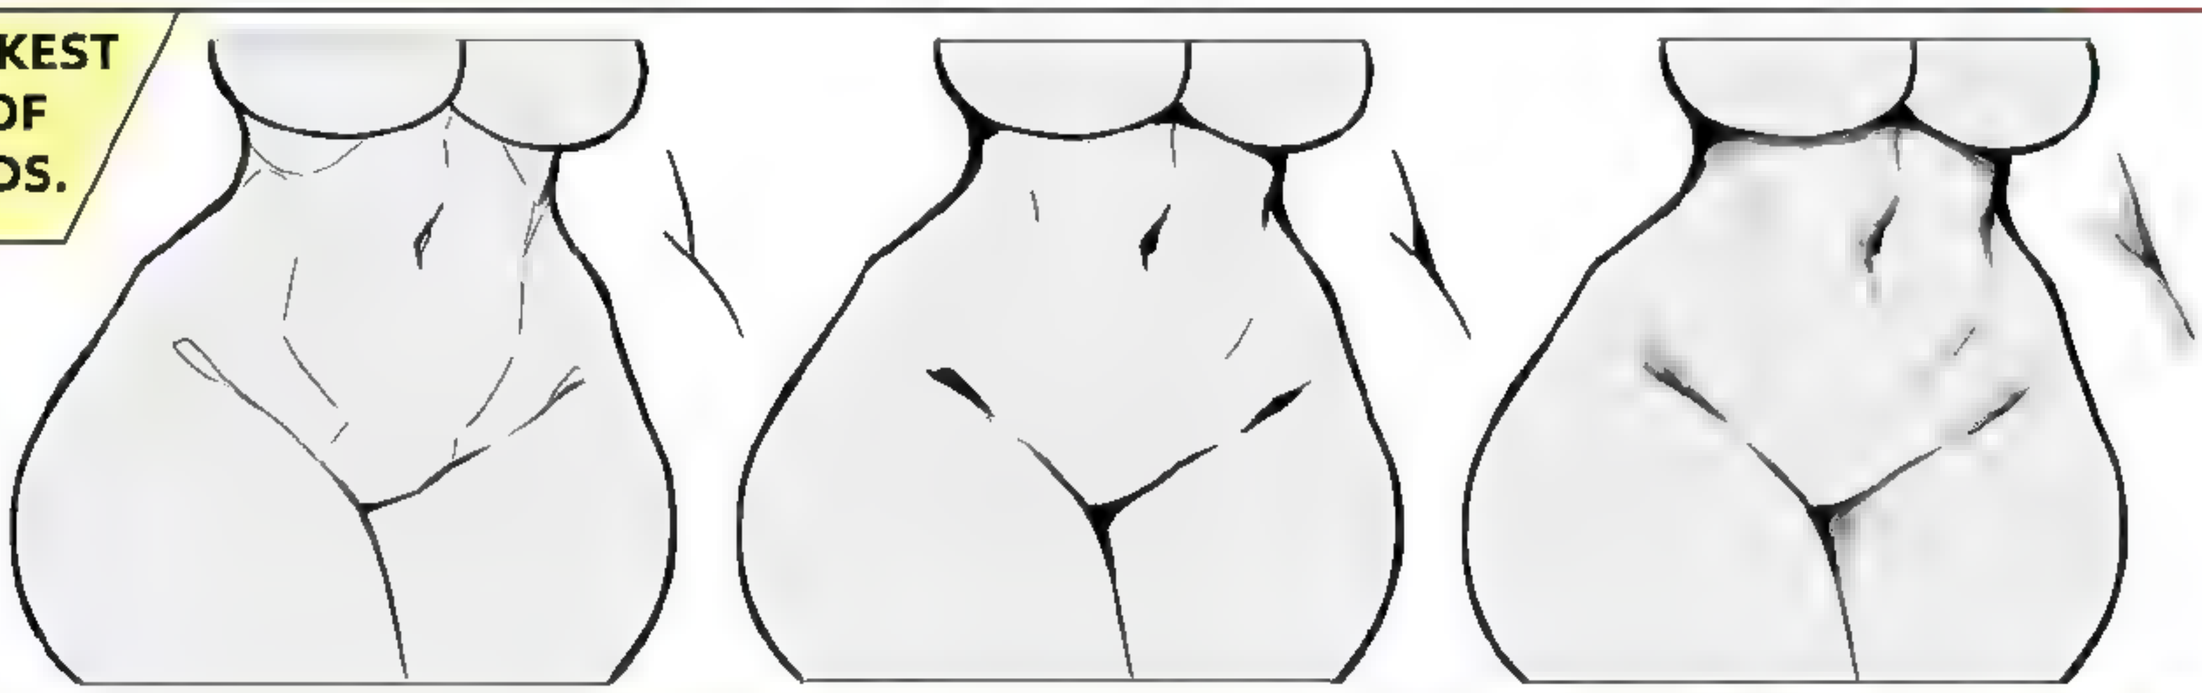
And the hard edges are located at the junction of these shapes.

But it is not necessary to make the darkening uniform along the entire length of the contour line of the object.
And there are not always darkenings on all sides of every bulge.

I try to do the main darkening only on the corners of the lines that are directed into the silhouette.



THE DARKEST PLACES OF THE FOLDS.



I add the darkest places at the intersections of lines/folds in the "Y" shape.

First, I put dots on these places (usually it is a very rich dark red color), and thenI add small blurs.

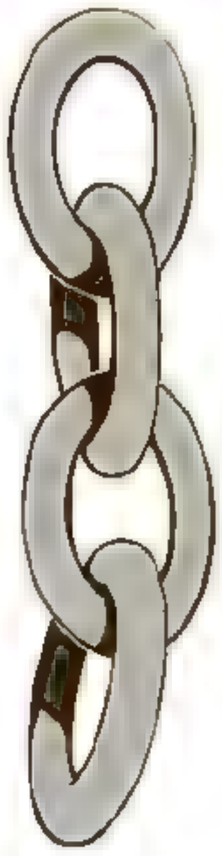
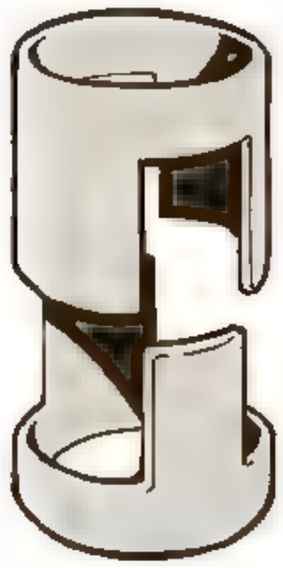
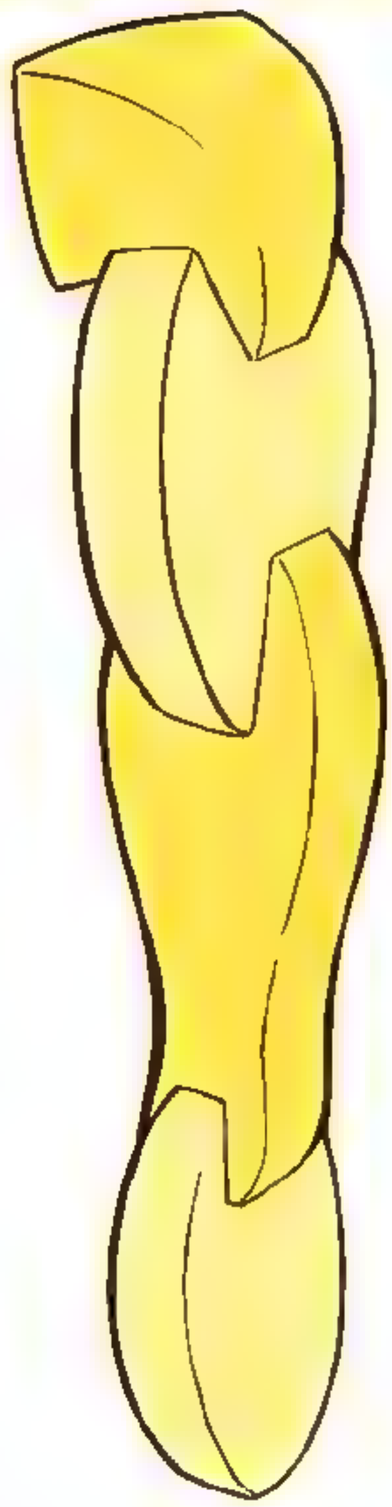
(@kalivero_arts ; OC)

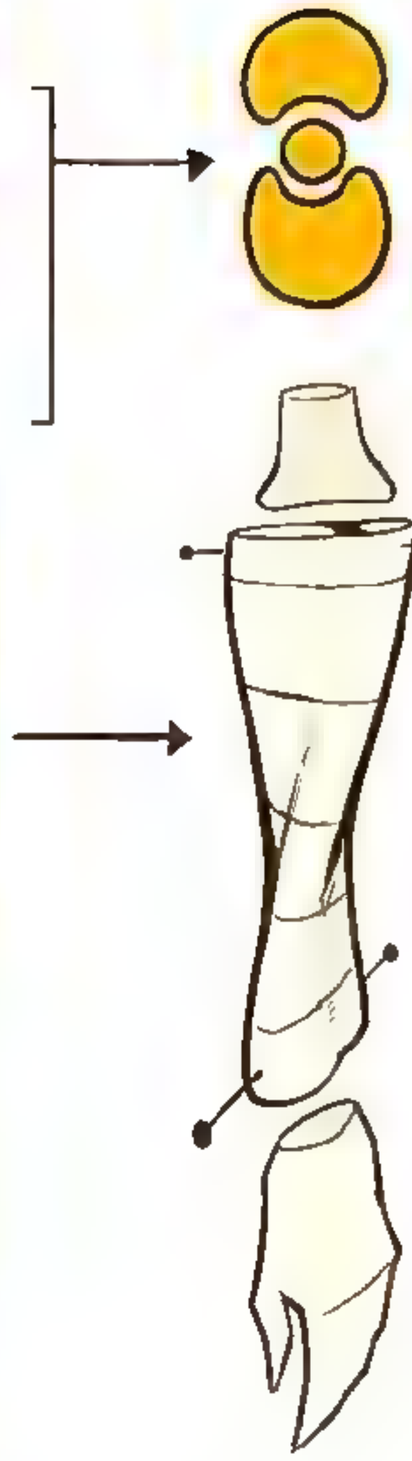
Argo



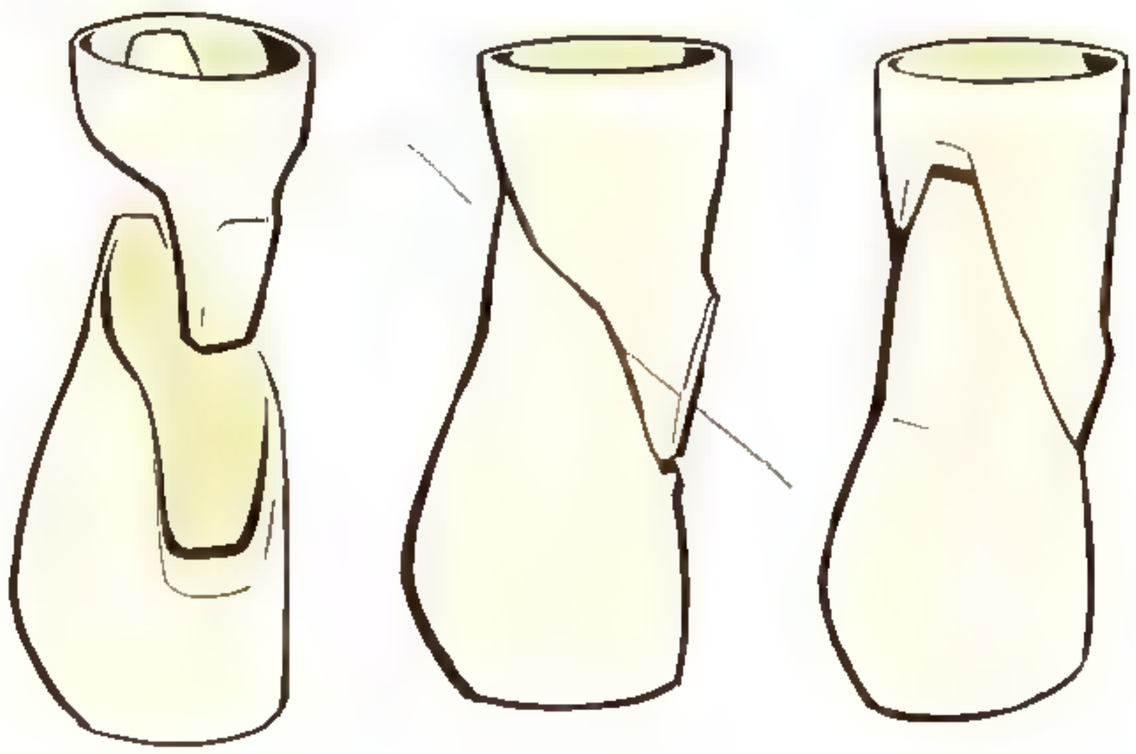
For hands and legs, it is convenient to use the principle of a chain or interpenetrating parts.



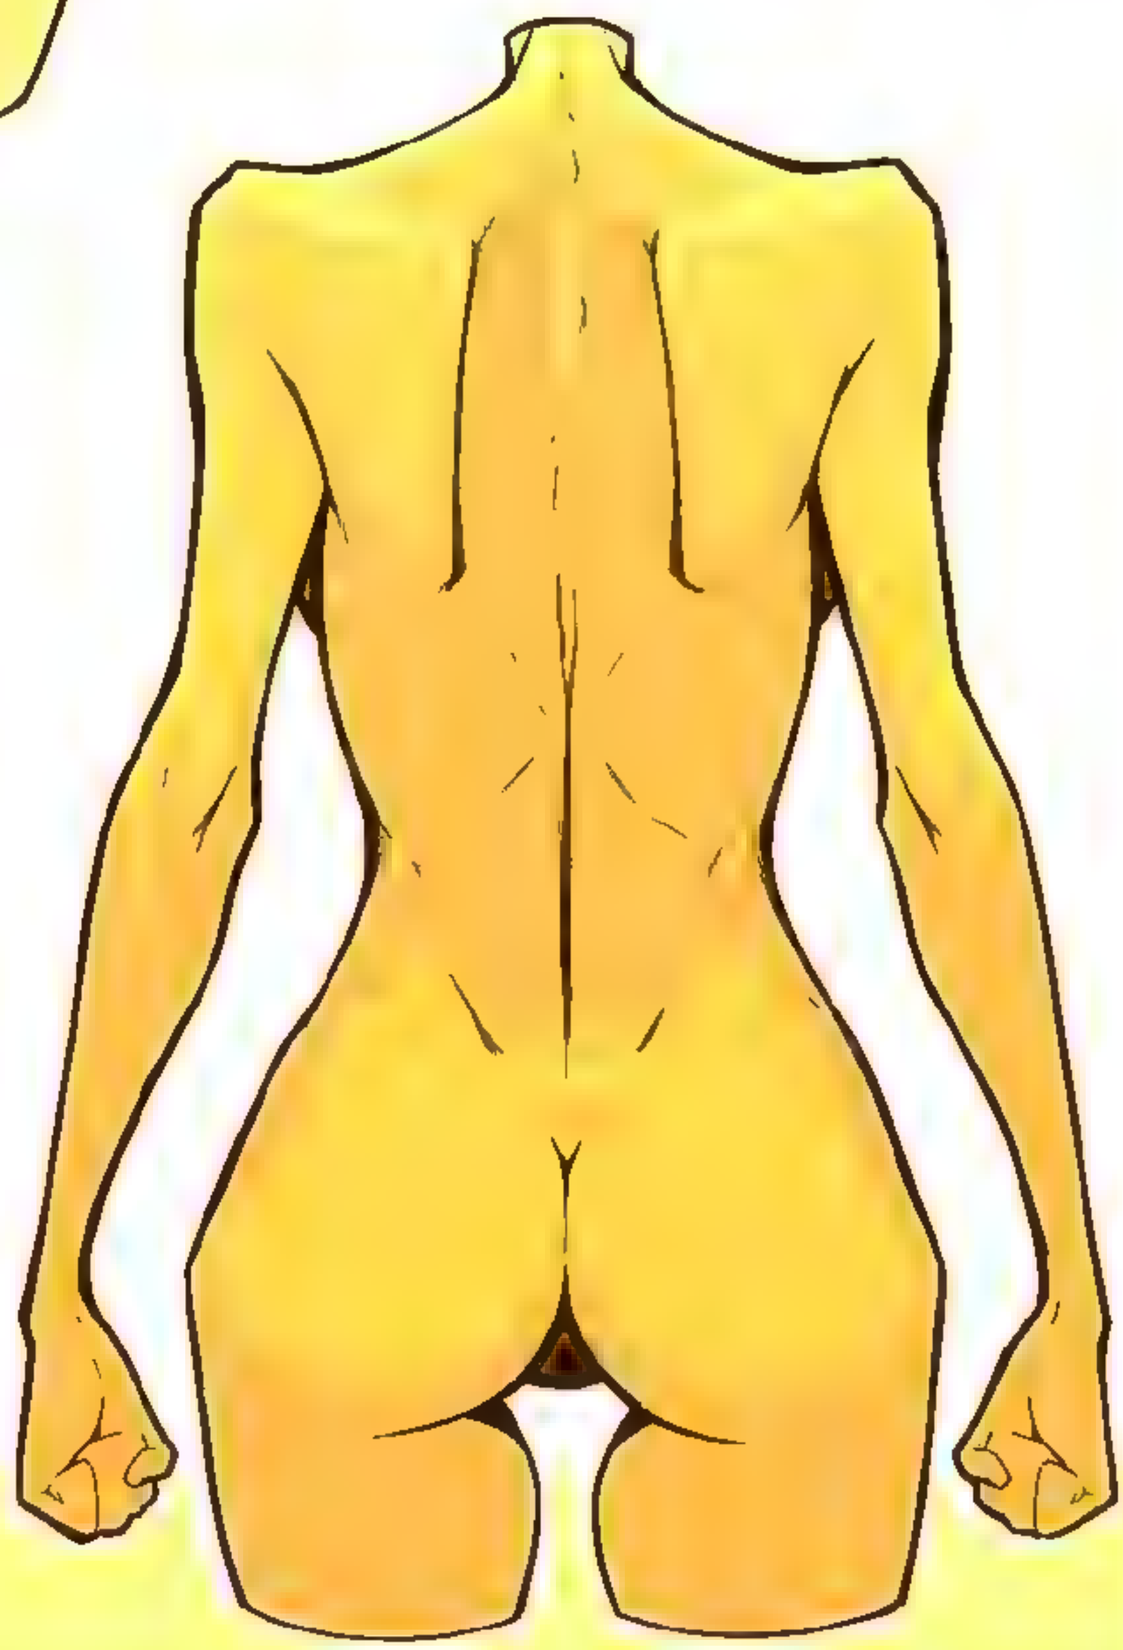




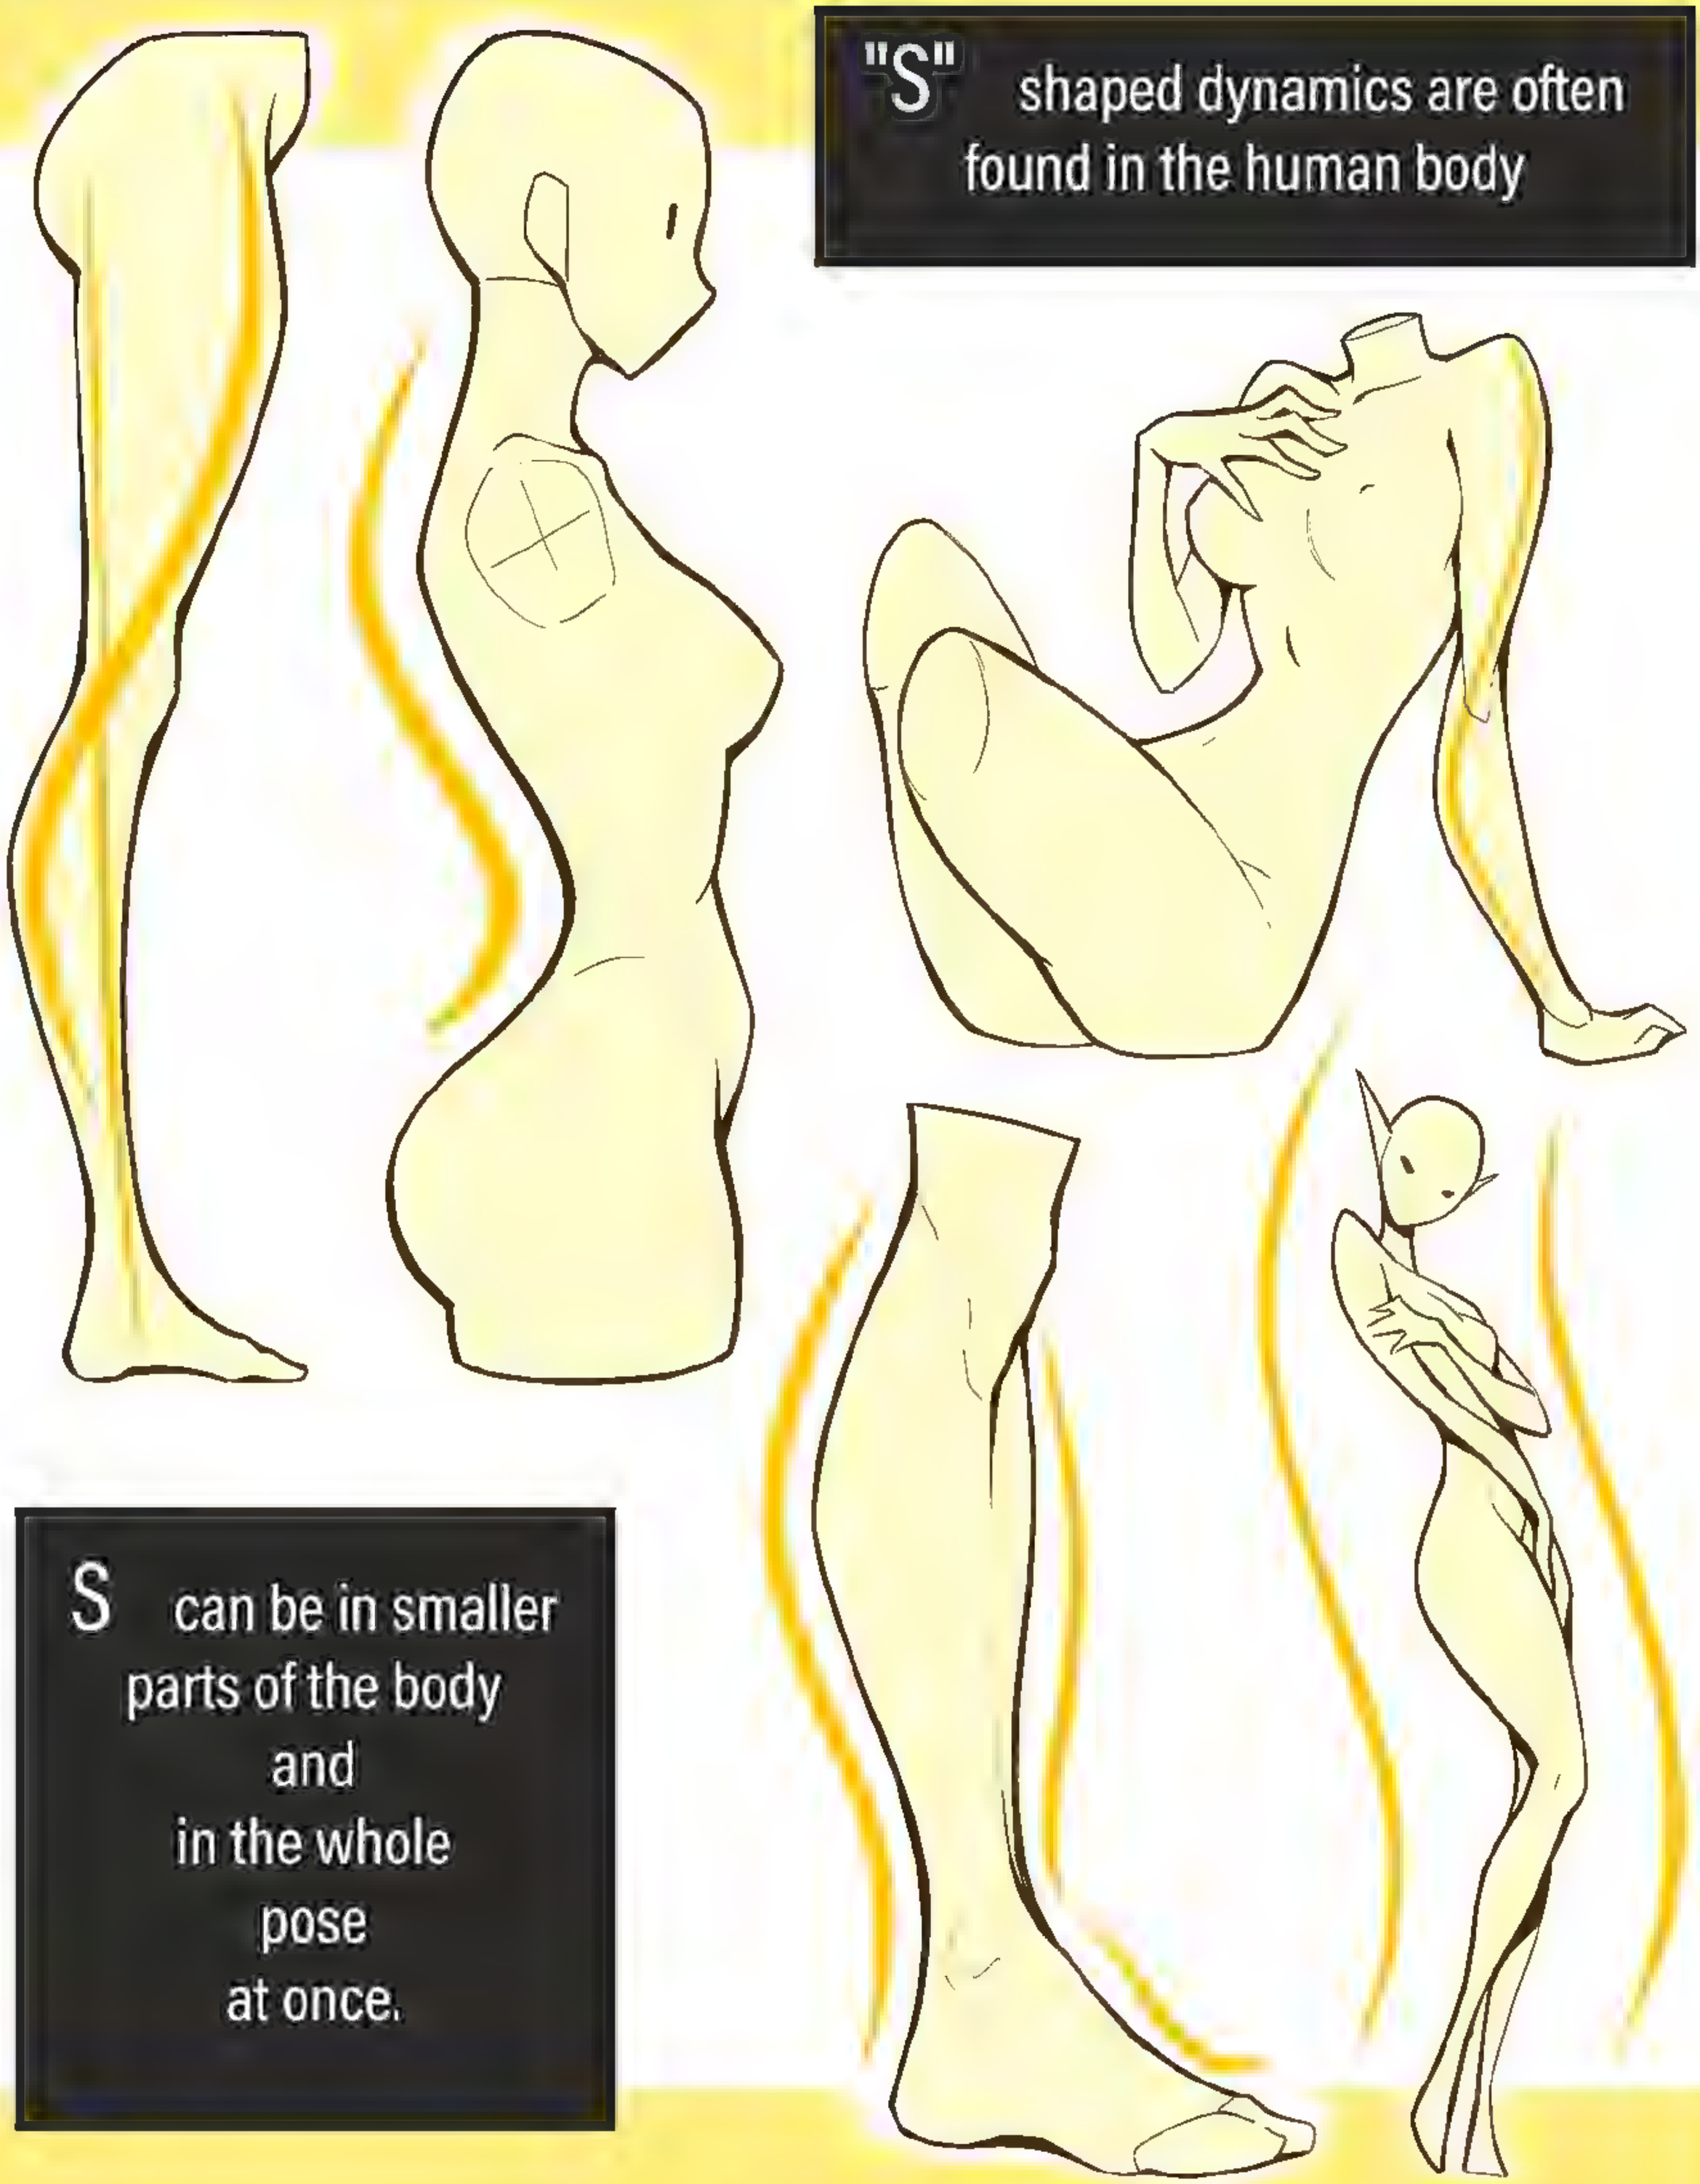
There is no specific place where the body parts connect. They are intertwined.



There is a very small distance between the ribs and the pelvis.

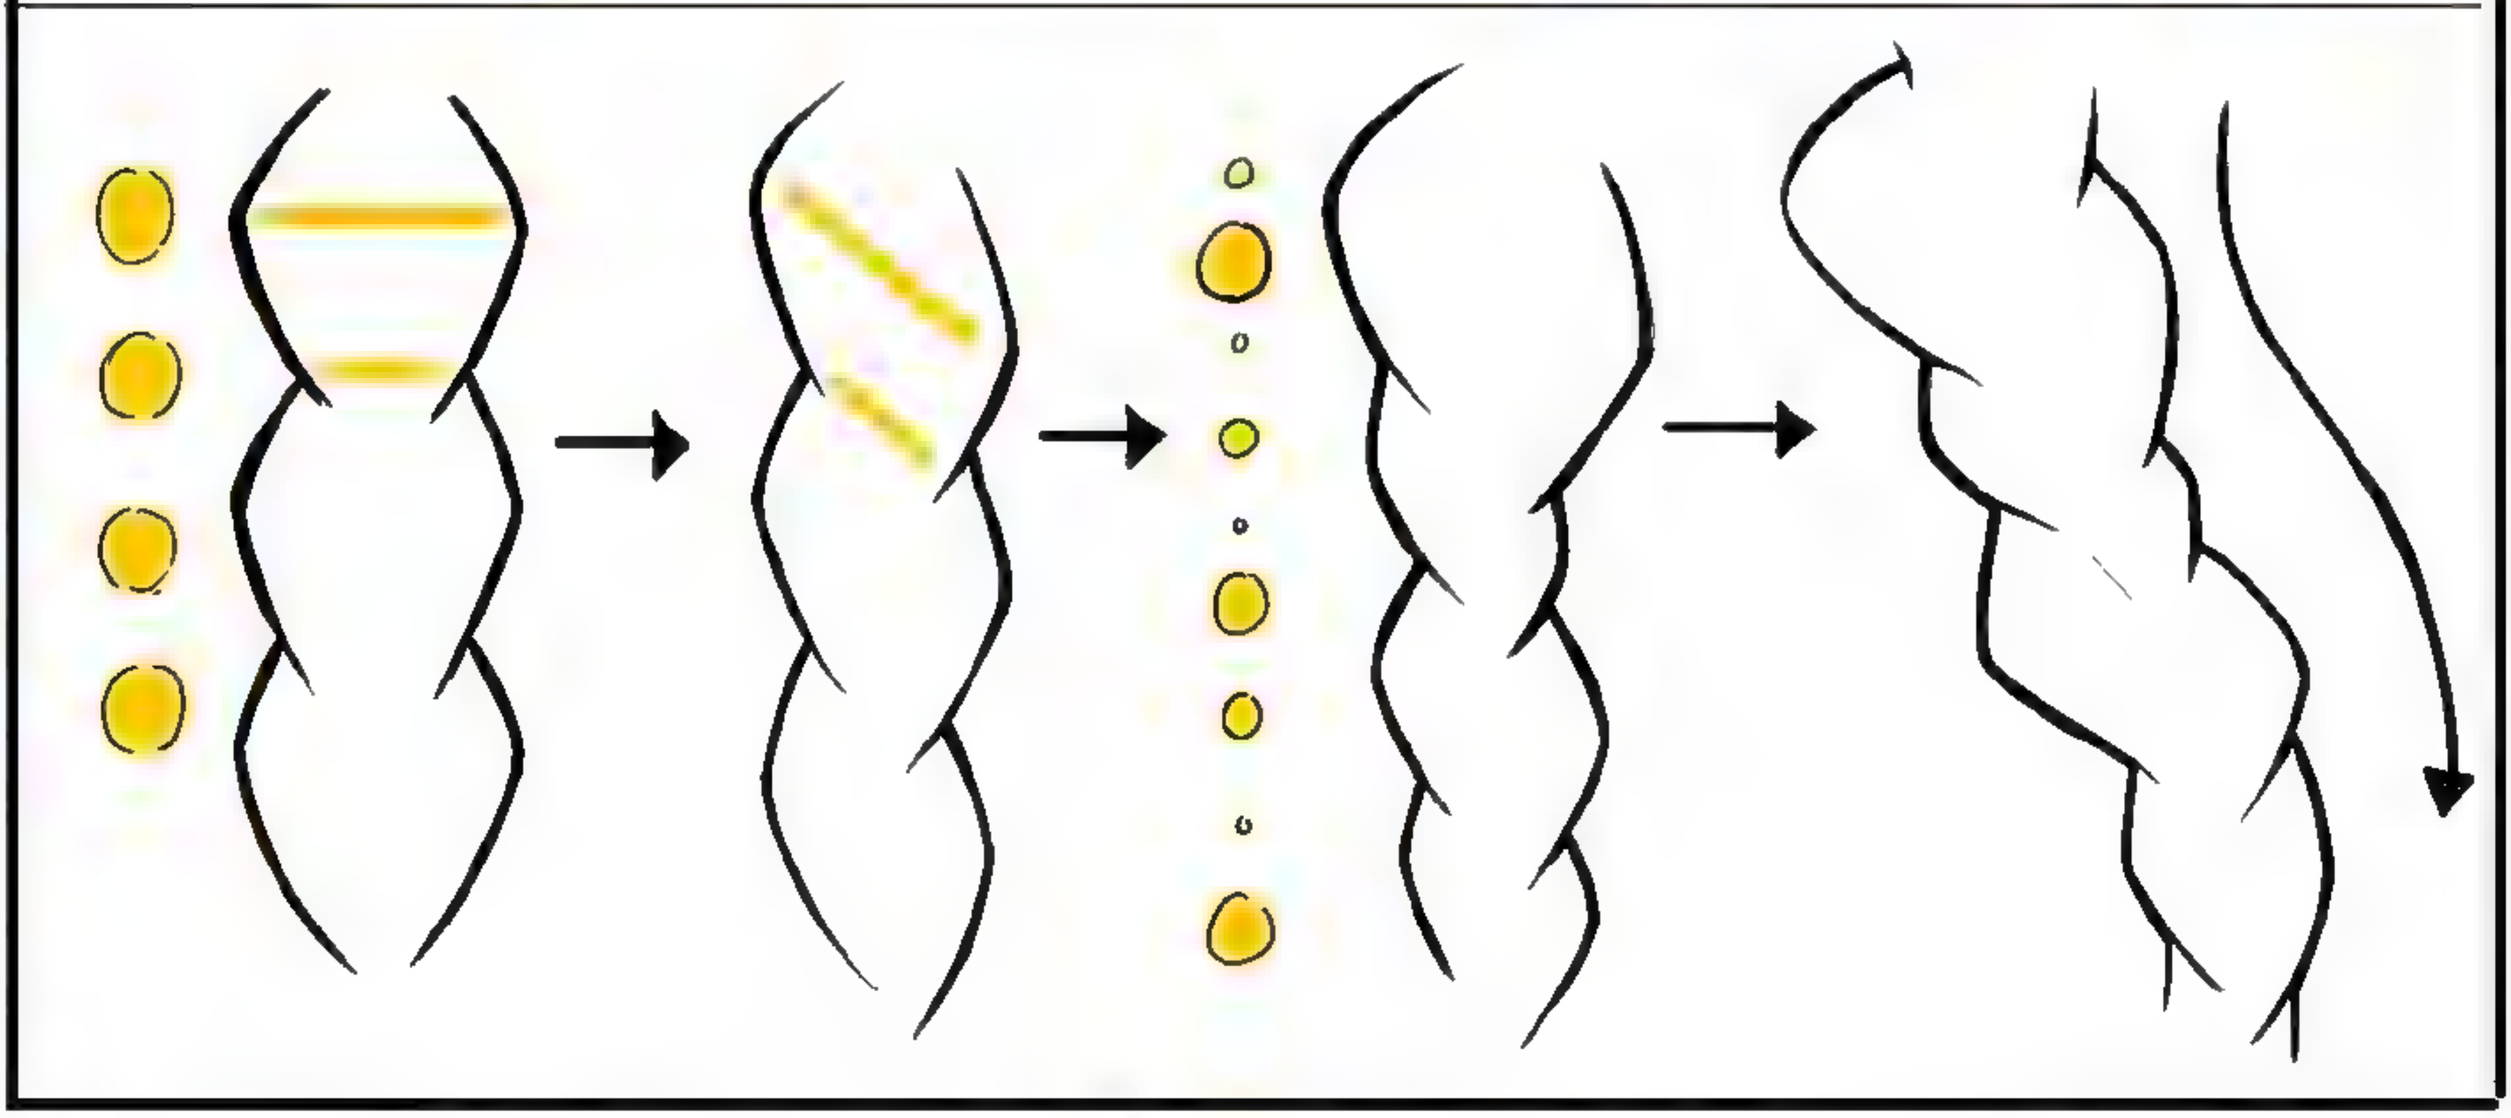


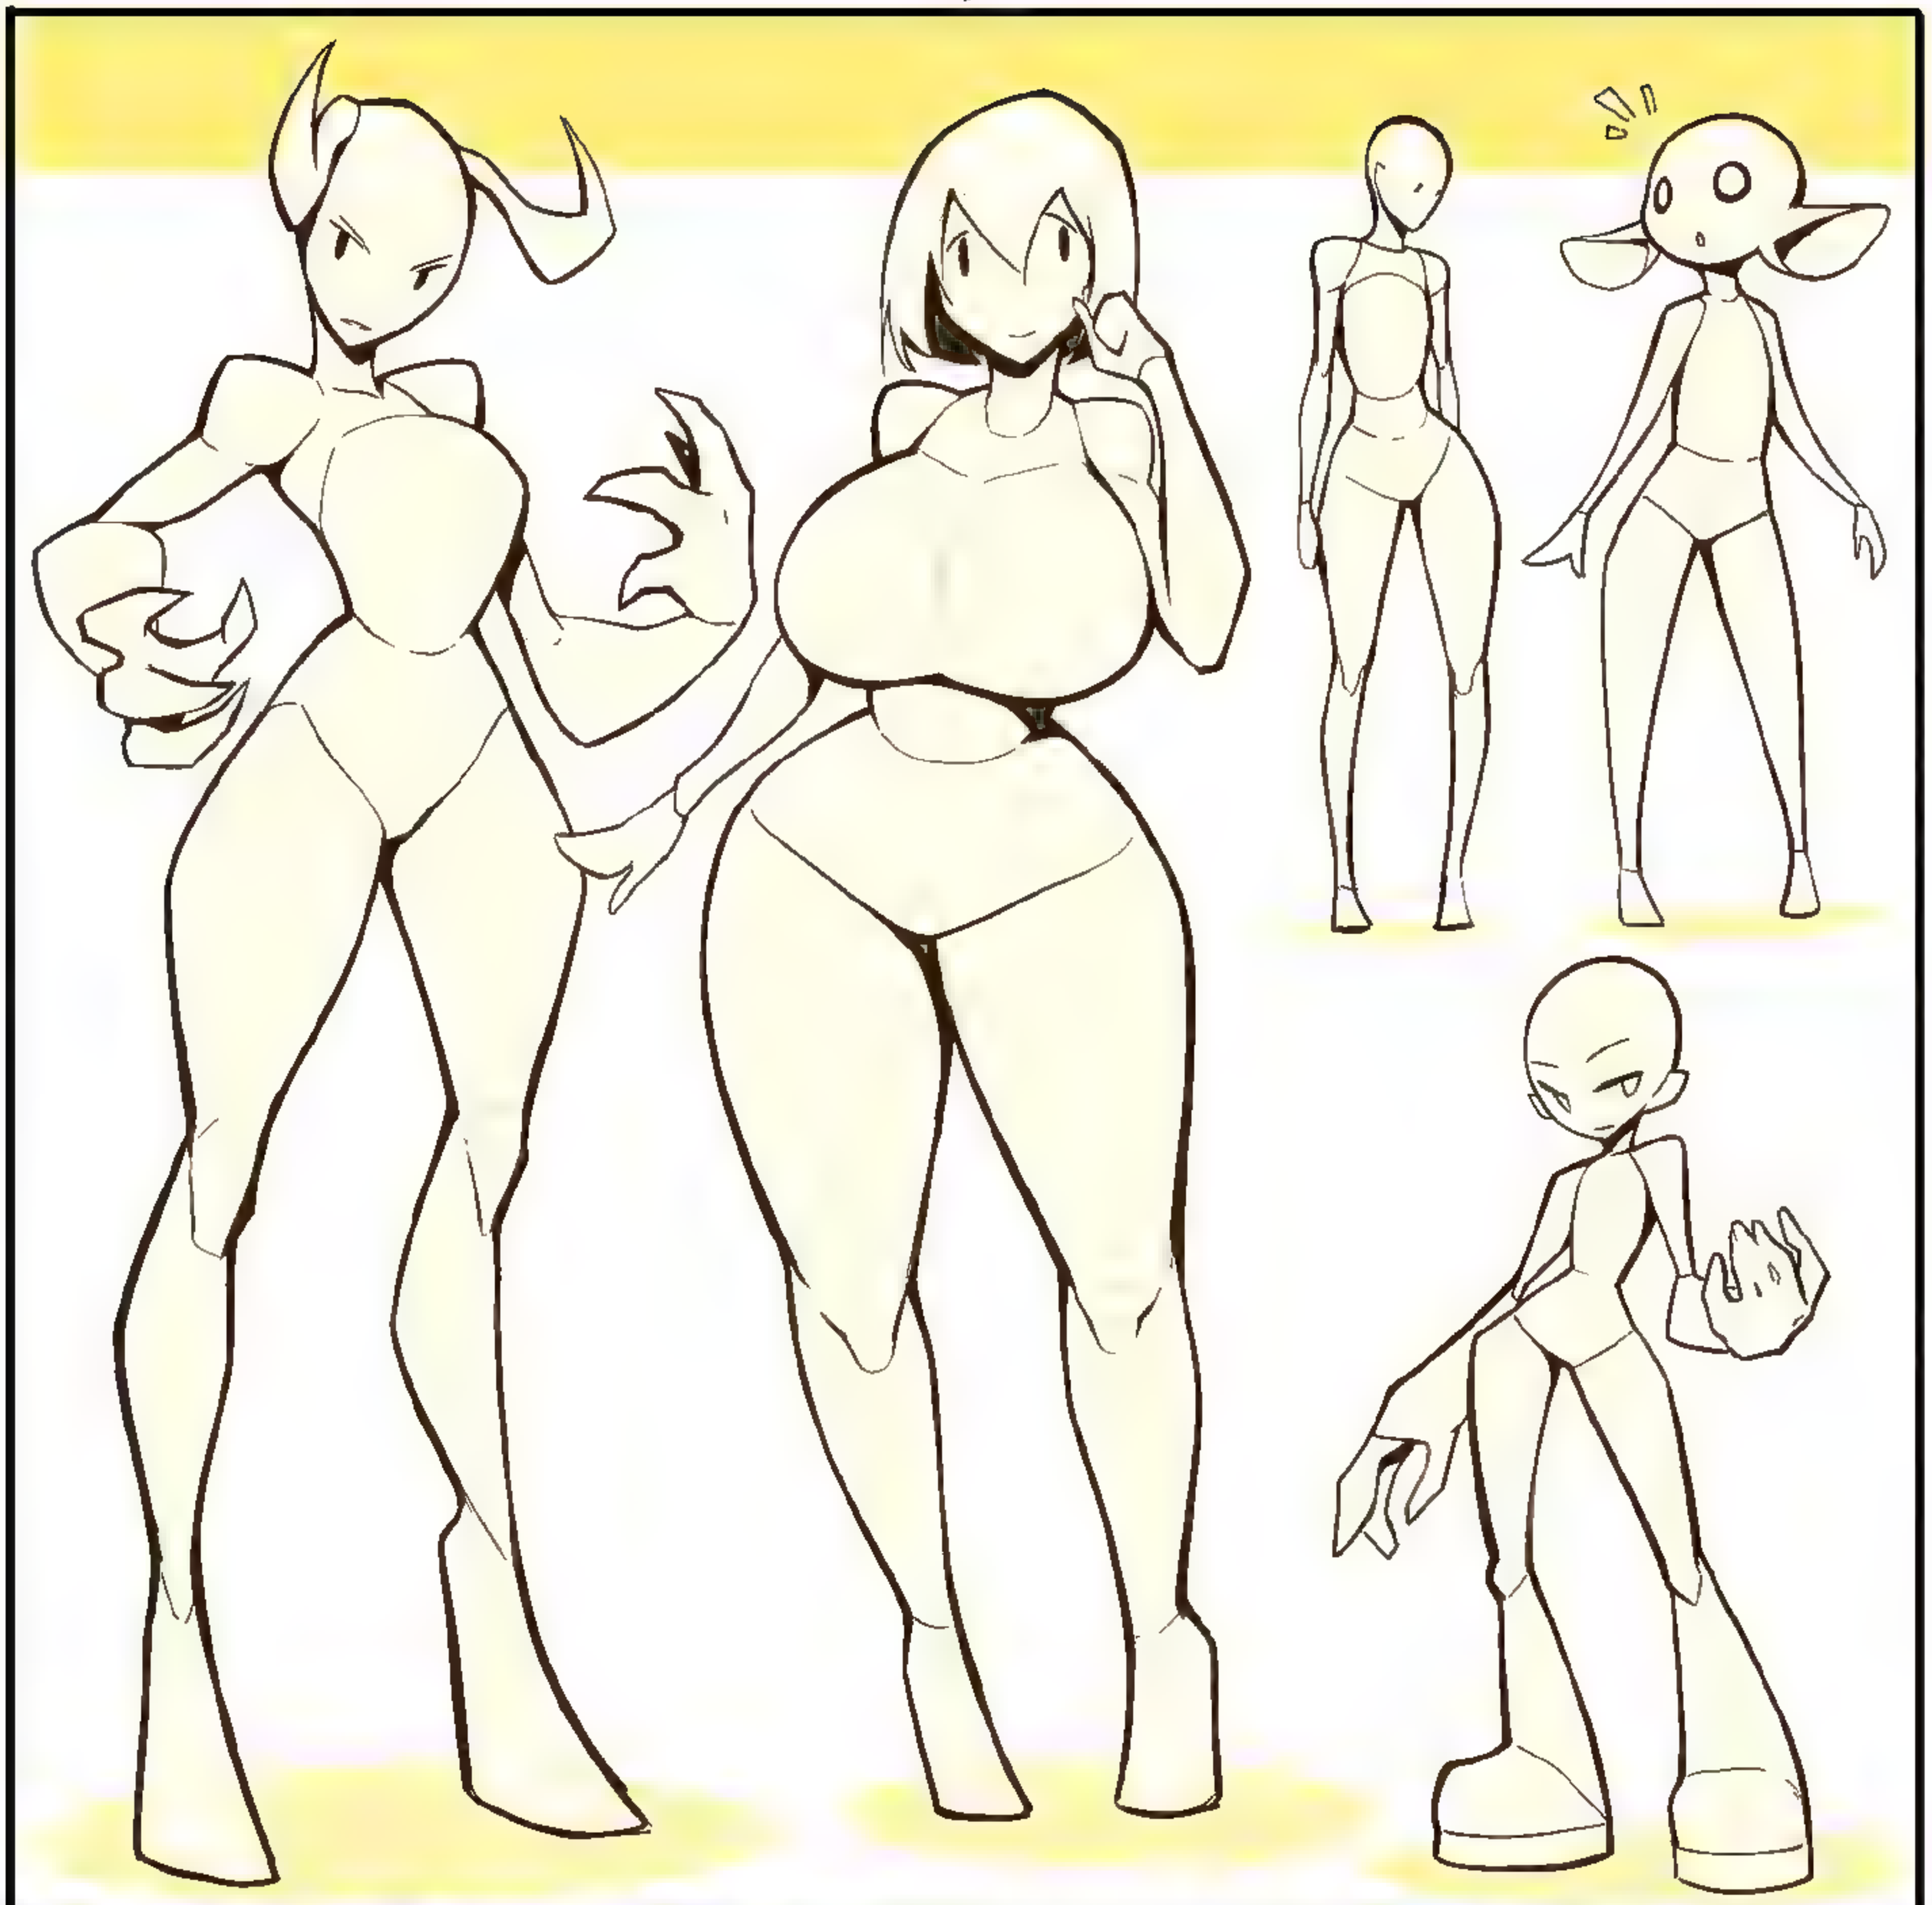
"S" shaped dynamics are often found in the human body



S can be in smaller parts of the body and in the whole pose at once.

The silhouette will look more organic if its recesses and protruding parts are located diagonally relative to its center.





Try to make a character out of different shapes and purposefully make each shape with a unique shape and size (mass).

Usually a combination of shapes looks more interesting if several shapes with the same mass or size are not joined together

I noticed that the folds look better if they have a "Y" shape.
With one main fold and one smaller

☐ places where bones are not covered with muscles and protrude

☐ sports people have depressions in these places to emphasize the size of the breasts, they can cover the sides of the torso and go to the armpits

LET ME SHOW YOU SOMETHING SPECIAL, DARLING

I SANK DOWN SLOWLY, MY KNEES HITTING THE COOL BLACK MARBLE FLOOR OF THE BATHROOM. THE FLUORESCENT LIGHTS OVERHEAD CAST EVERYTHING IN SHARP RELIEF, AND I COULD SEE OUR REFLECTION IN THE FLOOR-TO-CEILING MIRROR BEHIND HIM ME ON MY KNEES, PLATINUM LAVENDER HAIR CASCADING OVER MY SHOULDERS, MY IRIDESCENT CROP TOP STILL PULLED DOWN TO EXPOSE BOTH MY BREASTS NOW.

RUBB

I SQUEEZED MY BREASTS TIGHTER, CREATING A WARM, SOFT CHANNEL FOR HIS COCK. THE HEAD POKED OUT FROM BETWEEN MY TITS WITH EACH MOVEMENT, GLISTENING AND FLUSHED, REACHING UP TOWARD MY FACE. I STARTED MOVING, SLIDING MY BREASTS UP AND DOWN HIS LENGTH IN A STEADY RHYTHM, FEELING EVERY THROB AND TWITCH OF HIS SHAFT BETWEEN MY SOFT FLESH.

いつかの恋人たちに自宅へ招かれた時の事。皆で外食でもと話はまとまったが、衣装がなんなか決まらない。
もう一人の彼女はやれやれと参っていたが、私もきっとそんな表情を浮かべていただろう。

I was invited to the home of a group of sometime lovers. We al. agreed to go out for dinner.
But she couldn't decide what to wear. The other was overwhelmed, and I must have had that look on my face, too.

IT'S OKAY ONCE IN A WHILE FOR ME TO SHOW YOU WHERE YOU BELONG, MY LOYAL PUPPY. LET'S NOT LET YOU FORGET WHO'S REALLY IN CHARGE HERE.

Handout

Discussing Contributors to Verbal Intimacy:
Building Understanding and Responding with Empathy = Healthy Conversations

Theme scriptures

- Leviticus 19 17-18 and Ephesians 4.15 we speak the truth to each other in love
- Proverbs 20:5 ..even the non-emotional among us have deep things in our heart and we need someone who cares to draw it out
- Luke 6:35-36 and 2 Cor 1:3-4...we are called and empowered to be like our father in heaven...Jesus showed us how

Paul Tripp quote from Age of Opportunity: "If you fail to speak the truth in love, it will cease to be the truth because it's polluted or corrupted by your frustration, impatience, and anger."

Speaker: OINK = One Issue/One Moment, "I" Statements, No Blaming, Keep It Short

Example: "Last Friday, when you came home, you came into the kitchen and you said _____. When you said that, I felt hurt and judged, and I felt really small." One moment, one issue (last Friday), said from the "I" perspective (hurt, judged, small), without an attack (no blaming) and shared succinctly (keep it short).

Validator: RACE = Reflect, Ask Questions, Confirm, Empathize

Example to reflect or confirm: So, when I said _____, you felt _____, and it seemed like _____"

Example conflict scenarios for practice.

1. One person consistently leaves dirty dishes piled in the sink, frustrating the other who prefers a clean kitchen.
2. The night-owl person plays loud music late at night, disrupting the early-bird's sleep schedule.
3. A person's frequent, unannounced guests make the other person feel uncomfortable and unable to relax in shared spaces.
4. One person keeps forgetting to take out the trash, creating a bad smell that bothers the others.
5. The person who bought the shared food is annoyed when they discover the other has eaten all their snacks without asking.
6. One person's passive-aggressive notes about chores have created a hostile living environment for the other.
7. Differing temperature preferences lead to a nightly standoff over who gets to control the thermostat.
8. A person repeatedly borrows personal belongings like clothes or toiletries without permission, straining the other's trust.

Chea, Friend to Maybe Too Many {1}{W}{B}{G}

Legendary Creature — Human Wizard

Familiar spells you cast have flash. (Bats, Birds, Cats, Dragons, Faeries, Foxes, Frogs, Imps, Lizards, and Spiders are familiars, as well as any creature with "Familiar" in its name.)

{T}: Add X {G} and each opponent loses X life, where X is the number of familiars you control.

You are strong for just one person, but it's useless,
Coming from the Defense Force, you should understand individual strenght is futile when faced with an innate weakness :

But not even you would be so full of yourself...
You were trying to buy time for your partner!
Go ahead and open that mouth of yours about the one who helped you the faster you are, the more likely we might give you a break think quick.

YOU WON'T GEHEET ANYTHING FROM ME!
HAHAHAHA!
THIHIHIS IS A RIDICULOUS INTERROGATION TACTIC!

On the contrary, this method has proven quite effective the girls at Belobog Indisturies could tell you so much about it!

It's just a matter of time before we find the right spot, the perfect tool, a crack in your defenses, we just have to keep going until-

HAHAHA!

W-WHAT IS THAT?

Last chance soldier! tell us all about your comrade, this will only get worse for you!

As an additional cost to cast this spell, you may waterbend 10.

You control target opponent during their next combat phase. If this spell's additional cost was paid, you control that player during their next turn instead. (You see all cards that player could see and make all decisions for them.)

OH! MERCI, PARTNER, I DIDN'T THINK MY FEET WERE EVEN PRETT...

EUREKA!

PARTNER, WE'VE BEEN LOOKING AT THIS CASE ALL WRONG.

WHAT CONNECTS THE WOMENS' MISSING SHOES?

IT'S NOT THE VALUE OR WEALTH OF THE SHOES,

GIVEN THE VICTIMS RANGE FROM THE WEALTHY JACINTHE TO THE HUMBLE GRISELLE.

AND NOT FAME OR PRESENCE ATTACHED TO THEM.

GIVEN THE VICTIMS ALSO RANGE FROM SECLUDED GWYNN TO FAMED CANARI.

NO, IT'S NOT THE SHOES, BUT WHAT THEIR ABSENCE REVEALS.

THANKS FOR INSPIRING ME, PARTNER!

I KNOW THE TRUE MOTIVE OF THE SHOE THIEF, AND - IF WE'RE GONNA CLOSE THIS CASE - WHAT TO DO TO LURE THEM IN...

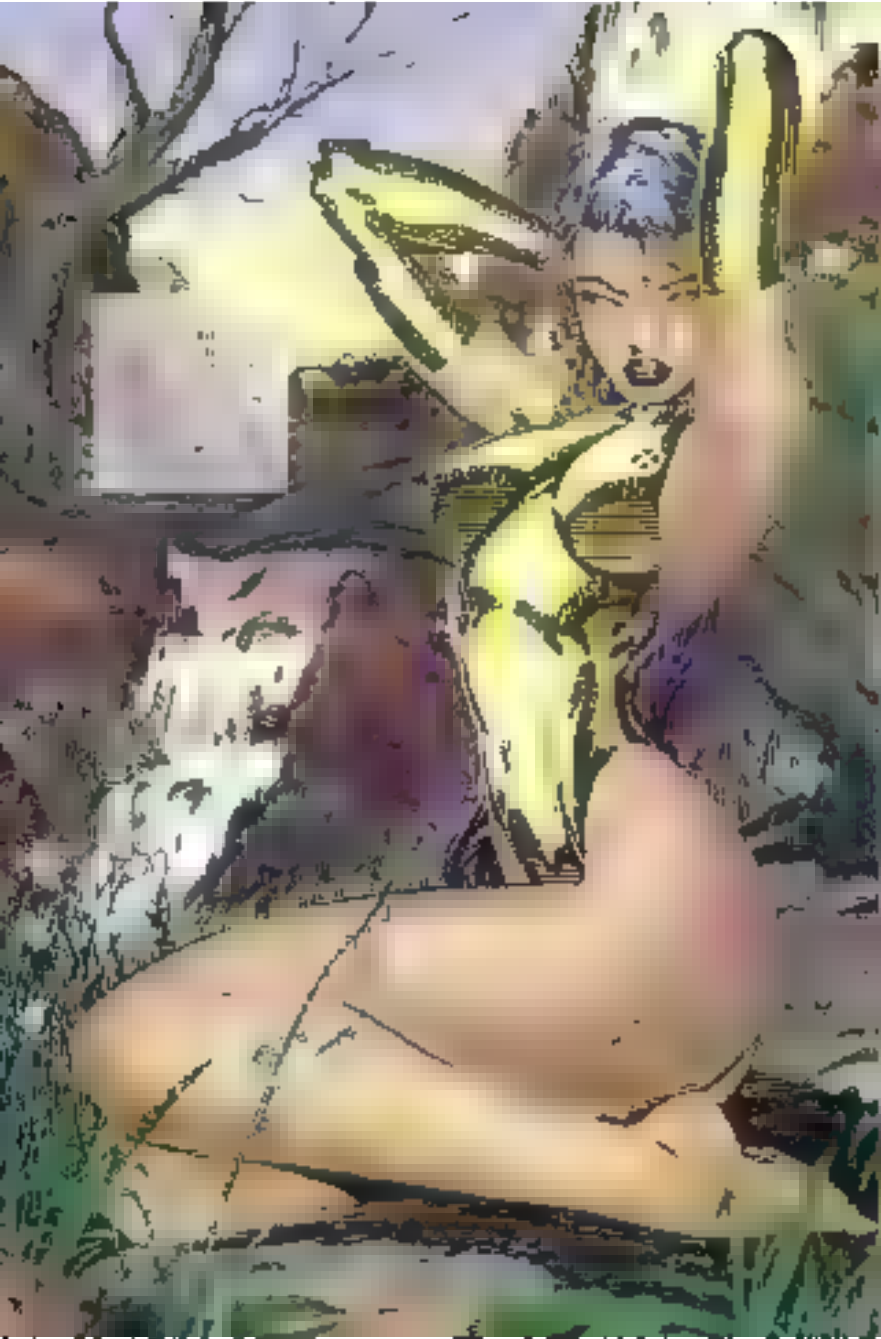
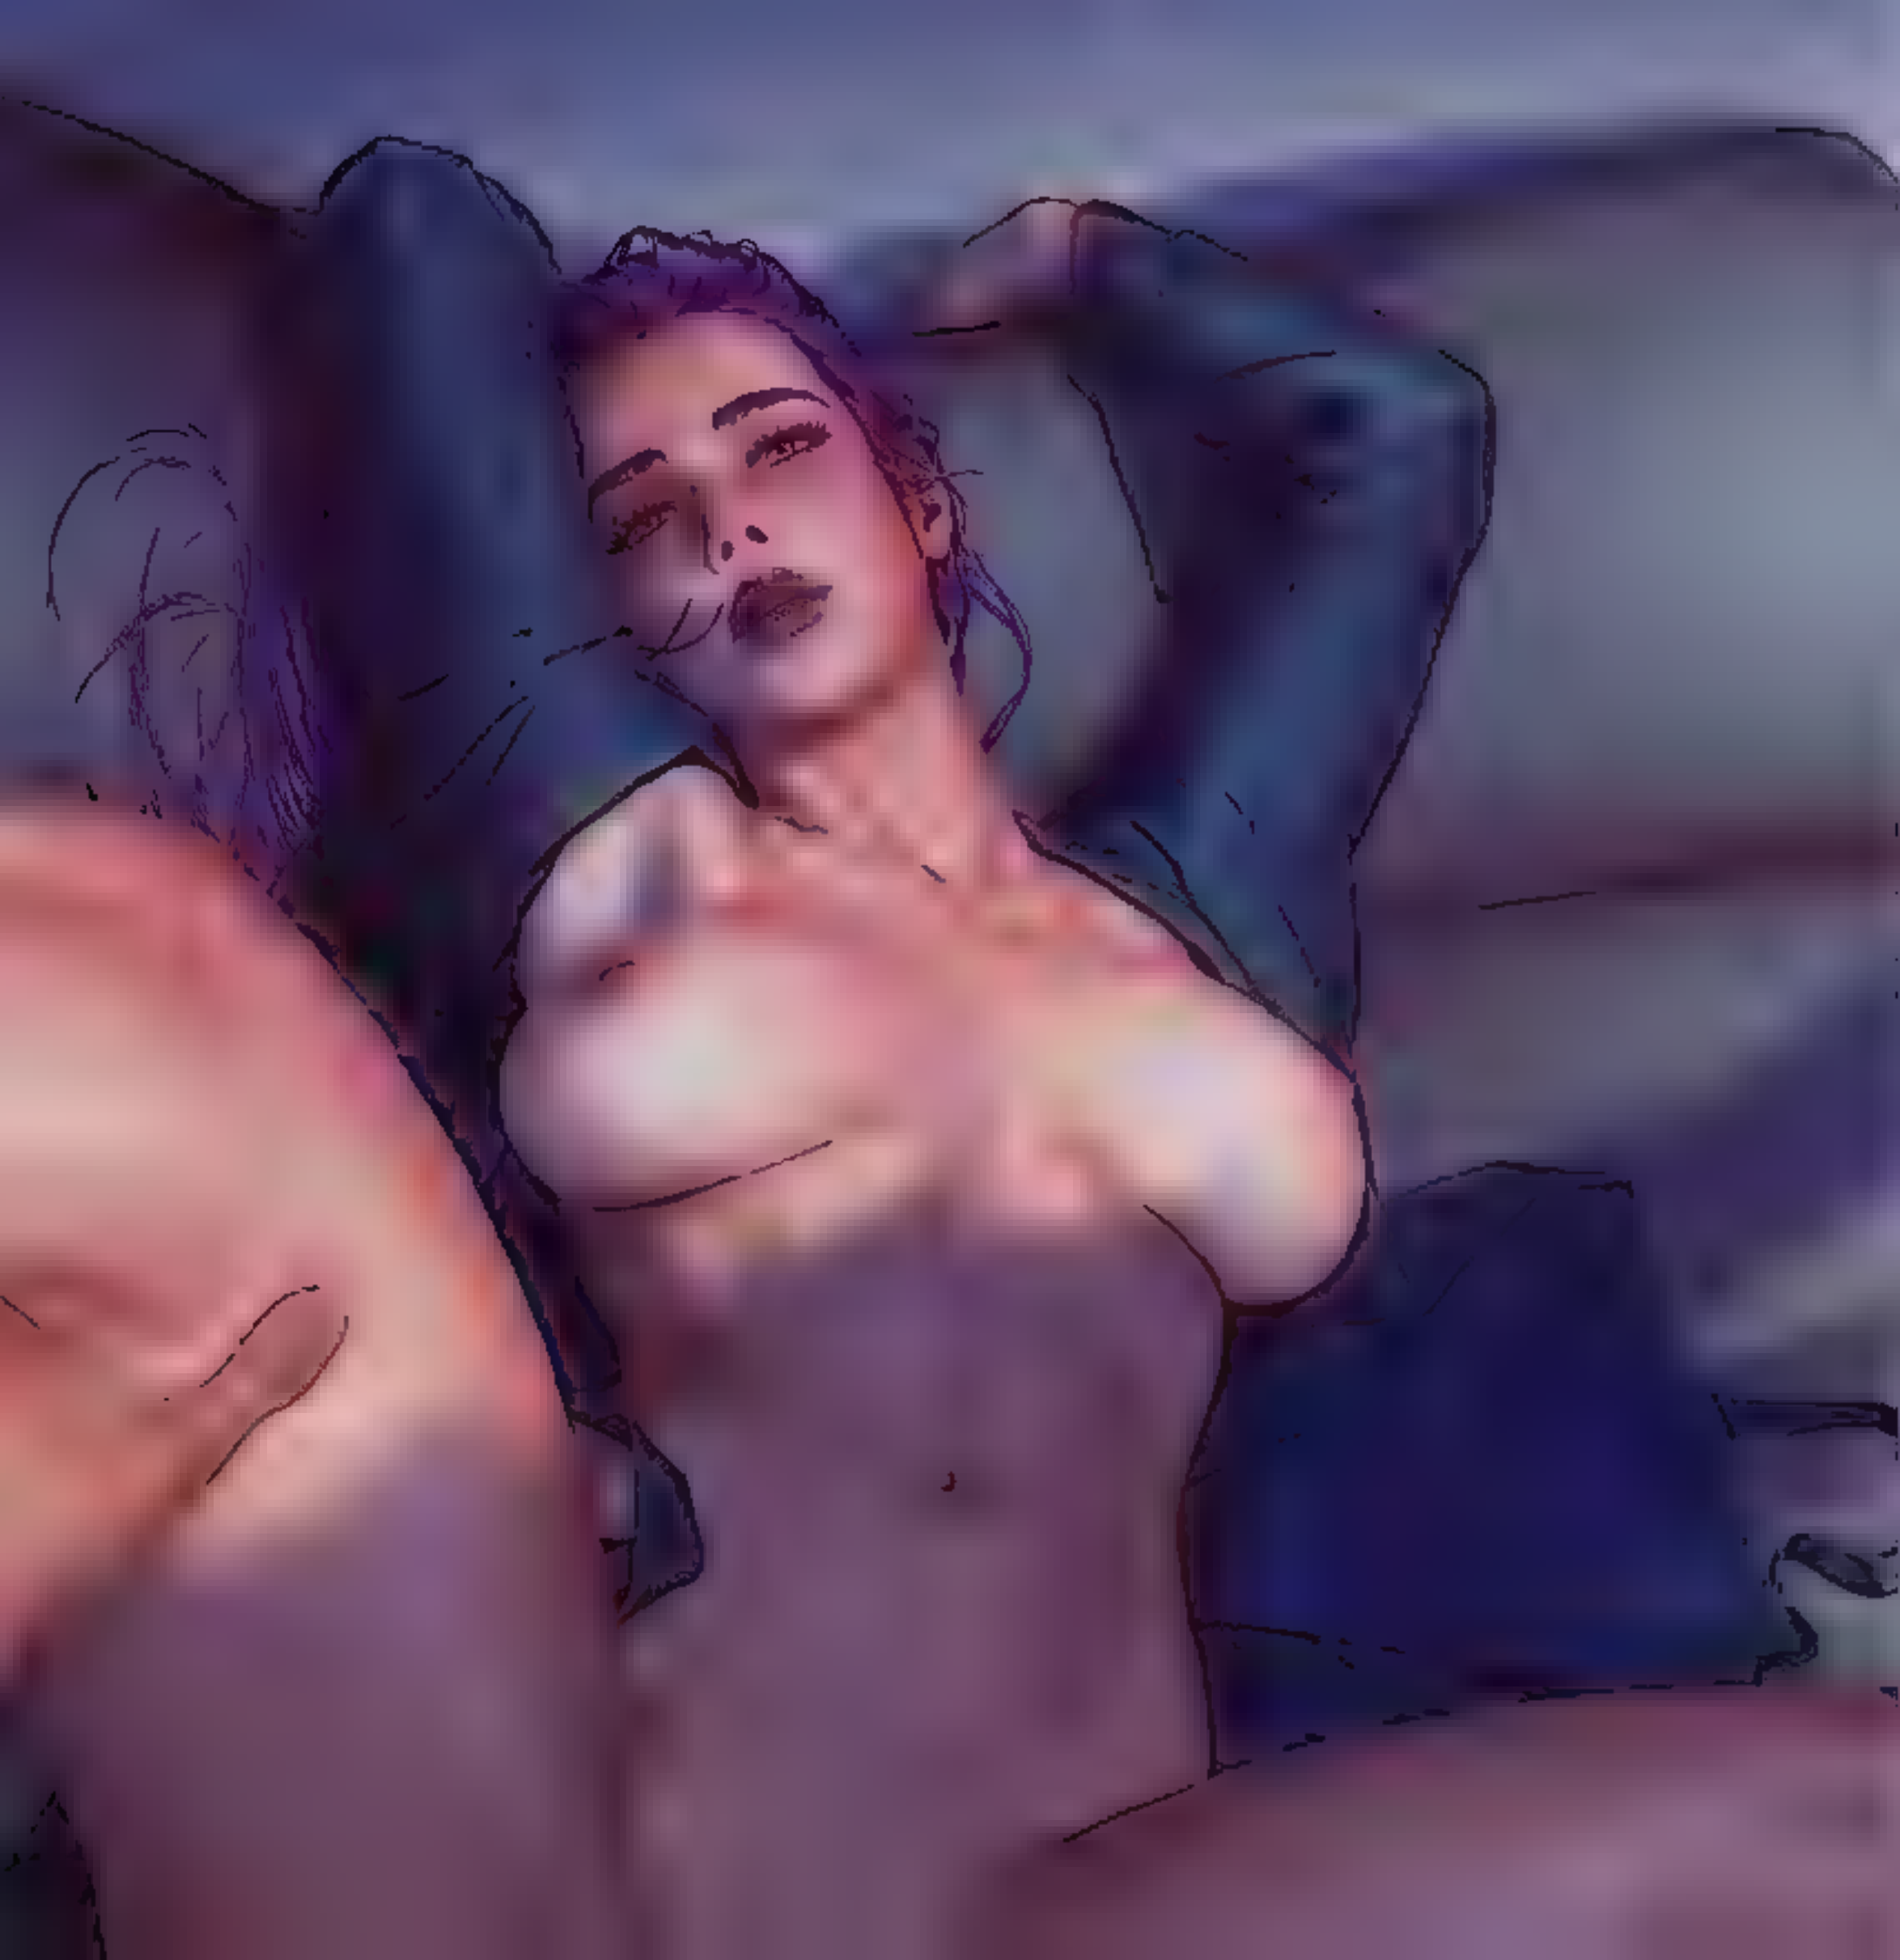
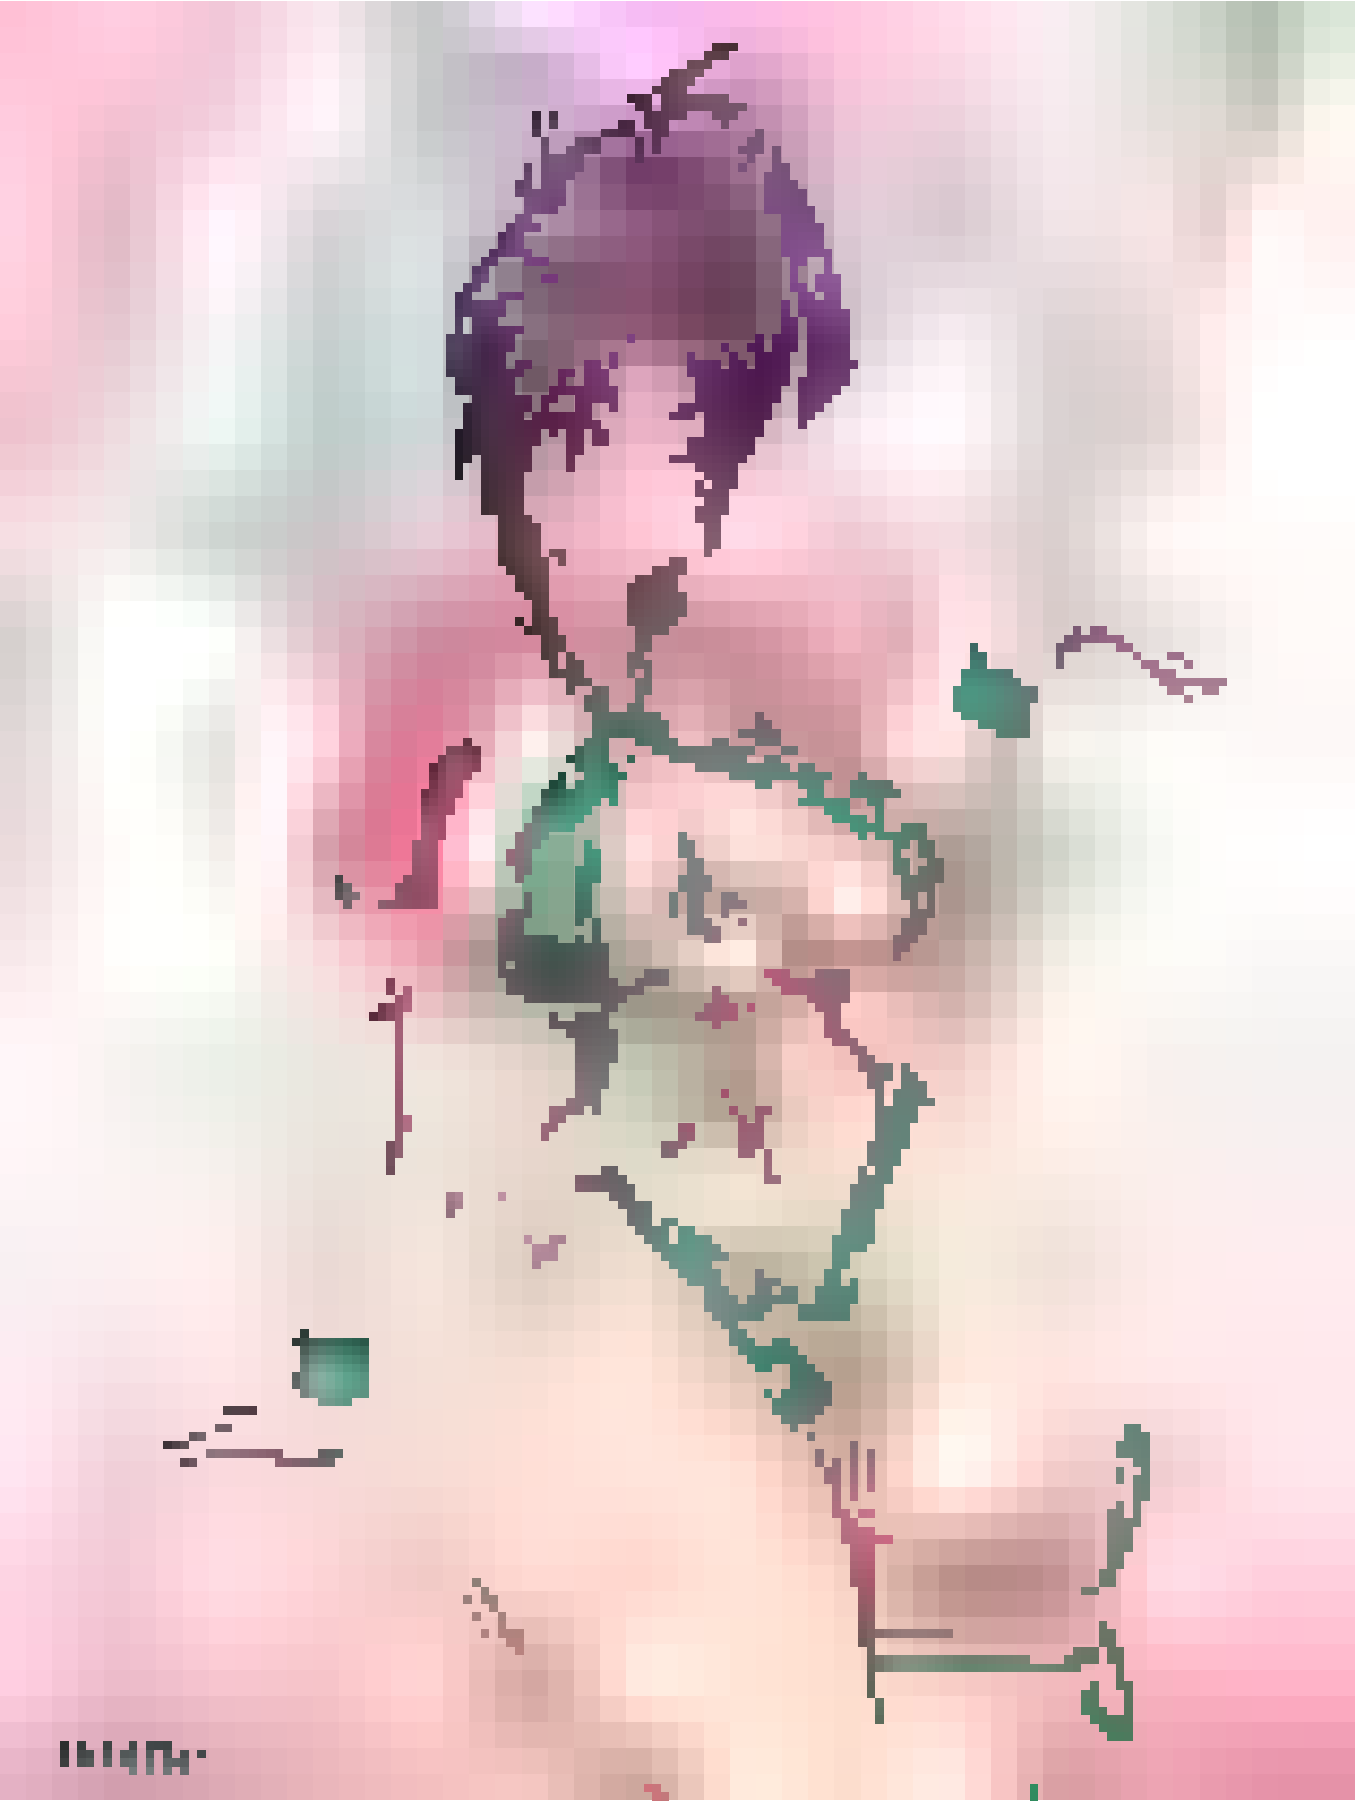
FLANKING ME? C'MON GIRLIE, YOU SHOULD KNOW BETTER.
MAYBE THIS WAS THE PLAN ALL ALONG







SINCE LAST YEAR'S PUMPKIN LOOKED LIKE A CRIME SCENE, I TOOK PRECAUTIONS TH·S TIME.

AND DON'T EVEN THINK ABOUT THE PRICE OF THESE SHARP BABIES

JUST KEEP YOUR CHEEKY MOUTH SHUT WHILE I CARVE MY MASTERPIECE, AND YOU CAN WORK ON MY PUMPKIN AFTERWARDS, DEAL?

Nooo hahahaha dont pull my pants down. Oh my god this is so embarrassing. Hahaha this is torture

I am sorry Lexi, but the humiliation is part of your punishment. I guess you just have to take it

Not the feather please. Hahahaha

Hahahah no please. I haven't committed adultery. My husband is tying.

You are a sinner mrs Dickinson! And sinners need to be punished!
See, not all sinners receive the same punishment from us, but always the punishment that is most appropriate.

And your husband told us that you are extremely sensitive and hate being tickled.

"Fall in love with some activity, and do it!

Nobody ever figures out what life is all about, and it doesn't matter. Explore the world.

Nearly everything is really interesting if you go into it deeply enough. Work as hard and as much as you want to on the things you like to do the best.

Don't think about what you want to be, but what you want to do. Keep up some kind of a minimum with other things so that society doesn't stop you from doing anything at all."

Sometimes the strongest hearts are the ones that need love the most.

The saddest people are often the ones who try the hardest to make everyone else happy.

They smile through their pain because they know what it's like to feel invisible

To feel unwanted.
To feel like their presence doesn't matter.

And because they've carried that weight, they can't bear the thought of anyone else carrying it too.

So they give more, they love harder, they shine brighter, all while hiding the darkness inside them.

If you know someone like this, remind them they're not alone.

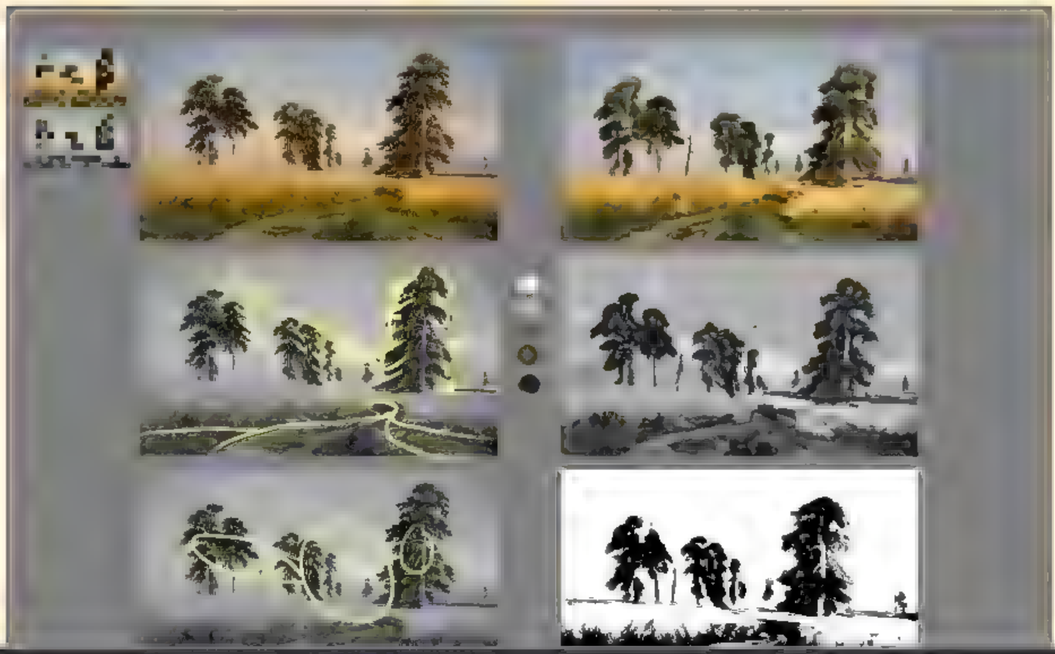
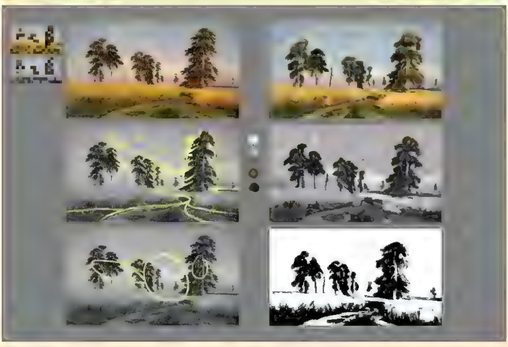
How To Do Master Studies

When I was studying art at university, one of the most misunderstood art practices was master studies. The practice was new to me at the time, and when I saw the other students working on their studies, it was almost always considered a copying exercise involving a piece of artwork by one of the old masters. Since then, I have come to learn that there is far more to master studies than copying, and they don't have to be limited to the old masters.



4:55 5G 89



What Are Master Studies & Why Should Artists Do Them?

To do a master study is to study a piece of media created by someone who has mastered their craft, analysing their creative decisions to learn from them. Typically, the media you study will be something along the lines of the work you want to create. This could mean many things; a piece of artwork from a professional in the industry you want to work in or are already working in, a screenshot from a movie that you loved the visuals of, or indeed a piece of art from one of the old masters. Anything made by someone who found success or with a quality that you want to evoke in your own work is ideal for a study.

The most important thing to understand is that master studies are not about copying. Many artists, including myself, will 'copy' the artwork in the process of studying. However, this is only done as another method of analysis. When "copying' the original work, I am not looking to recreate every shape perfectly or place brushstrokes exactly as they are in the original. This can be time consuming and counterproductive. Instead, I used it as a way to analyse and understand specific elements of the painting. Shape language, lighting, value, colour, all of these things and more can be learned by reproducing the original media in the right way. I am constantly thinking about why the artist made certain choices in the original media as I place brushstrokes, and this allows me to learn so much more than mindless copying. Back when I thought copying was all there is to master studies, I would spend hours perfectly recreating a piece of media. While I saw a huge improvement in my ability to copy images, I saw little improvement in my ability to create original art and my knowledge of the fundamentals.

What are the benefits of doing these studies? The benefits I have seen from doing these sort of studies, in the right way, have been amazing. The biggest benefit for me is improvements in my knowledge of the fundamentals, such as colour, value, and composition, and these studies have helped me to use them better. I've also seen improvements in my visual storytelling capabilities. Whenever I do them, I get excited about the discoveries I make through my analysis. Picking apart the creative decisions of the master behind the work is enthralling and motivating, and one of the most alluring parts of doing them.

How I Study Them

First, I pick a piece of media to study. I mostly pick artworks created by some of the old masters because I find the appearance of their paintings very

How I Study Them

First, I pick a piece of media to study. I mostly pick artworks created by some of the old masters because I find the appearance of their paintings very alluring, and I want to evoke the aesthetics of them in my own work.

I find that starting with some simple sketches over the top of the original media can be a good way to begin, analysing how the artist guides the flow of a viewers gaze through the media. Looking at what my eye is drawn to and why allows me to pinpoint the elements of the painting that do this; such as the form of shapes, contrasting values and colour, lighting, or the varying level of detail. I then naturally progress onto deciphering the composition, which brings the previously mentioned elements together. I do this over two to three images so that I don't clutter my notations too much. I'll adjust my sketching as I notice new things too, and it can be helpful to write notes next to them if I think I won't remember what I was seeing when looking back at it.

Now I feel more confident to progress onto analysis through replication. I tend to start with a two tone study to break down the overall contrast of the media. I find this useful to see how it affects the composition. Once I've done this, I use a curves or levels tool to increase the contrast of the original media and see how well my replication compares. If it differs, I ask myself why so that I can see if the original artist is manipulating my perception of the media using things like contrast or colour. I won't correct any inaccuracies after doing this, as I don't learn anything further by doing so.

Next, I do an expanded value study. I tend to stick between three to five values, so that I keep thinking about the groups of value in the media and don't get lost in the details. I'll create a greyscale value palette from the original media, averaging out the values into five choices. I do this rather than having a set palette because every piece of media is different. For instance, some paintings can have a very limited value range and won't feature very bright or dark values.
A brief note about getting lost in the details; the way I study is not about focusing on the details. However, there's nothing to stop you from spending more time doing further studies to focus on the detail. That's not to say that I ignore the details in my analysis. Level of detail is highly important for directing a viewers attention, and I always make sure to look for it's usage.

Finally, I will do a colour study. If I have the time, I will create a colour palette to paint this from. I do this by eye, without a colour picker tool, and make sure to keep things simple by limiting the number of colours I take from the scene. I tend to group these into sections, such as a few colours for the rocks in the painting and a few for the trees etc. This can take some time to do because I like to paint over the media with the colour I've chosen from eye to see how accurate I was. I'll adjust my colour choice in the palette until I get close enough, to learn how to read colours more accurately. This has helped me over the years to achieve a better usage of colours in my own paintings. I used to choose very desaturated colours and this method has been useful to see how bold you can go with colour. Otherwise, I will do it by eye while I'm painting and without making a colour palette or checking the accuracy as I go. Sometimes I'll do this even if I have a colour palette to see how much I learned from this about the colour of the media. I find this is a useful skill to develop for better reading the colours from reference material for original paintings. To see how well I did with this study, I either layer the original and my study over each other or use a colour picker to compare them and analyse what I did differently.

While the study may now appear complete complete, I think it is incredibly important to put what I have learned into practice and I generally consider this a part of the study. I'll create an original painting that will evoke and implement the things I learned from the the original media. This solidifies the knowledge for me and I find I will utilise it better in the future if I do this. While the example below shows a fairly similar artwork to the original, sometimes the artwork can look very different but still implements the knowledge I've learned.

Time

I feel like there is a general pressure to do this kind of thing within short spaces of time. Yes, master studies do not need to take that long to complete. Putting the knowledge gained from a study into practice and creating original work is just as important as studying, and maybe even more so. However, if you can afford the time and you are learning more by spending longer on studying, there is no reason not to do so. I do my best not to go over an hour when doing a complete study, but only because I am able to analyse most things that I want within that time and I have a lot of other work to do in my day.

Additionally, I should note that you don't need to analyse everything about the original media all at once. If you only have 10 minutes to spare, you can always pick one thing to analyse and you'll still be learning something. I occasionally do this with film stills, choosing only to study the colour or value of the still. Also, you do not need to reproduce the media to have studied it. You can still learn a lot just from the analysis sketching and palette making.

To round this discussion off, I want to mention that just because this method and order of studying works well for me might not mean it will for you. It is a good idea to look into and experiment with different methods of studying and find the methods that get the most out of it for you.

I hope this was insightful for you, and I hope that you have a great time doing some master studies of your own!

Voyager 1 is humanity's most distant spacecraft.

But even after a million years, it will barely have scratched the surface of the galaxy.

Launched in 1977, Voyager 1 has been speeding away from Earth for 48 years. It now travels through interstellar space at about 38,000 miles per hour (61,000 km/h) – fast enough to circle the Earth in 90 minutes. Yet, space is so vast that this blistering speed barely makes a dent.

In one million years, Voyager 1 will cover about 330 trillion miles (530 trillion km). That sounds enormous – until you realize it's only about 56 light-years. For comparison, the Milky Way is roughly 100,000 light-years across. After a million years, Voyager 1 won't even have crossed one-tenth of one percent of our galaxy.

It will pass its first star encounter, a faint

It will pass its first star encounter, a faint red dwarf called Gliese 445, in about 40,000 years – and then keep drifting silently onward. By then, its instruments will have long since gone dark, but the spacecraft itself, along with its golden record carrying sounds and images of Earth, will continue its lonely journey.

Black Hole
@konstructivizm

Astronomers using NASA's Chandra X-ray Observatory have discovered that a high-speed pulsar caused a fracture in a massive filament in the Milky Way.
The filament, known as G359.13 or "the Snake," is a huge structure near the galactic center that was distorted by the pulsar's impact.
The pulsar was traveling at speeds between 1 and 2 million miles per hour when it collided with the filament.
This cosmic event warped the filament's magnetic field, leading to a noticeable kink or break in its structure.
The pulsar, a dense neutron star, was likely ejected from a supernova explosion, propelling it at incredible velocities through space.
Observations show the pulsar positioned right at the point of the fracture in the Snake filament.
The collision distorted radio signals from the pulsar, providing evidence of the high-speed encounter.
This discovery helps explain anomalies in large-scale structures within our galaxy's central regions.
The Snake filament spans vast distances and is part of the Milky Way's intricate network of gas and dust.
Further studies of this pulsar-filament interaction could reveal more about high-velocity objects and galactic dynamics.

Marincess Blue Tang

[Cyberse/Effect]
If this card is Normal or Special Summoned: You can send 1 "Marincess" monster from your Deck to the GY, except "Marincess Blue Tang". If this card is sent to the GY as material for the Link Summon of a WATER monster: You can excavate the top 3 cards of your Deck, and if you do, you can add 1 excavated "Marincess" card to your hand, also shuffle the rest into your Deck. You can only use each effect of "Marincess Blue Tang" once per turn.

One more thing.....Tito is renowned for the AMAZING way he treats everyone. Relationships are his greatest skill. The false narrative about TLR was he was a jerk. He was beloved by the regular working folks. Treated them well AND was obsessive about winning

Ditto. Has absolutely nothing to do with being soft. There is appropriate behavior and then there isn't. Ppl feeling so strongly that they would quit is a huge red flag. Been in the workplace 40 years - horrific managers screw up lives

Interacting Black Holes by Hamid Naderi Yeganeh

The above picture is a converted version of a 2000×1200 image. For $m = 1, 2, 3, \ldots, 2000$ and $n = 1, 2, 3, \ldots, 1200$, the color of the pixel of the row n and the column m is $\mathrm{rgb}\left(F\left(H_0\left(\frac{m-1000}{500}, \frac{601-n}{500}\right)\right), F\left(H_1\left(\frac{m-1000}{500}, \frac{601-n}{500}\right)\right), F\left(H_2\left(\frac{m-1000}{500}, \frac{601-n}{500}\right)\right)\right)$, where $F(x) = \left\lfloor 255 e^{-e^{-1000x}} |x|^{e^{-e^{1000(x-1)}}} \right\rfloor$, and

$$H_v(x,y) = e^{-e^{-50(y-\frac{x}{3}-\frac{7}{50})}} \frac{B(x,y)}{5} + \frac{20K_v(x,y)}{37}\left(1 - e^{-e^{200\left(\left(x+\frac{y}{3}+\frac{1}{2}\right)^2 + \left(y-\frac{x}{3}+\frac{3}{100}\right)^2 - \frac{3}{100}\right)}} e^{-e^{200\left(y-\frac{x}{3}+\frac{2}{5}\sqrt{\frac{3}{100}-\left(x+\frac{y}{3}+\frac{1}{2}\right)^2}\right)}}\right)\left(1 - e^{-e^{200\left(\left(x-\frac{y}{3}-\frac{1}{2}\right)^2 + \left(y-\frac{x}{3}+\frac{3}{100}\right)^2 - \frac{1}{50}\right)}} e^{-e^{200\left(y-\frac{x}{3}+\frac{2}{5}\sqrt{\frac{1}{50}-\left(x+\frac{y}{3}-\frac{1}{2}\right)^2}\right)}}\right),$$

More information will come soon, this is the main interface for Unify 2.0.

Here is the list of Unified Libraries we have available - these are the factory patches of the mentioned plug-ins saved in Unify format. Yes, many are in VST2 format. We will be working to convert these to work with the VST3 version of the plug-in after Unify 2 has been released.

mrjasonowilson If you know the snap count, why jump offsides? Most of our “penalties” in life aren’t from ignorance — they’re from anxiety.

We rush ahead, trying to control the moment instead of trusting our preparation. But when you let go of fear and stay grounded in discipline, you move with purpose, not panic — and that’s when power meets peace.

DECADES EVEN, LIVING SUCH A MISERABLE EXISTENCE...

WELL ...!

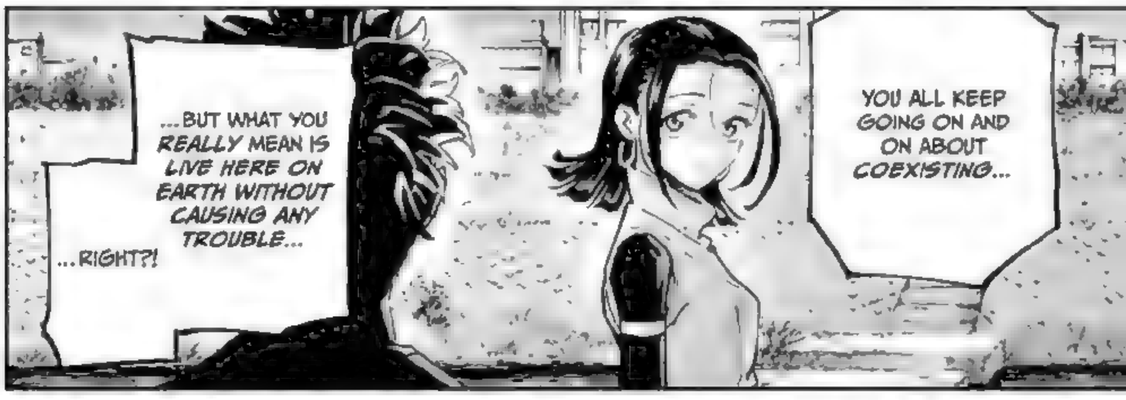
AND HOW LONG WILL YOU STEAL FOR?

THAT'S WHY IT BECOMES AN ENDLESS CYCLE.
HATING PEOPLE AND STEALING FROM THEM IS EASY.

LET'S PUT AN END TO ALL THAT, CROSS.
To be continued!

12:00 78

NO, WAIT.
SHE'S NOT ON THE OPPOSITE SHORE ANYMORE.
YOU'RE STANDING SAFELY ON THE OPPOSITE SHORE, YET YOU REALLY THINK I CAN ACCEPT YOUR RIGHTEOUS ARGUMENTS?!
THAT'S IDEALISTIC NONSENSE!



...BUT WHAT YOU REALLY MEAN IS LIVE HERE ON EARTH WITHOUT CAUSING ANY TROUBLE...
...RIGHT?!
YOU ALL KEEP GOING ON AND ON ABOUT COEXISTING...

...THEN I WILL STEAL!
IF WE HAVE TO SPEND YEARS, DECADES EVEN, LIVING SUCH A MISERABLE EXISTENCE...
BUT FOR HOW LONG?! HOW LONG DO WE HAVE TO CHECK OUR BEHAVIOR FOR EARTHLINGS?!

WELL ...!
AND HOW LONG WILL YOU STEAL FOR?

Black Hole
@konstructivizm

Picture our Milky Way as a lone firefly flickering in the colossal cosmic tapestry of the Laniakea Supercluster, a sprawling web ensnaring some 100,000 galaxies. This celestial ocean, stretching 520 million light-years, hums with mystery as galaxy clusters drift along unseen gravitational rivers, drawn irresistibly toward the enigmatic Great Attractor. In this grand spectacle, our galaxy—brimming with stars, planets, and life—shrinks to a mere whisper in the universe's epic saga.

Subterror Nemesis Archer

[Fairy/Effect]
At the start of the Damage Step, if this card attacks an opponent's face-down Defense Position monster, and you control another "Subterror" monster: You can shuffle that opponent's monster into the Deck. If this card on the field is destroyed by battle or card effect and sent to the GY: You can Special Summon 1 "Subterror" monster from your Deck in face-up or face-down Defense Position. You can only use each effect of "Subterror Nemesis Archer" once per turn.

🪐 This newly discovered world takes 25,000 years to orbit the Sun — and it's rewriting the map of the Solar System.

Astronomers have identified one of the most extreme solar system objects ever observed: 2017 OF201, a distant, icy world that may qualify as a dwarf planet.

Estimated to be about 700 kilometers wide, it was spotted 19 times between 2011 and 2018 using data from both the Dark Energy Camera Legacy Survey and the Canada-France-Hawaii Telescope. What makes this trans-Neptunian object (TNO) so remarkable is its record-breaking orbit—it travels from about 44.5 astronomical units (AU) at its closest approach to the Sun to an astonishing 1,600 AU at its farthest, taking roughly 25,000 years to complete one full orbit.

This immense, elliptical path places 2017 OF201 among the most distant solar system bodies ever confirmed, reaching deep into the inner Oort Cloud.

Researchers led by Sihao Cheng suggest its stable orbit contradicts predictions tied to the hypothetical Planet Nine, whose gravitational pull would have destabilized such a trajectory. That raises new questions about the outer Solar System's structure and whether Planet Nine exists—or behaves—as previously thought. As surveys probe deeper into space, objects like 2017 OF201 hint at a vast, unexplored population of icy bodies beyond Neptune, reshaping our understanding of the Solar System's frontier.

The Trek Collective

(Move to ...)

Entering the Hive

The latest TNG comic series, Hive, has now started. While in IDW's December solicitations the fourth issue was announced. Here's how they describe that final part of the story:

> Continuing the celebration of the 25th anniversary of Star Trek: The Next Generation! It's climactic finale of one of the most talked about Star Trek events of the year as past and future collide! Past and future intersect as Captain Jean-Luc Picard and Locutus meet to decide the fate of the United Federation of planets -- and the entire Borg Empire!

The omnibus for the series has also appeared on Amazon now, it's listed for February publication, and uses the main first issue cover art:

Introducing: Odin 3 🚀 After 4 years of development, Odin 3 is finally here 🚀

Black Hole
@konstructivizm

In the silence of space, a massive protostar, OH 339.88-1.26, awakens 8,900 light-years away in Ara. Hidden in a dusty Hubble image, dark lanes spiral around brilliant stars with diffraction spikes. At its core, an astrophysical maser—a natural microwave laser—signals intense activity. This 20-solar-mass giant, still cocooned in natal clouds, was observed in infrared by Hubble's Wide Field Camera 3. ALMA and SOFIA data reveal the complex birth of a colossal star. Astronomy Picture of the Day from NASARubin's First Look: A Sagittarius SkyscapeThis 4-degree-wide image of Sagittarius and the Milky Way center, captured by the NSF–DOE Vera C. Rubin Observatory, features Messier 8 (Lagoon Nebula) and Messier 20 (Trifid Nebula).The Lagoon, a 100+ light-year star-forming region 4,000 light-years away, hosts young massive stars energizing its depths. The Trifid's red glow comes from hydrogen; blue hues from reflected starlight, divided by dust lanes. Data was collected over four nights (May 1-4); full image: 84,000 × 51,500 pixels.Image Credit & License: NSF–DOE Vera C. Rubin Observatory

@konstructivizm

The universe is ablaze with heat that defies imagination—its ultimate fire-breathing titans are the wildest cosmic wonders humanity has ever uncovered.Kick off with our own backyard star, the Sun. Its outer skin simmers at a mere 5,500°C, but plunge into the core, where nuclear alchemy fuses hydrogen into helium, and you're hit with a scorching 15 million°C inferno. Now crank it up: enter the white dwarf, the stripped-down remnant of a fallen stellar giant. Fresh from the forge, its surface roars past 100,000°C—hotter than any blaze our minds can conjure. Yet over eons, it fades like a dying ember in the vast cosmic hearth.But the thermometer keeps climbing! Neutron stars push the envelope to pure insanity. Squeezed into a ball just 20 kilometers across, their guts ignite to a mind-melting trillion°C fresh from a supernova's cataclysmic birth. Scoop up a teaspoon of that stuff, and it'd outweigh every skyscraper on our planet stacked together!And supermassive black holes? Ironically, the hole itself is an icy void, devouring light, matter, and even warmth. But the chaotic whirlpool of doom around it—the accretion disk—erupts to hundreds of billions°C, outshining whole galaxies in a dazzling blaze.These stellar forges scream a truth: the cosmos isn't some serene, frozen void—it's a raging storm of untamed energy that dwarfs anything mortals could dream up.

Second-Generation Black Hole Merger

The international LIGO-Virgo-KAGRA collaboration announced the discovery of two unique events: GW241011 and GW241110, detected in October and November 2024. These are the first confirmed cases of second-generation black hole mergers formed from previously merged objects.

Event GW241011, which occurred 700 million light-years away, resulted from the collision of black holes with masses of 17 and 7 solar masses. The larger of the two was orbiting near the Kerr limit, confirming Einstein's theory.

The second event, GW241110, was detected 2.4 billion light-years away. This event is unique in that one of the black holes was rotating in the opposite direction to its orbital motion.

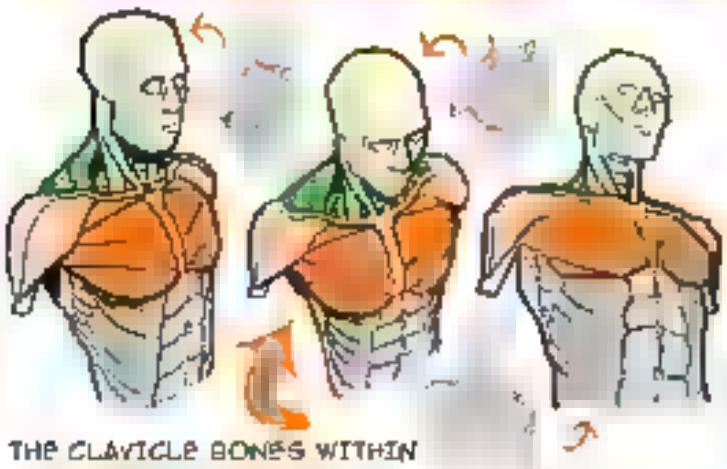
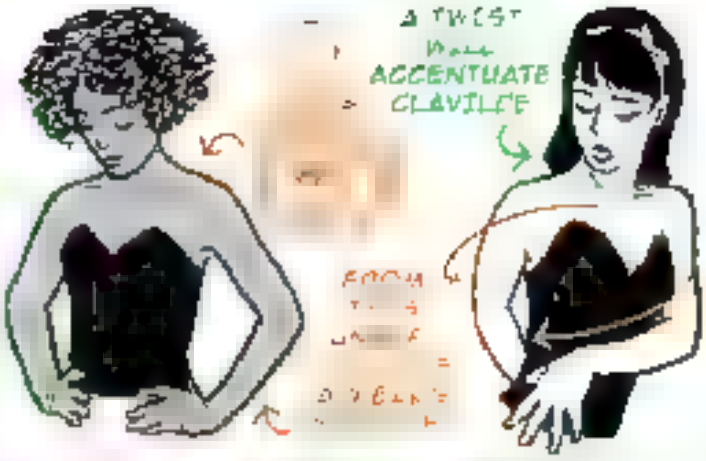
IN THE FIRST OF MY CLAVICLE TUTORIALS WE LOOKED AT BONES AND INTERNAL ANATOMY. NOW WE'RE GOING TO LOOK AT HOW THE CLAVICLE WILL SHOW IN OUR FIGURE DRAWINGS.

AN IMPORTANT NOTE: THE CLAVICLE BONES ARE NOT VISIBLE ON EVERYBODY. DIFFERENT BUILDS WILL EFFECT HOW, OR IF IT SHOWS



THE CLAVICLE BONES WITHIN THE MUSCLE GROUPS

TRY TO "SEE" THE DIAMOND.



HOW THE CLAVICLE & VISIBILITY CHANGES AS WE RAISE THE ARMS.

The Narrator

What do you think they feel like? Three cybernetic beasties, still enough to cross into the third time of her every three real dreamers, or nightmare, because their perceptive subconscious envisions a scenario of horror unbeknownst to foreign minds—let alone that very second.

A simple writer would feel like this. Her destiny and her promise, barrelled before an edge about to take over into a fantasy. And that is what the hero thought each and every, the last one of these wayward sentiments held here on your narrator's table. And you thought was a real great person. Do you understand what you're doing or how? Of course you do. Just check her id.

The Hero

Whoa... these beasties are the real deal. Where can we get more of these? Who needs the princess when you're armed with these!

The Damsel

We are all gathered here to remember the life and light of Her Royal Highness Princess Peronella, assassinated on her dinner by one most cruel and unusual of means...
